The girls' squad will also be bolstered by Tricia Hodge, last season's top overall scorer. A "multicraftsmen," in coach Ken Plude's words, Hodge may find herself sprinting out ahead in the 200 meters, or just trying to outlast all her competitors in the grueling two mile. Her versatility will not come out of necessity, though, as the Lady Rayders have returning letter-winners Jessica VanGuilder and Liz Andreae for the middle distance events.

As for the boys, coached by Hal Evans, Nate Martin and Brian Martinus return after qualifying for state last year to run relays and the middle distance events.

The field events will be anchored by Josh Skeel and Matt Rautio, who both will hurl shot put and discus. Both athletes threw their way into the state meet in shot put last year. The girls may not be as strong in the throwing events, but with Sarah Dominic in the high jump and Emily Martinus in the long jump, the leapers will look to pick up the slack.

"We're restocking our field events with new people," Plude said. "We're in the process of getting our field events back to a competitive state."

Both teams have strong numbers. The girls' largest class is the group of eleventh graders, nine strong. They are backed by 13 freshmen and sophomores. The boys' depth comes from 15 freshmen and sophomores.

With all the runners, the relay teams should be competitive, even if a little varied.

Speaking of varied, the Rayders schedule pits them against schools of all sizes from all over the area. For example, their first meet Tuesday, April 7, is at Traverse City (notice the words St. Francis did not follow). In addition to Rayders and Trojans, Benzie Central and Glen Lake will be competing. The Rayders first home meet will be — like last year — the conference championships at Kipke field Tuesday, May 13.

Rec softball meeting set for Tuesday

A men's and women's softball meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 15, at the city council chambers at city hall.

Anyone interested in playing in or putting a team together for the summer recreations league should attend.

Gus Macker returns to Gaylord

Gus Macker, the world's largest 3-on-3 basketball tournament, is coming to Gaylord Saturday-Sunday, June 14-15. Entry forms for the "Woodstock of Basketball" are now available.

Four-person teams may now pick up their Macker entry forms at all Glen's Markets, which is the host sponsor of the annual event.

Entry forms must be filled out completely for all members of the team. The Macker computer matches teams by age, height and playing experience to ensure fun for all. There are male and female divisions, the highly competitive open division, and special junior divisions for kids ages 10 and under, 11 to 12, 13 to 14, 15 to 16 and 17 to 18. And new for 1997, Gus Macker has special divisions for the 30-years and over players.

Entry fee is $88 per four-person team. Proceeds from the tournament benefit area charities. The Gaylord Macker has raised more than $281,000 during the past seven years.

There is limit of 1,200 teams.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

Owen Specialty Services, Inc., 300 Fanway Drive, Fanton, Michigan 48430, announces that it is planning to apply herbicides along Consumers Energy Company Transmission line rights-of-way in order to maintain the reliability of its power system.

This project will involve a low-volume selective application of foliage herbicides. The herbicides to be used are Accord by Monsanto with the active ingredient being glyphosate and Arsenal by American Cyanamic with the active ingredient being imazapyr. The applications are scheduled to begin June 2, 1997 and continue no later than November 3, 1997.

An alternate project will involve a low-volume basal bark application. The herbicide to be used is Garlon 4 by DowElanco with the active ingredient being triclopyr. The applications are scheduled to begin about April 21, 1997 and continue no later than December 31, 1997.

This work will be completed in the following areas: County: Charlevoix; Townships: Melrose, Chandler, Hudson, Boyne Valley, Evangeline. All treatments will be completed according to label requirements and all applicable state and federal regulations by certified applicators.

If you have any questions or require any additional information please contact: Owen Specialty Services, Inc. at 1-800-808-5190.

going to lay her off," elementary school principal Dick Swenor said.

Board member Joan Buday said that is exactly what the board was saying.

Board Member Larry Levengood, however, hinted differently. "She's the lowest on the seniority list, and we can't change that."

Dwindling student enrollment, and therefore state funding, has prompted the district's proposed five-year budget plan to call for a staff reduction of seven employees during the next half-decade.

The budget plan, however, has not been granted board approval.

As for teachers, the recommedation ignored by the board Monday called for Martin's lay-off, and the relocation of a middle school teacher to the elementary school to maintain the smaller classrooms.

Superintendent Roberta Jackson said Tuesday morning that the issue is not with Martin. "She's an excellent teacher, we certainly hope she's going to be teaching in our district."

Jackson said Martin knew in advance that the job was just for a semester, and that she would be the district's first choice to fill staff openings.

Jackson said the board wasn't comfortable yet with laying anyone off, and that the issue probably will re-appear again in the near future. Teaching assignments for next year are given out in June.

Rezoning approved for credit union

City officials approved the rezoning of land at Stover Road and May Street to relocate the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union.

The land is being rezoned from residential to professional office. Currently, there are two rectangular-shaped buildings on the lot that are separated into small apartments.

Credit union chief executive officer, John Dobulis, said the tenants will be notified of their need to move, the buildings will be demolished and new bank built.

Some city councilmen were concerned about traffic because of congestion at the Stover Road-M-66 intersection. Dobulis said that he expects most of his customers to use May Street for bank access.

"I don't feel we're a destination," he said, noting that the bank is just one more stop on a list of errands being done at other area businesses.

The bank is currently located on Petoskey Avenue. The new building is expected to double the credit union's space.

Bowhunters' class being offered

Persons interested in becoming safer and more accomplished bowhunters are invited to attend a bowhunter education course from 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Saturday, April 26, at the Triple T Archery, 1000 E. Division, Boyne City.

The standard eight-hour course is taught by certified instructors from the International Bowhunter Education Program. It includes information on bowhunters' responsibilities, safety, game laws, survival and first aid, available sources of proper equipment, shooting instruction and bowhunting techniques such as stalking, blood trailing, field dressing, care of meat, scouting and practice.

The course is divided into two segments consisting of a classroom portion and field experience. During the field exercise, students are given the opportunity to shoot their bows and discuss with instructors the procedures to follow in a simulated blood trailing exercise.

The cost of the course is $1. Upon successful completion, students will receive a wallet card.

An instructor's class will be held from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. for those interested in becoming certified instructors. The cost of the instructors course is $5.

In order to preregister or for more information, contact James Mansen at 547-6862 or Howard (Woody) Woodbury at 547-9569.

Warm weather temporary

"It's been just crazy, we've had a line since we opened," he said. "Wednesday was just such a great day, the weather has helped."

Last year a couple of April snowstorms put the kibosh on any premature outdoor escapades. However no one feared a repeat — at least this week.

"We've had a picnic everyday since I've been here," said Amanda Ellis, a 12 year old from Rochester Hills. "I love it up here, I come up for all my winter, spring and summer breaks."

Spring break is one of the more lighter weeks for local law enforcement, so why did it seem like police cars were out in abundance? Sheriff George T. Lasater had an easy explanation.

"I'm not going to sit in an office all day when it's 60 degrees and sunny out," he laughed.

The weather promised to remain warm through the weekend. More time to exchange that shovel for a rake, or get in deep with spring cleaning, right?

"I'm going to just keep on hacky-sacking," said Charlevoix eighth-grader Phil Morris.

After all, it was spring break, and it shined bright on Charlevoix. However, for those who were homesick on a beach, the weatherman brought back a bit of winter — at least for now.

Old Mason Street school once home to gold fish pond

By Marilyn Boss
Courier columnist

Hometown Chronicles

In the late 1930s and early 40s, I attended school in the building on Mason Street. It was a well built school with terrazzo floors, and the kindergarten room had a play house and a fish pond. The pond was made of tile, with a ceramic fish in the center, which spouted water out of its mouth.

Many a child raised in Charlevoix can recall some incident in which one of the students fell into the pond. It contained beautiful goldfish and little turtles. We had a nap time each day, and brought a small carpet to lay on. At that time, they didn't have any of the fire barrier doors, and the building was a bright, happy place to be in. About 20 years ago, to supposedly save energy, they closed off half of the windows, and so it isn't as light anymore.

The junior and senior high school was next door, in a tall building, with two main floors and many stairs to climb. The restrooms and cafeteria were located beneath it, and a tunnel connected the buildings. The shop was under the main building, along the tunnel. The gym, which was in the 1927 building, was used by everyone.

In 1946, the big boiler that heated the entire school complex split in two. It somehow ran low on water, and when the chief custodian, Ed Scott (Sam Supernaw's grandfather), turned on the water, the boiler split. School was out for three solid weeks.

In later years, Martin Elzinga said they went out to the Old Loeb school house and brought in the small boiler from there to keep the building from freezing. There was a crew of men that worked around the clock throwing coal in this small boiler, which was able to keep the building just above 32 degrees. A huge, new boiler was shipped in, and the whole side of the boiler room had to be removed to get the old boiler out and the new one in.

My grandchildren love to hear the story of my close call with a car when I was in kindergarten. At that time, 4-year-old children were allowed to attend school. A ruling was put in the next year, to make the age of entrance 5 years.

One winter day, I was on my way home to my grandmother's, across the street from school. Several kids were sliding down the snowbanks into the street, and it looked like great fun. I climbed up, and was having a grand time, when all of a sudden I was in big trouble. A car came along, and as I was sliding down the bank, it was right there.

The wide belt on my coat caught on the upright, protruding part of the bumper, and held me there, helpless. I can remember looking sideways and seeing the tire right by my head, rolling along as car and I went down the street. A woman standing along the road yelled out to the driver, and he slowed down and stopped. I was so frightened that I jumped up and ran to my grandmas. She asked what had happened, and I said a boy pushed me, trying to cover up my wrong-doing in my fright.

My grandchildren are impressed with the idea that God spared my life, and that they wouldn't be here if I hadn't made it. I also am thankful that I have had so many happy years in this lovely town.

Free trees available for planting

Ten free white pine trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation this April.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"The white pines will add year round beauty to your home and neighborhood," said foundation president John Rosenow. "They are fast-growing landscape trees with soft needles and graceful branching. You can use them as specimen trees or as a privacy screen or windbreak ... even as a beautiful sheared hedge."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the foundation's bimonthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution by Wednesday, April 30, to Ten Pine Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, Neb., 68410.

The Beaver Islander pulls into port alongside the remaining ice during the ferry's first trip to Beaver Island April 9. The arrival of the ferry signifies spring for island residents.

Islanders' delight

Waterway open for transportation

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Justin Martin has been anxiously waiting to see the Beaver Islander pull into the island's harbor. He knows that any day now, his new birthday bike will be unloaded from its hull.

The 10-year-old Beaver Island boy was excited April 9 when all the island's students traveled to the dock to see the ferry's white and green body float in for the first time this year.

The countdown began. His shining bike would be coming ashore soon.

Like Justin, many island residents have been waiting for the clearing of the ice. Each year, the Coast Guard Cutter Acacia signifies the first sign of spring as it breaks up the hardened water in the harbor. After the wind clears away the chunks of ice, the Beaver Islander slips in with groceries to restock stores, lumber and other building supplies for contractors and automobiles for those who store their cars on the mainland during the winter months.

"There's always something you want to get over," said Colleen Martin, Justin's mother.

When Lake Michigan is frozen, supplies can only be brought over by plane. But there are items that can't be squeezed into the winged transportation. Also, it's more economical to transport large quantities of goods by ferry.

Bill McDonough spent the end of last week unpacking the first major delivery of the year for McDonough's Market.

"We're still busy throwing it on the shelves," he said Thursday, of the pop, chips, meet, produce and health care items. "We had 10 tons brought over."

McDonough said he stocks up in December to get his customers through the winter.

"But it's always a guesstimate on the supplies that are going to be required to last the winter," he said. "It's a shot in the arm for everybody to get their businesses going."

There were two Spartan trucks at the Charlevoix dock unloading groceries for the island's stores Wednesday morning. Amid the sunshine of the cool day, the ferry carried four passengers and a full load of goods to the 50-square mile island by 1:20 p.m.

"It kind of feels like spring has sprung now that the

New boat named after old-time ferry

By this time next year, the Beaver Islander will have a new partner, and the Emerald Isle will be more than a memory.

The Beaver Island Boat Co.'s newest vessel is being named after a ferry from years ago. However, it will be the grandest ferry Charlevoix has known.

The Emerald Isle almost doubles the company's cargo capacity. It will hold 20 cars and up to 300 people. This compares to the Beaver Islander's ability to haul 10 cars and 200 people.

The $3.6 million ferry is currently being built in East Boothbay, Maine, by Washburn and Doughty. It is expected to arrive in Charlevoix in early September, said Beaver Island Boat Co. Director Lynn DeGrow.

"It will look similar to the Beaver Islander, just bigger," he said.

The stern-loading boat is the greatest change from ferries of the past.

With the help of a new lift at Bridge Park, semi trucks will be able to back trailers onto the ferry and unhook them. This ends the need to unload the trailer and reload it once the goods reach the island.

People needing large items taken to the island currently have to rent a barge. In the fall, they will be able to use the ferry.

The Emerald Isle, which is 130 feet long, 39 feet wide and has an eight-foot draft, will be taking the place of the South Shore, the company's oldest operating ferry. It can hold five vehicles and 120 people. DeGrow said the South Shore might be sold.

The Beaver Island and Emerald Isle will both be actively used next year, much more than the South Shore has been. Which ferry will be taking trips to the island will depend of how much space is needed for cargo and passengers, DeGrown said. This includes a decision regarding the initial spring run.

The Beaver Islander could continue to take the first trip of the year.

"This time of year, you don't have many people," DeGrow said. However, the need for goods could call on the Emerald Isle.

On her first seasonal voyage, the Islander did transport every item requested by island residents.

The arrival of the new Emerald Isle will be celebrated with a christening by Mary Bert McDonough, the oldest woman on the island. Her grandmother christened the original Emerald Isle.

Seven candidates vie for three board seats

Two incumbents and five newcomers have thrown their hat in the ring for three spots that are up for grabs on the Charlevoix school board.

One incumbent, board president Mary Lee Campbell, has decided not to run for re-election. Because of this, it is possible that half of the board could be replaced.

Petitions announcing candidacy were due in the superintendent's office by April 4.

Incumbents Joan E. Buday and Patrick J. McKeown, Jr., will be vying for the two four-year terms against challengers K. Scott Boss, Dennis S. Halverson, and Mark Alan Way.

A special election will be held to fill out the one year remaining on Sulane Hamilton's tenure, which was temporarily filled in March when the board appointed McKeown to the board. Dwight M. Boss and Michael MacMillan are running for the opening.

The election will be Monday, June 9.

Pirate paints picture of determination

By Leah Dulaney
Charlevoix High School Productions Student

The Rayder emblem is on everything from the gym floors in the middle and high schools, to student planners and basketball jerseys. But of all the different Rayder emblems there are, which one is the original?

Back in 1936 there was no such thing as the Charlevoix Rayders. Some teachers thought that it was time for Charlevoix to have its own team name, mascot and colors. The basketball teams should have something on their jerseys.

So, the high school staff had an assembly in the high school gym, which was on the second floor of a brick building near the current middle school. It was announced that an artist was needed to draw a school mascot. Sitting near the back — freshmen sat in front and seniors in the back — was junior Louis "Lou" Orlowski, who loved to draw. After the student body decided that they wanted a pirate, one of the teachers, Stuart "Irish" Coleman, asked Lou to draw a school emblem of a pirate.

The students and staff decided that they wanted to be called "The Red Rayders" and chose their school colors as red and white.

Since everyone was fond of coach Ray Kipke, Coleman suggested that they spell their "Raider" with a "y" in honor of him.

Lou currently lives in Charlevoix and can still draw an authentic Rayder, as he proved by drawing one while I was interviewing him. While he sketched, he described how to find an authentic Rayder. Most obvious is that he has no beard, there are lines below this left eye, a wound in this forehead and a mustache. Lou said he gave the Rayder obvious personality traits.

"The man must have been left handed because (the dagger) went left to right," Lou said. According to its creator, the Rayder "wasn't a bad looking fella. But, by the square chin he must have determination; the wound signifies the fighter that he is."

boat is running," McDonough said.

The ferry will be leaving Charlevoix for the island three days a week throughout April and goes to daily runs in May.

Unlike last year, when the ferry left a week later than scheduled, the Beaver Islander began its season of transporting two days early.

For residents, the first run of the season signifies an awakening of island life.

"It was the highlight of a long winter," said Richie Gillespie, who was raised on the island. "It's the biggest signal of spring that we know of. It puts smiles on a lot of faces."

Events in brief

Grange celebrates Grange Week

The week of April 26 is designated as Grange Week throughout the state and the nation.

At 4 p.m. Sunday, April 20, Barnard Grange will begin the week with a hymn sing at the Grange Hall. During the hymn sing a Community Service Award will be presented to a non-Granger who has distinguished him or herself in the community. Coffee and cookies will follow the program.

From 5-7 p.m. Wednesday, April 23, the Junior Grangers will be serving a pancake supper at the Grange hall.

At 8 p.m. Saturday, April 26, the Barnard Grange will hold a square and round dance at the Northwest Academy, with all proceeds going to the school.

Music will be by performed by "The Tag-A-longs." Coffee and finger food will be served during the evening.

There will also be a Grange Week Display in the window of The Clothing Co. The public is invited to all the events.

Middle school students present play

Charlevoix Middle School is presenting its spring play, Little Women, at 7 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, April 16 and 17, in the middle school gym.

There are 30 seventh- and eighth-graders in the production, which should last about two hours. Tickets are available at the middle school office or at the door. They cost $3 for adults and $1.50 for students and senior citizens.

St. Mary School registration scheduled

Registration for prekindergarten, kindergarten, and grades 1-5 at St. Mary School is under way. St. Mary's has recently been reaccredited by the Michigan Association of Non-Public Schools.

St. Mary's School offers a prekindergarten program for children who turn 4 years old by Sept. 1, 1997. Boys and girls who will be 5 by Dec. 1, 1997, are eligible for the kindergarten program. Eighteen students will be accepted into each class.

Open House and registration for prekindergarten and kindergarten will be held from 6:30 -7:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 24. Parents need to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization records when they register and are welcome to bring their children.

Registration for grades 1-5 will take place from 9 a.m. - 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, during the month of April.

For further information, call the school office at 547-9441.

Charter school taking student applications

Northwest Academy will have open enrollment weekdays from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. April 14-28, at 105 W. Hurlbut. There are openings in grades 6-12.

Applications will be available at the school office Monday - Friday. Students currently enrolled and their siblings have priority. If the number of applications for enrollment exceeds the number of openings, random selections will be made to fill the available slots.

Staff will attend several training sessions throughout the summer as well as training in the school on integrating technology into the curriculum.

With the addition of new computers Northwest will be expanding its offerings to include additional math, computer and science classes.

Anyone interested in visiting the school or obtaining additional information may call 547-9000.

Northwest Academy is a public school; there is no tuition; and, admissions are granted without regard to race, national origin, gender or religion.

Fifth-graders inducted into those who know how to say no

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Amanda Boss doesn't want black lungs, to be beaten or have bad breath.

And through a 17-week Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) program, she has learned how to say no to the pressures that prompt young people into wrongdoing.

"I learned in D.A.R.E. that I can stay drug-free if I really try with my whole heart," Amanda, 11, said Friday, as she read from her winning essay at the fifth-grade D.A.R.E. graduation. Local police officers and principals lauded the students with applause, certificates and a luncheon for completing the program.

Amanda's father has watched four of his children go through the program.

"It gives them a way to say no that the parents don't know how to explain," Bud Boss said, noting the professional training of the the officers. And fifth-grade is not too soon to address the issue of drugs and violence. His daughter told him Thursday that some of her classmates have already smoked cigarettes.

"This is a big step in your life," said high school principal, Gary Grundman during the graduation ceremony. "You're old enough to know what makes right and wrong. But sometimes knowing and doing are two different things. This is what D.A.R.E. is all about. We all know how to say no."

Officer Jim Schlappi has spent three years in the schools teaching students how to say no to drugs and violence.

The students walked through a procession of congratulations in their black D.A.R.E. T-shirts as police officers and principals shook their hands before parents and fourth-graders who would be involved in the program next year.

"You're a big part of your success and trying to make our community a better place to live," Halverson said, noting that drugs and violence has become a part of life and that the cooperation of young people, police and parents is needed to minimize the problem.

One approach Schlappi uses in class to show the students the far-reaching effects of drug use is ask who all has had something stolen from them. After the students raise their hands, he discusses how most drug uses turn to crime to fund their habit.

"Heavy drug users can't afford the stuff," he said following the ceremony Friday. "They have to go out and rip things off."

During the weekly D.A.R.E. program two mascots, Darren and Darryl, are used in class to help the students relax, and to reward them for participating in discussions. One way young people resist drugs is by becoming more assertive.

Schlappi said he has seen many positive returns on his time spent in schools teaching children about drugs and violence. He's established relationships with stu-

Ballot full of options for future school board members

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix is fortunate enough to have seven candidates competing for three school board seats in the coming election. They are Joan Buday, Patrick McKeown, Jr., Scott Boss, Dennis Halverson, Mark Alan Way, Dwight "Ike" Boss and Michael MacMillan.

We commend each person who has filed a petition to run for the board in the Monday, June 9, election. Even though many voters will visit the polls because of two bond proposals that will accompany board elections, we believe that who represents voters during future meetings is equally as important.

Being a school board member comes close to a thankless job. There is hours of reading necessary before each meeting and plenty of political pressure. Few people attend meetings until a problem is spotted. Then, suddenly, extra chairs are needed as community members seek answers for questions and concerns.

The board will be facing some important decisions in the months to come. The bond issues on the ballot — if passed — will provide for two sinking funds, one to pay for 117 acres on M-66 and the other to pay for major school building repairs.

Last September, Charlevoix said no to a $22 million building project that would have built a new high school, turned the current high school into a middle school and paid for renovations and expansion at the elementary building.

The school board must devise and present the community with a building plan that is practical and conceivable.

Nobody wants to pay more taxes. And the lack of trust between the community and the school board has not encouraged voters to back a building plan.

Anyone who has been unhappy with the decisions of the school board can speak now or forever hold their peace. The polls will be open and absentee ballots available.

A possible change in three of six board seats could change the personality of the board. A minimum of one new person will be on the board, as one one-year term and two four-year terms need to be filled. Lansing is in a flurry when this type of influence is at stake.

We hope that Charlevoix will be in a flurry collecting information on each school board candidate so they can cast an educated vote on more than how much money is at stake.

This election, when looked at for the big picture, means more than a few mills. It will shape education in Charlevoix for years to come.

We will be printing information on the candidates and their views. Anyone with specific questions they would like answered should send them to the Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to volunteers for hours of help

Editor:

Since April, the "Month of the Young Child," is here, it is important for all of us who work with young children to thank all of those who help support us in myriads of ways as we are in the trenches working with young children. One of those groups that I would like to personally thank is the N.M.C.P.C.A.N. ( the Northwest Michigan Council for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect).

This group consists of many individuals who in addition to contributing greatly in their chosen vocations also come together to offer encouragement, support, educational, and preventive services.

On behalf of all of us in the early childhood education field, as well as those of us who are in the parenting process, a huge thank you for all you do collectively as well as individually.

Sincerely,
Pat McCoy, program director
The Appleyard Child Care and Preschool Learning Center

Grandvue thanks volunteers

Editor:

During this National Volunteer Week, Grandvue Medical Care Facility extends a sincere thank you to all our volunteers for their many generous and caring efforts made this past year toward the benefit of our residents. We value and appreciate their involvement.

Sincerely,
Cheryl Sothard,
Grandvue activity director

Baseball team shows appreciation

Editor:

The Charlevoix High School baseball team recently returned from a week in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they attended a baseball school in preparation for the upcoming season. The team would like to extend their thanks and appreciation to the hundreds of individuals and businesses who contributed financial support to make this trip possible.

Special thanks go to Paul Bunyan Lanes for allowing us to organize a bowl-e-thon in February that raised over $5,000. Thank you to the Sports Boosters of Charlevoix for their generous contributions.

Special thanks also go to Tom Kennedy, Sr., for soliciting business donations from the following: Crown Motors, Pat McKeown Ford, Pat's Used Cars, Northern Michigan Welding, Haggards Plumbing & Heating, Sears of Charlevoix, Wojan Window & Door, Klooster Equipment, Wolohan Lumber, Waste Management of Northern Michigan, and Judy's Restaurant. These businesses made generous contributions to the team totaling over $1,200.

The players would also like to thank the many contributors to our pop can drive, where they gathered over 4,800 pop cans in a single afternoon and individuals who purchased the Rayder discount cards that were sold in conjunction with the Spanish Club. Thanks to the donations from the community members and local businesses, the team raised over $12,000 to pay for their trip to Florida.

We would like to extend our appreciation to the parents who drove and helped with chaperoning and supervising the trip. These parents included: Bud and Marilyn Sliger, Rick and Nancy Grunch, Jeff Bakker, Ed Evans, and Bob Anzell.

While in Florida, the 11 varsity players and 8 junior varsity players that made the trip, made the most of their five days by spending 34 hours on the ball fields of Playball Baseball Acade-

Seminar hour not a waste of time

Editor:

Charlevoix High School is making amazing efforts in an attempt to bring students and faculty together. During the 1996-97 school year, administrators, clubs, and students have individually put in their time and work to make leaning at C.H.S. more exciting and educational. One way that people are successfully accomplishing this is through utilizing their seminar hours more creatively and productively. Although seminar is believed to be an entire 85 minutes of free time, there has been quite a lot of change this year in how it is run.

Seminar, which takes place twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays, allows students and teachers to develop closer relationships. Not only is seminar being used for academic one-on-one assistance, but it is also being used for exciting and rewarding activities. Some recent activities include the student/faculty volleyball tournament, career days, and Points of Pride Assemblies. By implementing activities such as these, C.H.S. continues to be a learning institution with fresh ideas attempting to help students enjoy learning and being in school.

On March 13, 1997, Charlevoix High School's student council hosted its 2nd Annual Student/Faculty Volleyball Tournament. Taking place during seminar, students and teachers were given a chance to compete in an exciting tournament. Surprisingly, the teachers walked away with a victory over the disappointed seniors. Activities such as this tournament give students a chance to get to know their teachers on a more personal level.

Once a month during the first 20 minutes of seminar, the high school schedules a career day. On this day, different men and women from a variety of local professions come to the high school to inform students on the different options that await them after high school and college. Students are given a chance to choose who they would like to listen to and then are allowed to ask questions. It is a great opportunity for students to discover where they can apply what they are learning in school.

In addition to fun activities and serious planning for the future, Charlevoix High School also likes to reflect on the positive aspects of the past. The Points of Pride Assemblies are designed to bring the entire student body and faculty together, so that students may be recognized for their accomplishments, both in and outside of school. During these assemblies coaches, leaders, and advisors are welcomed to announce the accomplishments of their students, and the entire school can recognize the great involvement of their peers in a variety of different activities.

Activities such as these create a more positive atmosphere. It should be the goal of all schools in the state to try and improve the relationships between students and teachers and to also inspire and recognize students achievements. The seminar hour, which is often looked upon as a block of wasted time, should instead be viewed as a chance for students to learn more about each other, themselves, and their teachers. Seminar hour is much more than a block of extra homework time, it is a time to prepare for your future and to applaud others for a job well done.

Women's Resource Center thanks volunteers

Editor:

National Volunteer Week is being celebrated April 13-19 this year, which makes this an opportune time for the Women's Resource Center to recognize the many wonderful people who are involved in this agency. The WRC was founded in 1977 by a group of volunteers. These women gathered together and decided that northern Michigan needed a support system for women and families. It is because there were so many dedicated and caring people in the community that the idea carried on through the past 20 years and has become so successful.

We are proud to report that volunteer support is still growing. The center has more than 80 women and men volunteers who worked more than 3,200 hours in the 1995-96 fiscal year, saving the agency over $21,035.

Our diverse team of volunteers plays a vital role in the success of the WRC:

— Board members donate their time to assist in planning and governing the agency's activities.

— The Gold Mine Resale Shop is well staffed by volunteers who assist customers and ring up sales that financially support the many services provided by the center.

— The Domestic Abuse Program, serving Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Antrim, and Otsego Counties, is supported by intervention advocates who staff the 24-hour crisis line and spend quality time with families staying at our safe home.

— The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) provides important assistance for special projects.

— Our volunteers possess many talents. They style hair, wallpaper and paint, make draperies, stack wood, help with fund-raisers, do household maintenance, and perform secretarial tasks.

Our volunteers also possess some outstanding similarities:

— A willingness to give of themselves for the benefit of others and,

— A desire to make a positive difference in our community.

On behalf of the WRC, a sincere thank you to our past and present volunteers. We truly couldn't do it without you.

Sincerely,
Jamie Winters, Shelter Coordinator
Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan

Charlevoix woman celebrates a healthy, happy 104th birthday

By Janenne Irene Harrington

Frances Durance gets an early gift days before her 104th birthday.

Frances Durance doesn't know what all the fuss is about.

Tuesday was her 104th birthday. There was a family party over the weekend and a public party Tuesday. She was presented with a corsage of pink carnations. Helium balloons floated over her favorite chair. And cake and coffee greeted guests.

"I don't think I deserve this," Frances said with her small voice. "I don't think I've earned too much popularity."

"I don't know anyone who doesn't love her," said Shirley Tornga, who once sat under the instruction of Frances in an Ellsworth classroom. Shirley remembers Miss Durance as one of her favorite teachers.

Frances is tickled by all the attention.

As she enters yet another year on earth, she gets a little laugh out of thinking about "beating most people."

"I'm thankful I've got my mind," she said, briefly discussing how awful it is when older people lose "their faculties."

Frances still files her tax return, pays bills, balances her checkbook and writes her own letters. She is not on medication, just the collection of herbs she takes for whatever ails her or the mixture she makes for a cup of tea each morning.

"I was raised on herbs," she said. Her mother used herbs where most modern-day parents would run to the doctor. Home remedies were the norm.

Mary Ann Beer Farkas

Mary Ann Beer Farkas, of Charlevoix, will celebrate her 80th birthday at an open house hosted by her children from 1-4 p.m. Saturday, April 19, at the Charlevoix Senior Center, which is located on the corner of Carpenter and Sheridan streets.

She was born in Grand Rapids on April 21, 1917, and raised in the Muskegon-Fruitport area. She moved to Charlevoix in 1956 with her now late husband, Bill.

Mary Ann enjoys crafts and bingo, and is known for her cooking, baking and catering.

Her children are Rose (Jerry) Lusk, of Blairesville, Ga., Bill (Mary) Farkas, of Lansing, Bea (Bill) Parton, Shirley Wilkinson, and Gene Farkas, all of Charlevoix, and Judy (Pete) Vander Ark, of Ellsworth.

She has two stepsons, Roger (Evelyn) Farkas and Larry (Diane) Farkas, all from Breckenride, Mich.

She also has 13 grandchildren; seven step grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; 12 step great-grandchildren; and three brothers and four sisters, all of whom live in the Grand Haven area.

60th Anniversary

Charles and Margaret Duerr

Charles Anthony Duerr and Margaret McPherson Wellwood, of 209 E. Dixon Chalevoix, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary during a reception following the service Sunday, April 13, at the First Congregational Church on State Street.

The couple was married April 10, 1937, at St. Michael's Parish House in Flint by the Rev. Thomas Martin, of St. Joseph's Seminary in Grand Rapids.

They have lived in Charlevoix since the early 1940s. Charles was formerly a purchasing agent and treasurer for Foster Boat Co., field representative for the Michigan United Fund and currently is an author of double-crostic puzzles, which are published by Simon & Schuster. His wife was a homemaker, involved in retail sales at Leiberman's and retail management at Fay's Dress Shop.

Their children are Carrie Venema, of Kalamazoo, Susie Logie, of Grand Rapids, Charles "Tony" Duerr, of Ypsilanti, and John Duerr, of Canton, Mich.

They have nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Scouts report damaged line

While on their 10-mile bike ride, a requirement for second class rank, three boy scouts from Charlevoix Troop 6 discovered a power line that was dislodged from an insulator. The line had fallen and was arching against the bottom of the cross arm. They reported it to a member of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, who then notified 9-1-1.

By discovering and promptly reporting the faulty power line, the scouts prevented a possible fire or downed power line. The scouts who reported the incident are David Ruehle, Nick Miller and Cody McCary.

Farm girl attributes health to good, honest living

Frances took her place in a family of 10 children in the family farmhouse in 1893. The 20-acre farm still harvests hardwoods from the corner of Mercer and Waller Road. Her parents moved to the property in 1889.

Childhood in Charlevoix was not like today. There were no video games and school activities for every interest. Frances and her five brothers and four sisters hoed the earth, pulled weeds by hand, cultivated with a horse and picked strawberries before being able to run through the hills around their home.

The first time Frances saw a sunset she was about 14-years-old. She traveled to the lake side of Mt. McSauba to fish with her brother after the day's work was done. While they were out on the boat, the sun began to reach for the water. The orange horizon was frightening.

"The sunset was so gorgeous, we got scared," she said. "I thought the world was coming to an end."

The children quickly took their boat back to shore and headed for the safety of home. Until that outing, Frances had always watched the yellow sun dip behind Mt. McSauba at about 4 p.m.

Most of Frances' days were filled with school and chores. She graduated from Charlevoix school in 1912, when she began studying to become a teacher. After graduating from Ypsilanti State Normal, she would lead children on their educational journeys for 30 years. Math and science were her specialties.

> "The sunset was so gorgeous, we got scared I thought the world was coming to an end."
> — Frances Durance

Each summer, Frances would return home to help on the farm and take care of her family. She never married in all her travels between towns and school districts.

"That's the one thing I avoided," she said. "Nobody was telling me how good it was."

The wars came and went, and Frances helped fill the early shortage of teachers. Charlevoix progressed from having dirt streets and wooden sidewalks to paving set paths for the onslaught of automobiles. Gone were the days when Frances' father would take strawberries to area resorts via horse and wagon. Gone were the trains and double-decked boats that brought visitors into town. Round Lake Channel was progressively widened and various bridges came and went.

The swing bridge was knocked off its track when the Illinois and Manitou tried to race each other through the channel. Frances said that because both boats were in port at the same time, the Manitou had to unload its passengers across the Illinois. The captains couldn't agree on who would leave first, both wanting to continue the day's journey.

"The captain of the Manitou said he was on the outside so he should leave first," Frances recalled. "And the captain of the Illinois said he came in first so he should leave."

As the boats raced for the channel, they ran into the bridge, knocking it off its track. A temporary bridge had to be put in for townspeople to cross the channel while repairs were being made.

In 104 years, Frances has a spectrum of stories to tell, including her traveling to Europe and walking across the Mackinac Bridge when she was 80.

Since retiring and coming home to Charlevoix in 1958, Francis has cared for her mother, sisters, cousins, second cousins and a nephew as they were ailing. Frances claims that her main purpose for living so long was to care for her family. Her last sister died in 1992. After years of giving, Frances needed a little help of her own last summer when she fell and broke her arm. She moved in with Reva Fuller, who has an adult foster care home near East Jordan.

Even though Frances still calls the farm home, she plans to stay with Reva as long as possible.

"I get good care," she said. "It's comfortable."

A major part of Frances' comfort is her good health, which she attributes to never smoking, never drinking and "a good honest living."

Overall, Frances is carefree. Life isn't worth worrying about, she said. It's what she handles as it comes — one day at a time.

Hospital offers medical scholarships

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild is offering a medical scholarship of $400 per year for a maximum of four years.

This scholarship is open on a competitive basis to high school graduates who wish to enter approved schools for any phase of practice within the field of medicine, and to anyone wishing to further their education in the health care field.

The applicant must reside in the area served by the hospital, and must have applied for admission to an accredited school before applying for the scholarship and be accepted by the time of the award.

Deadline for applications is June 1, 1997.

Anyone wishing to apply should contact their high school counselor or write: Scholarship Committee, Attention Kathy Johnson, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

dents and parents, been able to talk to older siblings who are mistreating children when using drugs and establish a foundation for all students before they go into middle school.

This week, Schlappi is beginning a program in the high school. He said it will be a continuation of the elementary program. He expects many students to challenge his message, as they defend their drug choices.

D.A.R.E. was started in 1983 as a way of educating children. Scare tactics were not working.

A middle school program is also being planned. Schlappi said that most kids start going to parties in middle school. And that's when he sees attitudes about drugs begin to change.

"Say no for yourself and for your friends," were Grundman's final words to the students who are middle-school bound.

Jeune Jacquelyn Skelton

Jeune Jacquelyn Skelton, 73, of Largo, Fla., and formerly Charlevoix, died April 7, 1997, at the Bayfront Medical Center.

She was born June 30, 1923, in Detroit. She moved to Largo from Charlevoix in 1985, after years of being a homemaker.

Mrs. Skelton was a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Auxiliary, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, bridge club, Shakespeare Club, and Waterfront Art Fair Committee.

She is survived by a son, Jeffrey Skelton, of Colorado Springs, Colo.; daughters Susan Hansen, of Fenville, Mich., Patricia Skelton, of Tequesta, Fla., Wendy Skelton, of Lake Park, Fla., Vicki Skelton, of Largo, Fla., and Paige Hill, of Lawrence, Kans.; brother Clayton Joyce, of Cameron Park, Calif.; sister Betty Whitmer, of West Bloomfield, Mich.; and five grandchildren.

Arrangements were handled by the American Family Cremation Society.

Enos Steven Wasageshik

Enos Steven Wasageshik, 74 of East Jordan, died April 11, 1997, at his daughter's home in Rapid City. Funeral Mass was Monday, April 14, 1997, at St. Mary's Catholic Church. The Rev. Thomas Neis officiated and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Wasageshik was born March 23, 1923, on Beaver Island, the son of William and Agnes (Bomaway) Wasageshik. He was an Army veteran of World War II and had served in the Aleutian Islands as a combat soldier. He worked most of his life as a commercial fisherman and had also worked a mason and carpenter. In 1985 he graduated from the Minnesota School of Art having made the dean's list. He enjoyed painting and painted in acrylics and oils.

He was married to Clara Mae (John) Wasageshik, and she preceded him in death in 1985.

Mr. Wasageshik is survived by two daughters, Karen L. Wasageshik of Kewadin, and Sharon K. and her husband Jerry Callaway of East Jordan; two sons, Ivan W. Wasageshik of East Jordan, and Fred B. Wabanimkee of Charlevoix. Enos was blessed with 12 grandchildren.

He is also survived by three sisters; Edna Meyers and Mable Archer, of Boyne City, and Elizabeth Jordan, of Hood River, Ore. He was preceded in death by two brothers; William and Julius Wasageshik and one sister Eva Shambow.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix County Hospice or to Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix. Envelopes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where a rosary was recited Sunday, April 13.

Hospital hosts children's health fair

The seventh annual Children's Health Fair will be held from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, April 19, at the Petoskey Middle School, which is located at 801 Northmen Drive, next to the high school.

This year, more than 34 community agencies will be participating in the free event, which recognizes April as Month of the Young Child.

The event targets children, newborn through 12-years-old, and encourages them and their families to become educated about good health practices.

Children will be treated to a day of entertainment and visits to booths filled with information for parents and fun activities for kids. Face painting, balloons and visits from cartoon characters will also be part of the fun.

As part of the fair, free children's vaccinations will be given. Interested parents must bring the child's immunization records with them in order to be eligible.

The following is a schedule of the entertainment at this year's fair:

The choir room:

— 10-10:45 a.m. Mary Bowman, sing-a long; 11-11:45 a.m. Patty Clark, storytelling; noon-12:45 p.m. Eddie the Magician; and 1-1:45 p.m. Sean Ryan, sing-a-long.

Auditorium:

— 10:15 a.m. Crazy Richard, juggler; 11:15 a.m.-noon Teen Troupe Theater; 12:15-1 p.m. Tom E. Tropic; and 1:15-2 p.m. Northern Lights.

Church invites all to goodbye bash

The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix invites the community to an "I Love Lucy" celebration to say farewell for a time to Lucy Martin.

She is moving to a warmer climate to be near her children soon.

The gathering will be held from 3-5 p.m. Sunday, April 20, in the fellowship hall at the church. Guests are asked to bring a greeting card and memories to help celebrate the years she been part of the community.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

An upcoming major event is "By Invitation Only." Unfortunately, you have not received one of those invitations. How does it make you feel?

"Well," you say, "that depends on what the invitation is for. If it's for a fund-raising banquet, or the 'preferred customer' sale at one of those high priced stores, who cares?" But if the invitation happens to be offered by people you highly regard to a function you'd almost kill to attend, you feel slighted ... left out ... excluded.

On the other hand, if you've been honored to receive an invitation to an exclusive function it makes you feel gratified ... counted in ... included ... somebody. You are honored, valued, esteemed.

This is to inform you that you have received the greatest invitation any human being can ever receive. It is the invitation to know Almighty God, the creator through Jesus Christ his Son. In fact, the invitation is personally delivered to you by Jesus Christ himself, right to your door. He says to you, "Here I am. I stand at the door (of your life) and knock. If anyone (you in particular) hears my voice (of invitation) and opens the door, I will come in ..." Revelation 3:20.

God the Father does not simply make a general announcement. He extends a personal invitation to you. You are included, not excluded. You are esteemed by him and counted worthy. He has honored you with the invitation.

Accept him into your life. Receive him as your savior, friend and brother. Attend the celebration held in honor of him every Sunday at your church. He'll be there and he'll be glad to see you.

'Friends' select manager for pool

Todd A. Welscott was named this week as manager of the Charlevoix Community Pool by Charlevoix Friends of the Pool. He will begin his duties in early May, following graduation from Central Michigan University.

Welscott majored in commercial recreation with a minor in business management. He has extensive work and intern experience. He is a member of American Swimming Coaches Association and National Federation of Interscholastic Officials Association.

He is certified by the American Red Cross as a lifeguard and lifeguard instructor, professional rescuer, and as a CPR and First Aid instructor. Currently, he is an aquatic intern for the CMU Campus Recreational Services. Intern duties include personnel management and training, and drilling lifeguards and aqua aerobic leaders, special event planning and scheduling.

Previously he worked as a lifeguard and substitute emergency medical technician at Pleasure Island Water Theme Park in Muskegon. He also spent two summers as waterfront director at Sherman Lake Outdoor Center in Augusta, Mich.

Welscott is a native of Spring Lake, Mich., where he was a member of the high school swim team.

Steve Hansen, Friends of the Pool Secretary, explained that Welscott was one of eight people selected from 22 job applicants for personal interviews by a panel.

"The caliber of all those interviewed was exceptional," he said.

The pool will be dedicated Saturday, May 31, following a 5 and 10 K run sponsored by the U.S. Coast Guard to benefit the pool construction fund.

Business in brief

Sound Advice representatives attend Ohio seminar

Edward Buday, Jr., Norm Carlson, and Stacey McGarey, of Buday's Sound Advice, recently attended a regional education seminar sponsored by the Custom Electronic Design and Installation Association.

The two-day training event was held in Cincinnati, Ohio on March 23-24.

Buday, Carlson, and McGarey attended sessions on home theater, home automation and integration systems. Their training included: Home THX by Lucas Films; home theater acoustics; home theater analysis and equalization; whole house signal distribution; real world speaker installation; home control solutions; wiring techniques for single and multi-zone applications; in-wall speaker installation; and revolutionary products that provide lighting, climate, intercom, messaging, and audio systems controls.

Buday's Sound Advice, a founding member of the Custom Electronic Design and Installation Association, specializes in custom audio, media rooms, lighting controls, home automation, and system integration of home electronic equipment.

They have been serving northern Michigan since 1976.

Infant immunization encouraged through local opportunities

This week, National Infant Immunization Week, is a good time to focus on the importance of ensuring that babies are protected against all vaccine preventable diseases.

All infants should begin a series of immunizations beginning at birth. By age 2, they should have received vaccinations to protect them against 10 diseases: Diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw), pertussis (whooping cough), polio, measles, mumps, rubella (German measles), hepatitis B, chicken pox, and Hib meningitis.

Because many people in our country have not seen a case of diphtheria whooping cough, or polio in several generations, they do not realize how much damage these diseases can cause. Some even believe these diseases are a thing of the past and that there is no reason to immunize their children. But these diseases are now infrequent because of improved immunization services and the availability of improved vaccines.

When children aren't immunized, epidemics of these diseases can recur. For example, a major cause of the measles epidemic of 1989-1991 was the failure to vaccinate children on time at 12 to 15 months of age.

This epidemic affected more than 55,000 people in the United States; about 11,000 were hospitalized and about 120 died.

More recently, outbreaks of rubella and, again, measles have occurred in parts of the United States.

The more children who are immunized, the less chance of an epidemic and the less risk for those who may be vulnerable because they are very young, have deficient immune systems, or lack medical care.

In addition to protecting individual children; immunization protects the entire community. Indeed, if it "takes a village to raise a child," it takes the collective choice of parents to immunize their own children to protect an entire village.

Some parents are concerned by stories in the media about the danger of immunizations. In a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association (December 18, 1996), Gary Freed, M.D. concludes that "vaccines have become a widely accepted, beneficial, safe, and effective clinical preventive measure."

All parents and caregivers should make the decision to immunize their children based on the facts. Parents/caregivers should review Vaccine Information Statements available from their health care providers, which discuss the benefits and risks of vaccines. And they should ask their doctors questions about immunizations, including the benefits and risks pertinent to their own child.

Parents/caregivers must be given valid reasons for delaying an immunization. Each health care visit is an opportunity to discuss immunizations and to provide the needed vaccinations. Each visit that does not result in needed vaccination is a missed opportunity for protection of that child and the community.

Please join Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency in celebrating National Infant Immunization Week, April 20-27. The agency, together with the local Kiwanis organizations, will provide evening immunization clinics throughout the district.

Charlevoix open house recognizes volunteers for service

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties celebrates volunteerism with its Second Annual Open House, in Charlevoix.

The open house will be held from 10-11:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 22, in the solarium at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"We are holding an open house in Charlevoix to make it easier for volunteers, agency personnel and community members to attend," said Carla Bufe, program director. "In 1996, Charlevoix RSVP volunteers donated 3,228 hours to area agencies. Among those were the elementary school, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Family Independence Agency, Friends of the Pool, Hospice, Boulder Park Terrace, Charlevoix Senior Center, Charlevoix Public Library, Chip Counseling and the Charlevoix Police Department. This was a monetary savings of $22,596 to local organizations, based on the IRS allotment of $7 per hour for volunteer service."

The open house gives RSVP staff a chance to show their appreciation to the volunteers and agencies who support the program. It also offers an opportunity for the program to introduce itself to the public.

RSVP is committed to involving people, 55 and over, in service to their communities through volunteering for non-profit and public agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Volunteers, agencies and interested persons are all encouraged to attend.

RSVP is sponsored by the Emmet County Friendship Centers and funded by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging and Char-Em United Way.

Rayder offensive player, Jodi Bingham, goes for the goal during the soccer team's Saturday game against Fowlerville. The team stands at 2-2 after beating Class B Gaylord Monday at home.

Soccer team splits games

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The Rayder girls' soccer team ventured to Grand Rapids over the weekend to test their skills against some of the state's best, and came out an impressive split.

The overnight trip, costs of which were defrayed by the girls selling raffle tickets during home basketball games, signals the beginning of a challenging schedule for the Rayders. And the results show that the Lady Rayders are ready for the action.

On Friday, powerhouse Lansing Catholic Central jumped ahead early and downed the Rayders 8-2. Jodi Bingham and Meg Spang scored goals for the Rayders and goalkeeper Kristy Shindorf shined with 17 saves, keeping the score from being worse.

After a night of rest and recuperation, the Rayders rebounded with a suffocating defensive effort and beat Fowlerville 3-0. Lindsey Carland and Carrie Beemon led an aggressive defense, while Shindorf stopped nine shots, including a penalty kick when the game's outcome was still in doubt. Fowlerville is a Class B school.

Jodi Bingham redirected a shot from Katy Conlan for the game's first tally and Nikki Sheldon converted a break away to give the Rayders a two goal halftime lead. Erika Kammermann added a third insurance goal in the second half.

Emily Murray, Taya Drost, Sheldon, and Conlan recorded assists during the two games, which were played in wet and soggy conditions.

The team dropped their season opener Thursday to Elk Rapids, 3-1. The Rayders stand at 2-2 with this week's games being held Thursday, April 17, at Alpena and Saturday, April 19, at Grand Rapids Northview.

Safety tips offered for summer biking

There's nothing quite as enjoyable for children as a ride on their bikes in the spring. And, for safety's sake, parents should remind their children of the rules of the road and make sure a bicycle helmet is standard equipment, AAA Michigan advises.

Most bicyclist deaths result from bicycle-motor vehicle collisions. In Michigan, children under 16 years of age represented about 50 percent of the 28 bicycle deaths involving motor vehicles in 1995. Additionally, 1,400 bicyclists 15 and under suffered injuries from motor vehicle collisions.

"Parents can play a crucial safety role by reviewing safety tips and pointing out potentially dangerous situations," said Jerry Basch, AA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

Basch said that children given permission to ride bikes in the street must be able to handle vehicle-bike situations, and that youngsters under the age of 9 usually are not able to identify and adjust to many dangerous traffic situations.

The auto club offers the following recommendations for avoiding common bicycle and motor vehicle crashes and protecting against serious injuries:

— Wear a helmet. Most serious bicycle injuries are head injuries.

— Stop and look left-right-left before entering the road from a driveway, alley or curb. The bicyclist's sudden entry leaves the motorist too little time to avoid the collision.

— Go with the flow. Ride on the right-hand side — with traffic just like cars do.

— Avoid riding at night, on narrow roads and where highway speeds are over 35 mph. Always use lights and reflectors if you must ride at night. See and be seen.

—See Obey, page 14—

Basketball marathon being played Saturday

Charlevoix will have its own basketball marathon Saturday, April 19, at the high school gym.

The playing field is open to the first 12 teams to register and will run from 7:30 a.m. to about 5 p.m.

Team trophies will be awarded to the first- and second-place teams from the marathon. Other awards will be given to individual winners of the slam-dunk and shoot-out competitions. An inspirational, encouragement time will round out the day.

For more information, call Pastor Mike Dennis at First Baptist Church at 547-4121.

Obey biking road rules

— Be predictable. Always ride in a straight line. When preparing to change lane position, look behind you and yield to overtaking traffic. For making a left turn, give the left-hand signal and when it's safe, move left to the left lane. Give the left-hand signal again and then make your turn when it is safe to do so.

— When riding your bike, obey all traffic signs and signals. At busy intersections, get off your bide and walk across the road as you do when you are a pedestrian.

Historical society seeks memorabelia

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds
Courier columnist

PLAT BOOK
CHARLEVOIX COUNTY

Items like these can appear to some people as trash found during spring cleaning. However, the Charlevoix Historical Society is collecting memorabilia of local history.

With the approach of spring comes the "urge to purge" unused belongings and "old stuff." However, you must remember that your "stuff" could be historically valuable to your local historical society. And I say this only because it can and will happen as people attempt to rid themselves of possessions no longer valuable to themselves, but potentially valuable to the community.

One such event occurred when I was the executive director of the Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum. It was spring and a local resident was preparing to haul many old, but historically valuable items to the curb for the annual free trash pickup. Luckily he thought to call the museum and ask if I wanted to look through his discards before moving it to the curb. Seizing the opportunity to make sure nothing of historical value was being thrown away, I visited the resident and found many items of value. Besides the many old, local merchant calendars, was a volume of the historically valuable 1908 Charlevoix County Plat Map. This book is used extensively by researchers to locate property parcels in the county at the turn of the century. Even better yet, the volume was in mint condition and was immediately put to use by researchers.

Another instance to save important Charlevoix material came later that summer as a relative to the late Rosa Nettleton was cleaning out her past home. After a call to inspect items of potential historical value, I discovered many photographs, paintings, drawings, and wooden sculptures similar to those displayed at the Charlevoix Public Library. Thankful for the chance to display these items to the puhlic for the first time, I scheduled a Rosa Nettleton Art Exhibit in the museum later that same summer.

Lastly and probably the most common discard in this age of videotape are photographs, 8 mm and super 8 mm film, and the projectors used to view them. While videotape is easier and more convenient to create and later view, the longevity of this type of media is limited to about 10 years. This happens because of the fragility of the tape and the inevitable outdating of your videotape player. However your old films will last at least 100 years if stored away from heat and moisture. The historical value of this type of item comes from the content of the film, such as family and school events, parades and local happenings. Additional value comes from the fact that history was being made at the time it was created and is now valuable to younger generations and researchers as they seek to understand the events of the past. Two examples of this are the locally created film collections of the late Louis Edwards and Earl Young, which are housed at the Charlevoix Historical Society. Both are priceless because they document common, everyday events in Charlevoix from the 1930s to the 1970s.

The value of many of your possessions may decrease with age for you, but still hold immense value for the community in which you live.

Please do not hesitate to contact Betsy Reynolds at the Charlevoix Historical Society, 547-0373, if you are discarding items of potential historical value. Your community will appreciate your generosity.

Local tee times take off

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Tiger Woods' impact has crept into the northern Michigan golf scene.

Marc Wilson, golf pro at the Charlevoix Country Club, said that he's usually busy answering phones the Monday after the Masters Tournament. Anxious golfers are wondering when the course is opening. They want to set up tee times.

For some, life begins when the azaleas in Augusta get their say. This year after Woods' stirring domination, Wilson said he was flooded with at least twice as many calls as usual.

"I've never seen anything like it, he's created such an excitement," Wilson said. "The impact he is having will bring in an awful lot of new golfers."

Much of the interest Woods has created will be kindled in the hearts of youth. The Charlevoix Golf Club is beginning a family night this summer on Sunday evenings.

"We want to take advantage of his popularity and get the kids involved," Tom Dorsek, golf pro at the municipal course, said.

Woods' emergence and subsequent excitement could not have come at a better time for local courses. Already buoyed by rave reviews from Golf Digest, which

Music on deck causes concerns

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

City officials are concerned that a gentlemen's agreement with Charles and Virginia Whitney could turn sour down the road.

The Whitney's own Whitney's Oyster Bar on Bridge Street. They are adding a second floor restaurant area, where they plan to have outside entertainment. They have voluntarily agreed to end the entertainment at 11p.m. because of the police chief's concern with noise.

The entertainment area is 20 feet off the ground and in the valley.

"On a July night normal business would probably carry through the whole basin," police chief, Dennis Halverson said. "I have a problem with citing an owner for regular business."

To solve the problem of unknown future owners who may not be cooperative with city officials, council has asked Halverson and city attorney Jim Young to draft an ordinance that will set parameters for outside entertainment. According to Young, however, if Whitneys begins having outdoor entertainment prior to the 60-plus days that it could take to enact an ordinance, it will be grandfathered into current regulations.

The city does have a nuisance ordinance, which Halverson called a "subjective test" for officers.

As the council discussed a possible noise ordinance, mayor Josh Barnes showed skepticism.

"I'd hate to have to enact an ordinance and then have to shut down the fireworks halfway through because it's 11 o'clock," he said.

The discussion started because Halverson hesitated to sign a form for the state Liquor Control Commission that would aid approval for the restaurants. He had previously signed a form supporting the expansion of the business's license to serve the upstairs deck, but had included a condition about an entertainment curfew. Whitney's request was denied.

A second request came to the chief's desk for him to sign without conditions, noting that the commis-

Coach Kanine quits, budget passed

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Jim Kanine, Charlevoix varsity basketball coach for the last eleven seasons, has resigned from his position.

The move was announced to the school board during their meeting Monday as they were voting to approve coaching recommendations for winter sports.

Athletic Director Barry Anderson expressed regret over the resignation.

"He's a fine coach, a fine teacher, and a fine family man," Anderson told the board. "He and his family have given a lot to this system."

The board accepted the resignation with similar regret. It also approved Anderson's recommendations for next year's winter sports, which included no changes other than Kanine's resignation.

Golf mecca opens its greens

ranked golf in Charlevoix and Emmet counties among the best in the country and labeled it a "special piece of heaven," local courses are preparing to swing in a big season.

"We've become a mecca of sorts with Bay Harbor, the Boyne courses and all the beautiful courses in Charlevoix," Dorsek said.

Belvedere golf course got the jump on everybody, opening for play Tuesday, April 15. Golf pro Steve Braun said a few golfers ventured out to take their tax frustrations out on the course. The nine hole Charlevoix municipal golf course opened over the weekend while Dunmaglas and the Charlevoix Country Club will begin offering the first tee times this Saturday, April 26.

As they yell "fore" for the first time, golfers may notice a few changes to area links.

Belvedere golf course has increased their practice tee area by seven times and created three target greens to go along with the driving range.

"It was time to get it up with the quality of the rest of the course," Braun said.

Golfers expecting a challenging round at Dunmaglas may find the play a bit easier than usual. Their second and fourth greens have been enlarged into larger targets and eight sandtraps have been vanquished.

"Ask anybody and they'll say the course may be too hard," Joel Gohlman, general manager of Dunmaglas, said. "Now we'll be just a bit more customer friendly."

Gohlman did joke that the missing bunkers may not be noticed until a shot usually destined to be beached settles into safe green grass.

No major changes are on the horizon for the city course or the Charlevoix Country Club, but during the season's first weeks golfers of the city's course may notice an improved fourth green.

Because it sits underneath trees, snow melts painfully slow on the fourth green in comparison to the others. This winter, Tom Heid, greenskeeper of the course, domed the green with a blue tarp.

He said it increases the temperature by eight degrees underneath and thaws the green out in step with its eight counterparts.

"In the past it's usually two weeks behind the others," Heid said.

The winter past may have been tough on residents' resolve, but golf course proprietors all said courses survived the winter in better shape than usual.

The ground is not yet fully thawed and spots of snow mold can be found, but the early snowfall insulated fairways and greens enough so that they received little ice burn.

Gohlman said a spring rain is in order to tint his course with that greenness that every course desires. Still, area courses appear to be closer to prime conditions then expected for this time of year.

"If we can get two or three weeks of warmer weather, then our greens can be in prime shape," Braun said.

Youngster makes hole-in-one

Hal Foster, 11, gave Charlevoix a reminder of the talent of Tiger Woods when the 11-year-old made a hole-in-one on the third hole at the Charlevoix Golf Course over the weekend. The hole is 160 yards from the tee. Hal used a three wood on the shot, which was witnessed by Matt Kochanny.

Bob Elzerman, Dick Stangis, Tom LaBlance and Dean Parker had Belvedere Golf Course to themselves Friday. Soon, carts will dot the green landscape of area courses.

Events in brief

Artists sought for summer ice cream social

Norwood area artisans and craftspeople are invited to exhibit their wares at the Norwood Ice Cream Social Saturday, July 5.

All artisans are asked to bring their own display furniture and to work at their art or craft during the social, which will run from 1-5 p.m. on the grounds of the Norwood School. There is no booth fee.

If interested in this opportunity to share your talents and taste hand-dipped ice cream on a summer's day, please call Helen Kuhn at 547-0721, by May 1.

School hosts hoedown for fund-raiser

Northwest Academy is hosting a country hoedown 8 p.m. Saturday, April 26, at the school on W. Hurlbut Street.

The square dance fund-raiser is open to the public. Donations will be taken for entrance. The Tag-A-Longs will be performing.

Proceeds will go to fund the school's first graduation ceremony. Seniors John Chase and Andrea Jackson will be the first to receive their diplomas from Northwest.

The fund-raiser is being sponsored by the Barnard Grange and the Northwest Academy Teacher Committee..

School board candidate debate being organized

The local chapter of the League of Women Voters is hosting a candidate forum open to all seven residents running for Charlevoix School Board. The session will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 12, in the high school study hall.

A series of prepared questions will be asked by a forum moderator. Written questions will also be taken from the audience. Each candidate will be given two minutes to respond to each question, with some rebuttal time allowed.

The forum is expected to last about one-and-a-half hours.

State Representative holds local office hours

State Rep. Beverly Bodem, R-Alpena, will be conducting local office hours in Charlevoix from 9-10:30 a.m. Friday, April 18, at the Charlevoix County Building.

For more information, call the lawmaker's office at 1(800)29-BO-DEM.

Ironton Ferry opens

The Ironton Ferry began its season runs Monday. The ferry will run from 6:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. seven days a week.

Fare prices are $2 for cars, 50 cents for walkers and $25 for coupon books.

Spring cleanup days scheduled for township

Charlevoix Township is hosting its annual cleanup days in May. Pickup for the northside will take place Wednesday, May 14, with southside pickup Thursday, May 15.

Trash must be in containers and on the curb by 8 a.m. Wood must be cut shorter than four feet. No regular garbage, leaves, brush or paint cans will be picked up. If trash is not properly contained in boxes, bags or bundles, it will be left.

For more information, call Carol Martin at 547-4611.

Menopause lecture to be held tonight

Janice Griffin, M.D. and Charlotte Michels, M.S.R.N. of the Women's Health and Wellness Center in Petoskey will answer questions about menopause at a free community lecture. This lecture, "Is It Hot In Here or Is It Me?" will be held from 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 23, in the Community Health Education Center, across the parking lot from the main entrance of Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

To check for available seating, please call Northern Michigan Hospital HealthAccess at 1(800)248-6777.

After a backhoe knocked down the remains of Expressions Unlimited last week, most of the rubble was hauled away by Top Rank Disposal. Before leaving little more than a hole in the earth, the remains of the flower shop that burned two days before Valentine's Day included order forms for arrangements, greeting cards, scattered and broken baskets and bent siding.

Beaver Island election will have write-in

Three incumbents and one newcomer have indicated their interest in three seats that are up for grabs on the Beaver Island Community School Board.

Incumbents Denise McDonough and Jonathon "Joddy" Croswhite will be vying for the two four-year terms against challenger Robert Marsh. Only Croswhite's name and Marsh's name will actually appear on the ballot because of an error in recording the expiration date of McDonough's term. McDonough has declared herself a write-in candidate and encourages her supporters to write her in to fill one of the two four-year seats available.

Incumbent John Fiegen is the only candidate on the ballot for the seat to complete the two years remaining on Susan Heller's tenure, which he temporarily filled when Heller resigned from the board last October.

The election will be Monday, June 9, 1997, at the Beaver Island Community School.

Few road projects amount to big bucks

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Portions of three county roads are due for make-overs as the summer heats up.

In Hayes township, a two mile stretch of Old U.S. 31, between Burgess and Murray road, will be repaved. In Eveline township, two different one mile stretches of gravel roads, Ranney Road from Whitfield to M-66 and Mountain Road from Gaunt to Ferry South, will be redone and widened by two feet.

Charlevoix County Road Commission Engineering Manager Fred Welch said that while the three endeavors are set projects, there is no set timeline for their completion.

"I would hate to say June 15 and then not get to it until August 15," he said. "Once the weather breaks we'll do our surveying and go from there."

According to Welch, the projects will cost more than $500,000, with Old U.S. 31 work costing $208,000, Ranney Road $240,000, and Mountain Road $140,000.

The Ranney road project, while the most expensive, will have two-thirds of its price tag covered by a grant by the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians, who will be relocating their community center to Ranney.

The rest of that price tag, as well as the other projects, will be covered through collection of township road millages.

While just over four total miles of roads will be resurfaced in the entire county, Welch said these are not minor projects:

"This is pretty major for the county," he said, "We're talking about almost $600,000. That's a lot of money."

The projects come on the heels of as Welch said a "miserable winter," which iced roads in January and dumped more than 140 inches of snow this winter. Most of the storms, he said, hit the county on weekends forcing overtime and pushing the road commis-

OPINIONS

Driving can be as hazardous in summer as winter

EDITORIAL

Driver beware.

People stay inside a lot when winter covers Charlevoix. And when outside, they move more slowly.

The drying roads and sidewalks has encouraged rapid movement by the people.

Drivers focus of being defensive in the winter. A slick road can cause an uncontrollable slide.

Clear roads does not mean that drivers shouldn't still assess safe speeds for conditions. One summertime situation that warrants special conditions is pedestrians enjoying the outside.

Summer is not the time to relax at the wheel. People are out jogging, walking their dogs and biking.

Children have donned their inline skates, skateboards and whatever else they can use for unlicensed transportation.

The streets of downtown Charlevoix and along outer lying neighborhoods are bustling with activity.

Be alert. Driving defensively.

Three small bikes parked alongside the road should be enough of a warning for a driver to slow down. There are three small bodies to match those bikes wandering nearby. They could step out of the nearby woods without notice.

Don't be in such a hurry that it causes someone injury. Most drivers who hit a pedestrian have their own inner wounds to contend with. The price isn't worth the few minutes saved to get to the next appointment on time or just arrive at home.

Make Charlevoix a safe place to enjoy the beauty of God's country.

Be part of the solution to speeding and recklessness, not part of the problem.

Letters to the editor

Resident responds to invitation to run for school board

Editor:

Several taxpayer-voters have suggested that I be a candidate for a seat on the Charlevoix School Board. I am honored by their suggestion, but I must decline for two reasons:

First, there are many better qualified taxpayer-voters in the district. They either have had children in the school system recently, or do have currently, and therefore are more knowledgeable about all the problems facing the school system.

Second, if I were a member of the school board, I would have less freedom to express my opinions.

I believe the school board is taking the correct path by giving the taxpayer-voter the opportunity to pass or reject the land acquisition issue. That issue and the repairs issue are tied into the board's projected five-year budget and the policy issue of one teacher per 20 students. The board is caught in a no-win situation, in part, of their own making; the 1 to 20 ratio is unrealistic in the face of current circumstances.

The board has, on hand, a $1 million surplus, which they propose to spread over the budget for the next five years to make up the short fall in state aid caused by the departure of students to schools of choice. Obviously, the cash surplus can be used by the board as they deem necessary; i.e. land acquisition, repairs, the budget and personnel layoffs during the next five years, though they propose cuts in non-personnel areas.

If the board applied the cash surplus to the existing repairs needed at the middle and high schools, then the budget would need to be cut, which could only be met by reducing the number of personnel. The annual short fall in state support amounts to about $600,000 per year due to loss of students last year.

If the millage is passed to purchase the land on M-66, the board's intent is to eventually build a new middle school, which would require another millage or bond issue and abandonment of the present facility. If the land acquisition millage isn't passed, then the board will finally understand what the "NO" vote meant last fall.

Sincerely,
Charlie Butcher

Superintendent discusses future move

Editor:

Charlevoix Public Schools' list of accomplishments continues to grow. Over the past several years our school community has worked to build upon existing excellence and enhance the learning taking place in our classrooms. Additional points of pride include our aligned K-12 core curriculum, achievement on state assessment tests, participation of staff and community on school improvement teams, the completion of the technology plan with installation of computer labs and classroom computers, implementation of the high school block schedule with new classes and expanded vocational education programs, and many other accomplishments as noted in our five year Progress Report that was recently distributed. I feel very fortunate to have played a part along with our talented staff.

Recently, I submitted my resume for consideration for the position of superintendent in Bangor Township near Bay City. In light of the Charlevoix Board of Education's not extending my contract beyond the current expiration date of June 1999, I feel it is essential to consider my options in terms of future employment. I owe it to myself and to my family to consider employment security as I think about my future and my career.

Roberta Jackson, Superintendent
Charlevoix Public Schools

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

It was a clear, sunny day and the ice was still licking the shore of our lakes. The road to the new Charlevoix Community Swimming Pool finally looked dry enough to drive over. So I called my neighbor, Bruce MacArthur, and laughingly said, "C'mon, Bruce. Show me the pool."

Now I have to back pedal and admit that many years ago Anne Golski called me on a telephone survey, and asked if I was in favor of the pool. My reply was an emphatic "no." When she asked "why," I replied, "They will never be able to raise the money."

But I didn't count on Bruce's persuasive perseverance, enduring ingenuity, imaginative resourcefulness, energetic stamina, driving vitality, dogged persistence — all kind words for plain bullheadedness!

Driving by the pool these past few months, I reluctantly had to admit that I admired the exterior design.

I liked the roof line and approved of the numerous sliding glass doors, which would bring the outdoors in. Frankly, I was dying to see the inside, but had to wait until the muddy road dried.

When finally, Bruce gave me the tour, I was amazed. It is not only beautiful, but so well planned. Even though there was no water in the pool yet, it looked huge. There are steps leading to an area for small children; there's a long gradual ramp for wheelchairs; and an adjacent spa. The white halls are wide and partially tiled with attractive navy blue, tile trim. The men and women's locker rooms are spacious. There's a special room called the family change room to accommodate people with braces or parents with small children of the opposite sex. Commodious office accommodations for the staff have also been carefully thought through.

There is a $100,000 mortgage yet to pay off, and another $44,000 needs to be raised in cash or pledges.
— Edith Gilbert

All winter so much misinformation regarding the pool was floating around, let's set the record straight. There is no crack in the pool and there never was.

People often asked suspiciously, "Why is it located near the Country Club?" Simple answer — because the country club donated the land.

How was the pool really financed? Five hundred Charlevoixans pledged contributions in cash. Forty businesses donated many thousands of dollars 'in kind,' that means doors, windows, mirrors, counter tops, etc. How much is still owed? To be exact, there is a $100,000 mortgage yet to pay off, and another $44,000 needs to be raised in cash or pledges.

Never mind. Just you wait 'til you see what has been achieved. Now people are jumping on the bandwagon, when they can see this miracle for themselves. The Charlevoix Community Pool is something we can all be terribly proud of.

You can believe it or not, but there is a long list of indomitable spirits, too numerous to mention here, who have hung in there with Bruce, through all the ups and downs, over these many years. They deserve our admiration as well.

Finally, let us just hope and pray for all our sakes, that Bruce MacArthur will rest comfortably on his well deserved laurels now — better yet, on an inflatable, floating raft in the pool — for the balance of his more than energetic life.

Book Shelf

By Dianne Foster
Bridge Street Book Shop

It never ceases to amaze me how we happen upon excellent books. Last month a young lady came into the Book Shop requesting to hang an event poster in the window. On her way out, she turned back and said, "I was at my doctor's office and started reading a book someone had left in the waiting room. I can't remember the title, or author, but it might have scarlet in the title."

Mind you, this is more detail than we sometimes get. Further prompting revealed that the book was paperback and had cursive writing on the cover. We called the physician's office. The book's owner had returned to claim it, but the receptionist added that the book was red. With our clues we jumped into a computer search of Books in Print. We quickly narrowed our search to a couple of possible titles. I called Tyndale House Publishers and the lady who answered was kind enough to pull a copy of "The Scarlet Thread" by Francine Rivers from the warehouse shelf and describe it. Our customer excitedly announced, "That's it! That's the one!"

We ordered the book. Well, actually, several copies. One for her, one for me, and a few for the shelf. Witnessing such enthusiasm, I knew at that moment what my spring break reading would be.

This young lady had barely gotten into "The Scarlet Thread" and her desire to finish it was so strong. If it wasn't a treasured book it might have been abandoned in the physician's office, but it's owner had returned for it. These events, plus the story line, piqued my curiosity.

How could a woman of the 90s and a young pioneer on the Oregon Trail share a remarkable journey? Where would this story take me?

When the nearly 500 page novel arrived I couldn't wait until spring break to begin reading. By page 50 I was hooked and finished "The Scarlet Thread" in a 'til-3 a.m. reading marathon — three days before spring break officially began. It was too wonderful to put down.

"The Scarlet Thread" is contemporary and historical fiction. We are introduced to young Mary Kathryn McMurray through her journal: "Papa says spring is a time for courtin.

"I askt him wat courtin wuz and he said it is when a young mans blud comes up like sap in a tree. Wen I askt him what he ment, Mama giv him her look and he laft and wud not tell me ... Lucas said courtin was wen Papa took the cow over to Graysons bull. Matt told him to shut his dirty mouth and Lucas hit him in his and Papa come runnin to stop them before they kilt each other. I am more and more interested in what courtin is."

As Sierra Madrid and Mary Kathryn mature into young women, centuries apart, they share similar journeys that fill them with anger. They are uprooted from the security of their homes, families, and friends to faithfully follow their husbands — one to LA, one across the treacherous Oregon Trail.

As Sierra struggles with her 1990s life-turned-upside-down she finds solace — and finally answers — in the tattered journal of her great-great-great-grandmother. Both women, bold and determined, contend with pain, loss, love, tragedy, husbands, children, themselves, and a struggle with their faith in God as they desperately seek the strength they need to carry on.

"The Scarlet Thread" is an extraordinary novel that has my highest recommendation. It will be enjoyed by both men and women and is suitable for high school students.

Host families sought for student exchange

Youth For Understanding International Exchange volunteers are actively selecting host families for the more than 400 high school students who will arrive in August of 1997.

Youth For Understanding is one of the largest student exchange programs in the world, having exchanged more than 150,000 teenagers since 1951.

Each year over 400 students from over 30 countries in Western and Eastern Europe, Latin America and the Pacific rim are placed with qualified Michigan host families.

Host families provide three meals a day and a separate bed, and all the tender loving care they would provide for their own children. The student becomes a family member for a year as they attend local high schools and participate in family, school and community activities.

Youth For Understanding provides placement and supervision as needed throughout the exchange year, travel arrangements, insurance, orientation programs and other necessary support through a network of 150 local volunteers throughout Michigan.

Couples with and without children at home, as well as adults in one-parent families may volunteer as host families. Anyone interested should contact their nearest Youth For Understanding volunteer, Gordon Snow in Alpena (517-356-2503), or the Michigan YFU office at 1-800-872-0200. Visit YFU's Home Page at http://www.yfu.org.

Intercessor's group expands

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Intercessors for Charlevoix take prayer beyond the privacy of their homes and the comfort of a reasonable hour.

"It's prayer that costs you something," said group founder, Andrea Mathews. "I wouldn't miss it. I know that the fate of our nation, the people, are at stake."

Members meet at 7 a.m. each Wednesday at city hall to pray for their community. And to expand their numbers, they are adding a noon meeting each Wednesday.

Chairs are placed in a circle and spontaneous prayers rise for about 50 minutes. People come and go as their schedules mandate.

Four years after its beginning, Mathews is convinced that she sees results from the group's labor of love.

"We are seeing great moves of God bringing the community together across denominational barriers," she said. There has been several ecumenical events held in Charlevoix in the past year.

"We are also seeing racial and ethnic barriers break down," she added.

An average of five people gather at city hall each Wednesday to pray for the national and local leaders, the safety for local rescue personnel and whatever else comes to the hearts of those who bow their heads. The meeting is open each week to whomever wants to attend.

"I firmly believe that history belongs to those who intercede," Mathews said.

Rather than pound the streets of Lansing trying to legislate people's actions, Mathews and the others are praying for inner changes.

"You can't legislate morality," she said. "There has to be a heart revelation that they are offending Almighty God."

Mathews is inviting people to attend the prayer group, either in the morning or afternoon. The new time will begin Wednesday, May 7, the first Wednesday following the National Day of Prayer, at the United Methodist Church on State Street.

"Our purpose is to bring this city back under Godly principles," Mathews said.

Church briefs

Methodist church hosting open house

Charlevoix United Methodist Church is hosting an old-fashioned fish fry and open house.

From 5-7 p.m. Friday, April 25th, church will kick off their open house weekend with the fish fry.

The dinner is in the tradition of Mrs. Cross's fish dinners of the past: Fish/chips, slaw, carrot salad, rolls, beverage and lemon meringue pie. The cost is $7 for adults and $3 for children under 12 years of age.

The public is invited to tour the church's new addition during the event.

Gathering for day of prayer scheduled

There will be a gathering at city hall from noon-1 p.m. Thursday, May 1, to recognize the National Day of Prayer.

The first National Day of Prayer is said to have been established on Thursday, July 20, 1775, by Congress. In 1988, President Ronald Reagan signed a bill making the first Thursday in May the National Day of Prayer.

Life of Christ musical set for Sunday

"Celebrate Life," a musical production of the life of Christ is being performed at 7 p.m. Sunday, April 27, at the First Congregational UCC church, on the corner of State and Park.

The musical is being performed by the church's youth groups. A free will offering will be taken to go for Church World Service Disaster Relief.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

A phone call came in the middle of Sunday dinner, the voice on the other end asked if I would have time to stop by a hymn sing being held at the Barnard Grange that afternoon. They thought I'd get a blessing out of it. They were right.

If you have never been out to the Grange, start by driving out 31 South to Barnard Road and follow the signs. You'll find a very neat and well kept white building awaiting you. The people who meet there are what make it so special. A lot of the folks farm out that way and they have a lot in common. They talk about the land, the lambs that are coming in, how the corn harvest went last fall and maybe that's at least part of what made their hymn sing so special.

When you literally trust the Lord's love for your survival, it gives you a different outlook on life. You don't think about the cold in terms of turning up thermostats or putting more wood on the fire. You think about what it does to the seeds you just planted or how well those new baby calves will hold up. When the summer's heat unfolds, you don't think of fans or air conditioning. You want to make sure your fields have enough moisture and your ponds can take care of the animals that depend on them for refreshment.

Perhaps those who farm do have an advantage since much of what they do depends on what creation yields each day. If anything, that means that the rest of us should be more attentive to the signs of God's care that surround us every day. It is more than heat and cold that touches our hearts. We may think that our awareness as human beings makes us smarter than the animals. At least they have enough sense to remember when someone is caring for them. We let our doubts and fears and worries and problems of all sorts cause us to all too frequently forget that someone cares for us as well.

I love the assurance that the Lord knows us so well that he even knows the number of hairs that are on our heads. I love the hope that comes from realizing that if God takes care of the birds of the air and the lilies of the field, he will care for us all the more. I love the strength that comes from knowing our heavenly father refers to us as his sons and daughters. And what loving father doesn't do everything in his power to care for his very own?

Someone at the Grange had taken the time to teach a group of children how to use sign language, and they did a song in sign that was very special. The crowd wanted Rod Stevens to sing "The Squirrel Song." He kind of giggled and said maybe next time, but the two songs he did were really great. I had been wanting to hear Dudley play his violin and that was neat. An ensemble from Barnard Methodist Church sang a hymn. We all sang together. It was a good way to spend an hour on a Sunday afternoon.

As winter inevitably gives way to spring, I hope you will pay more attention to the signs of God's love that surround you each day. I hope you will realize, too, that it really is the people that make being a part of Lord's family so special. Thanks to the Grangers for inviting me, and thank you Lord for giving us all reasons to sing your praise every day.

Motel swaps indoor for outdoor pool

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Guests this summer at The Lodge Motel in Charlevoix will have a new outdoor pool to splash into, however, they will no longer have the motel's indoor pool at their disposal.

Motel owner John Uhrick said upkeep for an indoor pool was too much of a headache, and that an outdoor pool during the summer made more sense.

"When the sun is out, people would rather be around an outdoor pool," he said, noting that in the past guests have sunbathed on their outside deck, but had to venture inside for a dip in the water.

Uhrick said the humidity and moisture from the indoor pool was wreaking havoc, eating away at the motel's wooden interiors. His winter guests won't miss the pool. Uhrick closes it down for six months each year.

Uhrick isn't sure what they'll do with the space inside, but possibilities include meeting area or game room.

The outdoor pool will be 24 by 24 feet and is expected to be done by the first week of June.

They have already completed the concrete shell, and now are working on putting the pipes in, installing a lighting system, and erecting a fence around the perimeter.

Acme Pool Co., the same group constructing the Charlevoix Community Pool, is working on the project.

Uhrick said the endeavor will cost about $55,000, but that The Lodge will not be raising any rates to compensate. This has been a project they have had their eye on for awhile, and have saved the money.

Business in brief

LexaLite gets new president

Jeffery H. Roski has accepted the position as president and chief executive officer at LexaLite International Corp. He assumed the position Tuesday.

Roski holds a BS in engineering from the University of Illinois and an MBA from the University of Southern California

Tom Phillips, who was previously president at LexaLite, has left the company to pursue unspecified other interests.

According to a news release, LexaLite's owner, SUMMA, "has a policy of retraining the management of acquired companies, and the need for this search was unforeseen."

Hospital co-owner of home care business

VitalCare and Health Wares, two northern Michigan home health care agencies, affiliated April 1. The resulting agency is a comprehensive home care and hospice entity known as "VitalCare, Inc.," which is owned by Charlevoix Area Hospital, Community Memorial Hospital, and Healthshare Group (parent company of Northern Michigan Hospital).

VitalCare provides skilled nursing, aides, medical social work, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, durable medical equipment, respiratory therapy and infusion nursing services to homes.

The agency's offices will be located in Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Gaylord, Petoskey, Rogers City, and the Eastern Upper Peninsula.

The Charlevoix site will be a new location for the agency.

Methodist roots to be explored

All who are interested in taking a closer look at Methodism' roots are invited to do so when Peter and Joan Bolt from England bring a dramatic presentation entitled "Susannah and Son" to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 26.

Their program includes the beginning of the Methodist movement in Britain, John Wesley's ministry in Georgia in the early 1730s and the founding of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Baltimore in 1784.

The Bolts are no strangers to Charlevoix. They founded the British Praisemakers Choirs, which has visited the church here. They also conducted a mission in Charlevoix in 1990.

Peter Bolt's interest in Wesley grew when he was a trustee of the Epworth Old Rectory where John and Charles Wesley were born, and was also secretary to the fund-raising committee responsible for the restoration of Wesley's Chapel in London, which is known as the "Mother Church of World Methodism." For 20 years he was the British Secretary of the World Methodist Council and had month long pulpit exchanges in Ann Arbor and Bay City.

The Bolts will lead worship on Sunday, April 27, at the following times; at the Greensky Hill Church at 9:30 a.m. and at the Charlevoix Church at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Smoke-free businesses sought for county guide

Is your business smoke-free?

The Charlevoix-Antrim-Emmet Tobacco Reduction Coalition is complying a "Smoke Free Business Guide" intended for the use of residents and visitors to Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmet counties.

The guide will be distributed free of charge throughout the counties.

The coalition has contacted many businesses, however, it does not want to leave anyone out. The guide will include barbershops, beauty salons, banks and credit unions, libraries, restaurants, health clubs, fitness centers, laundromats, entertainment places, conference centers, motels, hotels, and bed and breakfast accommodations.

Businesses to be listed in the guide will be selected for inclusion because of the following criteria:

— The owners decided to be smoke-free on a voluntary basis, not as a requirement of the law.

— They are visited by the public on a regular basis.

— Their type of services may require a patron to spend at least a half hour inside while using the facility.

— The fact that they are smoke-free may be a determining factor for visitors to frequent those businesses.

If your business in Antrim, Charlevoix, or Emmet County meets these criteria and you wish to have it included in the guide and receive free advertising, please contact Mary Ann Cox at 547-6523.

Spring thaw rough on roads

sion 10 percent over budget.

"It was bad, but it was a normal old Michigan winter."

The spring thaw has not been pleasant either. Welch said he noticed a lot of black top break-up throughout the county and a number of the county's gravel roads — notably Pesek, Townsend, and Stafford roads — as impassable when spring began.

While the road commission struggles to free those roads from the mud and for seasonal weight restrictions to be lifted off other mucky roads, they are busy with routine maintenance and repair on snow plows and other snow removal equipment.

They are preparing for what many county residents don't want to even contemplate — next winter.

Singles spots led by freshmen

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

A trio of freshmen have earned the top three singles spots on the Charlevoix Rayder varsity tennis team.

David Drury, Todd Freidinger, and Scott Pair have spent the first portion of the season respectively in the No. 1, two and three singles spots, but their success within the team has not yet correlated into victories against outside competition.

Of course, the tennis courts play a little uneven. The Rayder freshmen have found themselves matched up against predominantly senior competition, some of whom have state tournament matches on their resume.

High school sports is the first time young athletes really have a chance to compete beyond the parameters of their own age group. During adolescence they are pigeon holed, perhaps rightly so, in age groups like 9-10 or 11-12 for competitive purposes.

Tennis coach Bob Morgridge admits that his freshmen have at times during this early leap alternated between "awed" and "overwhelmed." But he said he's excited about the marked improvement in their play. It was evidenced over the weekend during the North Country Tennis Invitational in Harbor Springs. All three players battled eventual flight champions before bowing in defeat.

"They're keeping the ball in play, hitting it deeper and with more consistency," Morgridge said. "They have already come a long way."

While their singles players are handling growing pains, the Rayders double tandems have kept them competitive to win matches.

The duos managed six of the team's seven victories in the tournament, which Traverse City Central won with 20 points. Harbor Springs placed second with 15 points. Charlevoix and Traverse City's B team each scored seven.

Erik Halverson and Ben Owens teamed up in No. 1 doubles play to down a pair from Harbor Springs 6-4, 6-0; playing No. 2 doubles, Wally Pair and Scott Zukowski won twice, 6-2, 6-0 against a duo from the Traverse City B team and 6-3, 7-5 over a Harbor Springs pair; Jamie Whitley and Simeon Perron battled in the No. 3 doubles slot and bested their counterparts from Harbor Springs 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 as well as a pair from Traverse City B 6-2, 6-2; and Leah Dulaney and Shelly Riley won a No. 4 doubles match by default as did Jess Wood in the No. 4 singles slot.

Morgridge was especially impressed with his No. 1 doubles team of Halverson-Owens. Owens is a newcomer to the team as well as the game of tennis, but Morgridge said his overall athleticism enabled him to improve rapidly, and paired with Halverson, he expects them to continue to win their share of matches.

Morgridge also noted the improved play of two tandems that did not see action Saturday, Shannon Martin-Kevin Whitley and Juli Swenor-Michelle Potter.

The Rayders are 30 strong so Morgridge has steered most into double play where nine pairs have been formed. The more doubles teams they have the more opportunity for kids to see live action, Morgridge said. He expects some change as to who will play in the matches as the pairs challenge each other for playing time.

"We want to establish a ladder that the kids can aim to climb as they improve and challenge each other," Morgridge said.

In regular match play, three doubles teams compete while, in an invitational forum four pairs find the court. After most matches, exhibitions involving those not in the top three.

As the weather betters, Morgridge looks for increased improvement as he and assistants Janet Freidinger and Vinnie Klooster can spend more time in one-on-one instruction. The Rayders next square off at home Tuesday, April 29, against Traverse City St. Francis.

Earth Day activities set

While earth day was officially Tuesday, local festivities can be found on Saturday, April 26, during the Friends of the Six Mile Lake/St. Clair Lake "March for Parks" in Ellsworth.

The day begins at 10:15 a.m. at Wooden Shoe Park, where student winners of the poster contest will be honored.

People can then walk or trolley to one of the five preserves before reconvening at Banks Township Hall for lunch and exhibits, which includes a vintage 1958 Mort Neff film "Fishing Fun in Michigan," featuring footage from throughout the chain of lakes area.

Participants will receive a miniature version of the state tree, the white pine, to plant at home in memory of the occasion.

For more information call JoAnne Beemon at 547-4820 or Ron Tshudy at 544-6167.

Ordinance will regulate outdoor entertainment

sion cannot honor or enforce conditions set at a city level.

"The lack of restrictions poses a problem down the road," Halverson said.

An ordinance could prohibit outside entertainment or regulate its hours. However, such an ordinance is not cut and dry since it can potentially affect concerts in the bandshell downtown, the Venetian Festival and other local events.

"I don't like to restrict businesses because they only have three months and then it's snow time," councilmember Gabe Campbell said. His suggestion to table the issue until Young and Halverson thought through specifics was accepted by council.

It's left to be seen who will act first, the Liquor License Commission, which should grant Whitney's an outdoor service permit, or the council, which plans to address outside entertainment in an ordinance.

Barnes asked the business owner to wait until the ordinance was passed before beginning entertainment upstairs.

"You're asking us to agree to an ordinance that we don't know what it says," said accountant Bob Hoffman, on behalf of Whitney's.

"We're asking the owner to please live with us while we're working things out," he said.

Regardless, Charles Whitney said after the meeting that he plans to start dinner-time entertainment on the deck after it opens Memorial Day weekend. He is confident that with the voluntary curfew, boaters and downtown residents will not be bothered.

"All the boaters and people we would bother are our customers," he said.

District considers one bus run

couple district crowns in the early 90s. The team's record the last three seasons has not been that good.

Still, the future looked bright as Rayder junior varsity and freshmen teams were among the area's best.

Kanine would not comment in depth on his decision in a follow-up interview. He said only that he no longer wanted the position.

In other board action, an additional special education teacher and more buses reduced the expected ending general fund balance in the school board's five-year budget plan.

The plan, approved 4-1 by the board, predicts a fund balance of $373,329 when the fiscal period ends on June 30, 2001. The fund balance is expected to be $1.5 million this June. A portion of the money will be used each year to cover the district's expenses that overcome its revenues.

Even since the board began considering the current five-year plan, the final general fund balance has fallen. It was orgininally predicted to be $677,729 at the end of the period. But the extra teacher needed to fill demand in special education and additional buses needed to change to a one bus run has created new costs.

District administrators have discussed recommending that Charlevoix go back to one bus run a day because of an increased need for buses to transport athletic teams and a state mandate that is extending the school day.

"The belief of the administrators is that this may necessitate one bus run," Jackson said Tuesday. By the 1999-2000 school year, students will be required to be in school 100 more minutes than this year.

> "This is too low. If the economy goes down we will be in a real pickle for money."
> — Judy Boss, district treasurer

Even though there has been no official decision to go to one bus run, which would put older and younger students together, the district is planning to buy two new buses opposite the years when it buys one to increase the fleet.

The five-year plan was passed. But Jackson notes that the figures used in it are just estimates and a more accurate portrayal of current financial status will come from the yearly budget which will be hashed out, she said, either by the end of May or beginning of June.

The figures, though, paint a bleak portrait of the district's financial future. Even before the new costs, the five year plan was below previous standards.

The district had hoped to maintain a balance close to 10 percent of the previous year's expenditures (slated to be just over $10 million for the 1999-2000 school year), but with the approved plan calls for just 3.64 percent. The state average is 8 percent.

"This is too low," district treasurer Judy Boss told the board. "If the economy goes down we will be in a real pickle for money."

Ardeth Wicland cast the lone dissenting vote. She said that the figures were based on numbers not yet solidified.

She pointed out that in the plan the per student foundation grant is $115, but Gov. John Engler has been lobbying for a $137 per student and the State House of Representatives $153.

She also had qualms about passing any budget plan with two board members not present. Larry Levengood and Jerry Owens were absent.

"This is merely a plan," board president Mary Lee Campbell said responding to Wicland's concern. "This just gives us a chart, and none of these numbers are set in stone."

goal of their own. Katy Conlan fed Nikki Sheldon for the Rayders second goal of the half. Once again, the Wildcats answered with a goal of their own to bring the first half to a close with a 2-2 tie.

The Wildcats opened the second half by scoring a breakaway goal. Bingham then picked up her second goal of the day on a cross from Carrie Beemon, tieing the games with two minutes left to play.

Senior goalkeeper, Annie Campbell, recorded 12 saves. The Rayders are 2-2-1.

The Boyne Challenge Mountain Bike Race at Boyne Mountain is being hosted Saturday-Sunday, April 26-27, by Fun Promotion Inc.

This race is part of the Michigan Cup Point Series and the MMBA Point Series. It offers more than $4,000 in cash prizes. The events consist of the Gettin Down Downhill on Saturday. Riders will compete on this one mile downhill course. Racers start every 60 seconds and are divided into four different classes.

Awards will be presented to the top five in the Expert/Elite, Sport, Beginner, and Women's classes.

The Get Twisted Dual Slalom will be held Saturday afternoon. Riders will get one qualifying run on each side. Total purse will be $770 divided between the same four classes.

Sunday's races are the cross country races, which include the Michigan's Kids' Cup Races.

There will be a Kids Free Specialized bike drawing at the finish of the kids race, with awards to all. Sponsors include Sun Rims, Stoker, Grip Shift, Velocity, Rock Shox, and Scott. Over 300 awards will be given away on Sunday to the top 10 in all classes.

Preregistration fees are: Cross Country - $20, Gettin Down Downhill - $10, Get Twisted Dual Slalom - $15 and Kids Races - $5.

SCRAPBOOK

The above picture was taken from the control room of the bridge in 1907, looking south on Bridge Street. A popular pastime was watching the ships as they passed through the channel. Identifiable in the group watching at the gates is one of the earliest settlers, Major Green (white beard and handkerchief), near the center of the group Martha Ayers (white blouse and black skirt), and to the right Will Hampton (white hat and legs crossed). To the far left is Fred Myers Cigar Store. Fred can be seen beside his popcorn machine, which he claimed paid his overhead. The clock on the post to the far right showed the location of the Bellinger Jewelry Store.

Rotary offers scholarship

The Charlevoix Rotary Club is seeking applicants for the Academic-year Ambassadorial Scholarship for 1997-98.

The scholarship is available for students who have completed at least two years of university-level work, or a secondary education and two year of recognized vocational work.

The candidates may be married and may be allowed to study in areas where they have already lived or plan to live. However, after completing two semesters of studies, the scholarship winner must return to the district to present programs of their experiences.

The scholarship pays up to $22,000 for expenses and tuition.

An application must be filled out, essay written and letters of references included. The applications are due to a Charlevoix Rotary Club member by Wednesday, May 14. An interview will be scheduled at that time.

For more information, call Janenne Irene Harrington at 547-6558.

Firefighters help with numbering

The fire department is volunteering to put house numbers on Charlevoix homes. Firefighters are identifying houses that are hard to identify, which could extend response time during an emergency.

The letters would be put on the homes for free, with the occupant paying about 79 cents for each numeral.

For more information, call the department at 547-3279.

Three generations of Ochs fill prescriptions

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Franklin Ochs officially entered his father's business when he was 13. But rather than get special treatment, he jumped into 68-hour work weeks as a stock boy, delivery boy and soda jerk.

Starting in 1932, young Frank delivered to five large resort hotels, the Belvedere and Chicago clubs, and the Michigan Avenue area on bicycle.

Frank was the second generation of Ochs to nurture Central Drug Store in Charlevoix. His father, Harley Ochs, began working in the store in 1914 after graduating from Ferris Institute. Harley was originally from Roscommon and traveled to Boyne City by train and then on to Charlevoix by steamboat to take his first job as a pharmacist.

As the store prepares to celebrate its 100th anniversary on Saturday, May 17, three generations of Ochs have stood behind the counter helping residents and visitors with whatever ails them.

"There's been an Ochs working in this store for 83 years," said John Ochs, Frank's son who has owned the store since 1982.

Frank followed in his father's footsteps as a pharmacist. He started his apprenticeship the same year he began attending Ferris Institute. He graduated in 1941 and became a partner at the store in 1954, after serving in the Navy during World War II and coming home.

In 1957, the business was moved across Bridge Street to the Green Building, which is located where

Crack dealers face charges at hearing

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The preliminary hearing in the crack dealing case of Michael Kenneth Russell and Pamela Stoneham Fuller began Tuesday in Charlevoix County's 90th District Court. Judge Richard W. May presided.

The Charlevoix residents were arrested early March 18 after two prearraigned buys with a confidential informant, which were set up by the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement Team (S.A.N.E.).

The pair are each charged with two counts of dealing/manufacturing cocaine, one count of possession of cocaine and one count possession of marijuana.

At the hearing, special prosecutor Maria Barton called two witnesses to the stand, the informant and S.A.N.E. officer Charles Vondra.

The informant testified that he approached Fuller when he entered the house. "I asked if she had anything and she said all she had was rocks. So I said, I'd buy some."

He testified that Fuller, a distant relative, led him through the house to the back bedroom, where he gave her $100 for two rocks of crack. He said Russell was not present during the buy.

The informant then left the 214

Mason Street land to provide more parking

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

In an answer to a city requirement for more parking, Charlevoix County has purchased two lots on Mason Street to add at least 29 more parking spaces.

Currently, the county property has 77 spaces. When approving the development plan for the county building's expansion in October of 1995, city officials included a provision for 103 spaces, according to minutes from that meeting.

County planner Larry Sullivan said that parking can become congested, especially during jury selection. However, the additional spaces may not solve the problem.

"It won't get everyone off the street," he said. "Humans by nature are lazy and they're going to park as close to the door as they can."

The county is taking bids for the demolition of the two houses that now sit on the land, which is located across the street from the county building and adjacent to Pointner, Joseph & Corcoran. Together, they offer 99 feet of street frontage and about 156 feet depth.

A third house and lot are being included in the county's demolition bid. The property is owned by the Charlevoix Public Schools. The house is currently empty.

School officials have not clarified what will be done with the land, just that it is cost effective to bid, the demolition with the county, said board member Pat McKeown, Jr.

The house used to be rented out. According to board member Larry Levengood, the land could eventually be included in a building project that involves that land currently used for the middle school. It is adjacent to the school playground on one side, the newly owned county property on the other and the superintendent's office to the back.

"We don't have any immediate intentions," Levengood said. However, he outlined the options as being land for another central office, expansion or rebuilding the middle school and possibly leasing the property to the county for more parking.

Bids for the demolition of the houses will be broken into two parts, one for the county and one for the school district. Each governing board will vote on acceptance. The bid request asks that the restoration of the sites be completed by Monday, June 8.

Midnight runs, patient education part of job

Maison & Jardin is now. The old building was torn down and the store returned to its original site on the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets in 1958.

Harley died eight years later after working all day.

Frank took over the store, with the help of his son, John, who had been working there as a stock boy and delivery boy for 11 years. When it came time for John to pursue his degree, he traveled to Ferris State College, where he met his wife Lani in pharmacy school. They graduated in 1969.

After working for Upjohn Co. in Kalamazoo, John and his wife came to Charlevoix to take over the family business. The experience gained outside of his hometown has broadened John's understanding of the business.

There was 12 years of working in dosage form development. He can now explain to customers why medications costs so much and he understands the tests behind bringing drugs to market.

Although the store has remained stocked with an Ochs pharmacist, the business they run is ever-changing. There is now less delivery to homes.

Making compounds with a mortar and pestle is only done occasionally since most of the drugs arrive in finished form. Few farmers maintain the tradition of making Saturday trips to town for prescriptions. And there is more legal openness with customers.

When Frank was growing up around the pharmacy, it was considered unethical for his father to discuss the medication prescribed by the doctor. The name of the medication wasn't even put on the bottle. Pharmacists were supposed to advise customers to "ask their doctor."

"There was no patient education at all," John said.

As a hometown pharmacy that also cares for those on Beaver Island, the Ochs pride themselves in taking time with the customers to discuss the medication and possible side effects.

> "I like talking to people and feeling that I'm able to help them. That's the bottom line right there."
> — John Ochs

There are also the 2 a.m. calls from the mother of a baby with an earache. One of the Ochs comes in to fill a prescription. There are referrals to local doctors when customers are trying to find a home remedy for a problem the pharmacists see as potentially dangerous. And there is getting prescriptions transferred from other states or matching foreign medications with that offered in the states.

All the daily tasks add up to "helping the everyday quality of people's lives," John said. Some customers come from third generation families that Harley first serviced.

"I like talking to people and feeling that I'm able to help them," John said. "That's the bottom line right there."

In his late 70s, Frank still mans the downtown store for about 35 hours a week. John and Lani share responsibilities while running their second store, Charlevoix Commons Apothecary.

"We just keep it going," Frank said.

With managed care changing the way health care is administered in America, the Ochs don't look 20 years down the road when thinking about Central Drug Store. They take one day at a time.

One thing is sure, however, with both of John's children having pursued other careers.

There isn't another Ochs generation to carry on the family tradition. It's a tradition that neither Frank nor John considered straying from. It always was, and always will be, their lives.

Events in brief

K-12 art show to be held at elementary school

The kindergarten- through twelfth-grade art show will be held from 6:30-9 p.m. Thursday, May 8, and from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Friday, May 9, and Monday, May 12, at the elementary school.

The art show is an annual event and gives students the opportunity to show exhibits of projects they have worked on throughout the school year. There will be two and three dimensional pieces on exhibit.

Cardiac lecture set for May 8

A cardiac rehab lecture is open to the community via an interactive television that links 13 northern Michigan hospitals and communities. The lecture will run from 7-8 p.m. Thursday, May 8, and can be viewed at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The topic will be "Exercise for Total Health" presented by Kathy Birdsall, R.N.; Lori VanHorn, R.N.; and Elizabeth Dole, Exercise Therapist, at Munson Medical Center. Participants will have the opportunity to ask questions and participate in the discussion.

There is no fee for the lecture, however, preregistration is necessary. Call Connie Roland, at 547-4024, for further information and to register.

Chamber seeks Venetian T-shirt designs

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is hosting a competition for the design of the Official 67th Annual Venetian Festival T-shirt. This years Venetian Festival will be held Thursday-Sunday, July 24-27. The winners will receive a cash prize of $200.

Original designs should be submitted on 8 1/2" x 11" white paper as clean line art (no shading or fills) in black ink. Color fills or special shading areas should be included on a separate tracing overlay. Custom font lettering, which can be time consuming, is acceptable but not necessary. The committee is more interested in the original design concept.

Make sure to identify artwork by including your name, address and phone number. The winning design becomes the exclusive property of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. Remaining entries will be returned to respective artists.

All artwork should be submitted to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, 408 Bridge St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. The deadline for submission is 5 p.m. Friday, May 16. Please be sure to adhere to the required specifications.

For more information, call the chamber office at 547-2101.

Historical society continues with Depot restoration

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Charlevoix's historical society has been slowly, but surely, putting the finishing touches on their renovation of the old train depot, which is located across from Depot Beach on the corner of Chicago Avenue and Coast Guard Drive.

"This has not been a rush rush job," historical society member Bill Price joked. "We're just taking our time with this so we don't screw it up."

The result may be that beachcombers who seek a little culture to accompany their day of fun in the sun may be in for a pleasant surprise.

The Depot was granted historical status in 1994. Ever since, the society has been trying to shape the building into a replica of its original look from decades ago, when trainloads of resorters flocked to northern outposts for relaxation, hunting, and gaming.

"The Charlevoix Railroad is what we are looking to promote," historical society president Steve Bennett said. "It was an active part of our town."

On the outside, a remodeled semaphore will remind visitors of alerting engineers to track designations, portico columns, and geranium arrangements in addition to the interior color scheme and wood floorings will make the building a life sized model.

"We want to bring it back to as close as possible to how it was during its heyday," Price said. "It's an important building, we're tickled to have it."

Price did admit that the project grinds to a near halt during wintertime. The ill weather makes home improvement challenging. Also, though, Price said that much of the work is done by volunteers, many whom escape south for the winter. As they trickle back into town, work will escalate, and Price hopes for an official opening by June.

Bill Price holds the plaque that declares the Depot a historical landmark. The plaque will be one of many items displayed at the community's newest museum when renovations are finished.

Inside the building will begin to resemble a museum. Items from the preworld war railroad industry will be displayed such as original luggage carts, train wheels, and an old weathervane, which engineers could see in the distance to gauge

Council plans to allow installment payments for pool

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

City leaders are willing to rewrite an ordinance to give the Charlevoix Community Pool group a chance to make installment payments on its sewer tap-in fee.

"Give us a brick break," requested Charlevoix Friends of the Pool President Bruce MacArthur to city council recently. He explained that it would take the group an estimated 5.5 months to sell 333 bricks at $120 each to pay the $40,000 fee.

MacArthur asked the council to waive $12,000, a privilege fee that would go into a city sinking fund to help pay for system expansions or major sewer line construction. City manager Mike Wiesner said that it is expected to cost $3.3 million to expand the existing plant.

After discussion, city officials determined that waiving the fee could be construed as making a donation. City attorney Jim Young advised that there are legal problems with doing so.

"The ordinance is profit driven," Young said.

Pool representatives continued to make their points, noting that 500 people from the community have made donations to the construction of the pool that is now nearing completion.

Mayor Josh Barnes told MacArthur that he had already made personal and professional donations through his company.

"If I make a donation here, I'm not giving my money," he said. "It's the taxpayers'."

The pool group has been committed to pay construction bills as they come. A Memorial weekend dedication is planned. And the group continues to look for remaining resources to make the long-coming project a reality.

Council was sympathetic to the cause. But not willing to make a risky move, which included deferring payments.

"If they qualify for installment payments I would agree to that," said councilmember Butch Russell. "But other than that, we have a plant to run."

"Anyway you look at it, it replaces taxpayers' money — every penny of it," Barnes said.

Young noted that even the city isn't exempt from paying fees for sewage service.

Council decided to give the group a break by rewriting its sewer policy to approve installment payments for certain types of nonprofit organizations that involve community-wide recreation.

The details are being finalized and will be presented to council at an upcoming meeting.

OPINIONS

Communication is the beginning of strong leadership

EDITORIAL

There's an never-changing need for elected officials to maintain open, honest relationships with the public. They are placed in their seats because the voters believe that they will make sound decisions while listening to their concerns.

During campaigns, candidates promise to stay in touch with their constituents, to run grass-roots operations and represent voters' views with each stand.

Silence of elected officials breeds mistrust. And we are concerned with some elected officials' decisions to shy into a closet and not speak their views or comment to the local media when newsworthy stories are being reported.

Being an elected official isn't easy. They can never please everyone. And in an attempt to do so, some people try to ride the fence on every issue. Little do they know that they lose the respect of their constituents because they've lost the up-front approach that got them elected.

If a Charlevoix school board member is comfortable talking to people and making comments to local reporters, they get referred to as "loose lipped" by another board member. This is Charlevoix not Chicago. People expect — and should get — the common courtesy of returning phone calls and honestly answering questions when they are asked during school board meetings.

Strong leadership is crucial. And while the school board blames the loss of trust on changing times, it should look at its tight-lipped approach to sharing its decisions. There are some school board members who, regardless of their position, continue to act as natural and real as anyone else in town. Then there are others who seemingly have picked up the plight to protect the people from themselves. People don't want to be limited to just talking to the superintendent if they are not personal friends of a board member.

We hope that voters will not only look at the background education and local prominence of the school board candidates as the Monday, June 9, election approaches. We hope they look at their willingness to stand up for the issues on which they base their platforms.

In the coming weeks, we will be running information on all the candidates who respond to our questionnaires. We will also be covering the school board candidate debate that the Charlevoix League of Women Voters is holding in the high school at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 12. Voters should bring their questions on the future of Charlevoix schools and make their own assessments of the responses.

Letters to the editor

Volunteers of K-8 wrestling program deserve praise

Editor:

We would like to acknowledge the success of the Charlevoix K-8 grade wrestling program this year. This program is self sustaining and free of charge to all junior wrestlers.

Not enough praise can be given to the volunteer coaches, Gary N. Probert, Craig Golovich, Dave Golovich and Joe Johnston. They gave willingly of countless hours, money and positive encouragement to the 40-some wrestlers.

The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Wrestling Team practiced for six weeks, four nights a week, using half of the elementary school gym (the only space available).

During the season, the Rayders traveled to Cheboygan, Rogers City and Elk Rapids. They also hosted an invitational tournament on March 8 for 11 schools. Three Hundred-twelve wrestlers competed in a total of 504 matches.

The Rayders captured six first, three second, six third and four fourth place medals, coming in third overall. This is a great accomplishment for these young men and women thanks to the efforts of the coaches, parents and other volunteers.

For the continued success of this worthwhile program, we hope to gain more practice space, more community support and best of all more wrestlers.

Sincerely,
Tamie Gillespie

Area medical professionals, businesses make foot clinic successful

Editor:

On April 16, 1997, a foot care clinic for diabetics was held at Char-Em Intermediate Administration Building in Charlevoix. This was certainly a community partnership event.

It was sponsored by TIPDON, an agency of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency (formerly District Health Department No. 3), and Charlevoix Area Hospital. However, local businesses including K-mart, Rite Aid, and Charlevoix Commons Apothecary contributed much to the event.

Dr. Thomas De Korte, D.P.M., was key to the success of the day. He conducted thorough, informative examinations for each of the participants.

And, we must express our gratitude to Char-Em for the use of their facility.

This was an important health care project and we appreciate very much the help of all our "partners" in making it a success.

Sincerely,
Peggy Spang, R.N.

Time Out

By Janenne Irene Harrington

He had the biggest hands I've ever seen. All the better to reach out to the lost, my dear.

He had the most straight-forward speech I've ever heard. All the easier to be understood, my dear.

He had the most fervent prayer life I've ever known. All the better to stand for his family, my dear.

These are truths I have gathered about my grandfather, the Rev. Edward E. Froats.

Grandpa stood and kneeled for many souls during his 85 years on earth. He didn't care for loud music and people jumping and shouting. However, the water of his flowing river ran deep.

His stories showed me pictures of another time: Stories told by masons as they gathered, waiting for the rain to pass; the commitment it took to put food on the table and clothe his wife and five children; and mostly, the difference that the love and grace of God has made in his life.

Grandpa has begun a new journey now. He is reaping the rewards for all his labor. On Easter Sunday, he left a weak and tired body behind to celebrate on streets of gold.

Before he passed his mantle, I would awake to him singing "Thank You Lord for Saving My Soul," during weekend visits. The gift received by a young cigarette-smoking gambler never did go unappreciated. His life is an example of how the Potter can mold one life of clay into a holy vessel to help innumerable lives.

"Who can measure the impact he has made," said Rev. Leech, of the Assemblies of God. "He was a great soldier of the cross. If you can see farther than you, it's from standing on the shoulders of giants."

Grandpa Froats was one of those giants. And because of all he stood for, because of the standard he raised for what is honest, good and right, I can now see farther in life than I ever dreamed possible.

Rev. Edward Froats

He is an example of the difference one life can make.

His children all grew up to be good people who help others and believe in the Lord their father has now gone to join. His grandchildren have overcome many hardships in life to walk tall and appreciate the view he offered. The people from the many churches he pastored in 50 years have experienced times of encouragement and watched the kind of example that helps people press on through difficulties.

Grandpa's life may not always have been easy. But he never gave up. He raised a family during some of America's toughest economic years. His wife died in 1955, when his children were just becoming of age. He had been licensed to preach since 1943 and an ordained minister since 1946.

He met a wonderful woman who has always been grandma to me, Edna Rice. She, too, was an ordained minister with the Assemblies of God. Grandpa built a church from the ground up with his own hands. And the Froats ministers married, co-pastored and shared each day for nearly 40 years.

Through their example, I have received great strength. Through grandpa's death and grandma's aging, I have also received a sense of responsibility to the difference that my choices and standards make in the lives of those around me.

I miss my grandpa. My ears ache to hear his singing voice and the words of wisdom he freely shared. But I look forward to the coming day when we will again see each other. Both of our journeys having entered our great reward.

Mason St. house. He returned to the house within an hour for a second buy. The informant said Russell was "in and out of the house and not there the whole time." Fuller again led him to the bedroom, where he gave her $60 for one rock of cocaine and she gave him $10 change.

When cross examined, defense attorney John R. Michael showed that the informant began working with S.A.N.E. as part of a plea bargain for a malicious destruction of property charge.

Michael went on to question Russell's participation in the sales. The informant said Russell had been watching television. However, he contradicted himself when testifying.

Michael also called witness Joseph Reedy, who told the judge that Russell had been watching a movie with him and hadn't left.

"I would have noticed him getting up and not sitting next to me," Reedy said.

When the house was raided later that night, the police found more than $300 on Russell, $140 of it was the prerecorded money from the buys.

Scattered around house various amounts of crack, spoons, pot, scales and glass pipes were found, said Vondra.

The officer testified that when Russell was being interviewed after the arrest, he admitted to dealing drugs as a source of income and that both he and Fuller were unemployed.

Because of incomplete lab reports, the hearing will be continued at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 6. Judge May will determine if there's enough evidence to bind the defendants over to 33rd Circuit Court.

If convicted Stoneham and Russell face one to 20 years on each dealing charge and one to four years on the possession charges.

80th Birthday

Lillian May Calvin

Lillian May Calvin is celebrating her 80th birthday.

She was born in Leetsville, Mich., on May 3, 1917, to Willard and Anna Martha Schmidt Calvin. Lillian attended school in Mancelona.

In 1933 she came to Charlevoix to work for Frances Durance. On June 15, 1934, she married Charles Novotny. She has three daughters, Charlene and Darlene, who were born on Aug. 8, 1941, and Toni, who was born on March 14, 1949.

Lillian, better known as "Frenchie," worked eight years for Lewis & Gertrude Brant at their grocery store. Frenchie and Chuck bought the store from the Brants and in later years sold it to Bud Russell, who sold to Andy Essenberg, who named it Andy's Grocery Store. Frenchie retired from Staley's grocery in 1982.

She has three grandsons, Jeff DeVries, Chad DeVries, and James Gaskin and two great-grandsons, Judson and Reid DeVries. She has lived in Charlevoix 63 years and loves the people most of all.

Charlene Gaskin, Darlene Novotny, and Toni DeVries are hosting an open house for their mother, Lillian Holm "Frenchie," in celebration of her birthday. Please drop by and join in the music, food and fun memories from 1-5 p.m. Saturday, May 3, at the Greensky Hill church grounds' Susan Hall.

Mother-daughter tea scheduled

Cadette/Senior Girl Scout Troop 267 will hostess their annual Mother-Daughter Tea from 1-3 p.m. Sunday, May 4, at the Argonne Supper Club.

As well as honoring Mother's Day, the troop hopes to raise funds for a trip to Savannah, Ga., this August.

The Cadette and Senior Scouts have been working towards this goal for over a year with a variety of money-making endeavors, including selling the traditional Girl Scout cookies.

"Girl Scouts have to earn all their trip money," said Scout Leader, Lisa Winchester. "They're not allowed to simply solicit funds. It's a real work experience."

The young women, some whom have been together as Scouts since first-grade, chose Savannah as a destination because of its historic significance to Girl Scouting. It is the birthplace and adult home of Girl Scout Founder, Juliette Gordon Lowe.

"It's kind of a Girl Scout 'Mecca,'" Lisa said. "We'll have the opportunity to learn about the roots of the largest women's organization in the world. I think it will be a wonderful experience for our Scouts."

The Scouts hope the tea will be a nice way to celebrate Mother's Day, as well as generate money for their trip. In addition to serving a traditional afternoon tea, the troop will be having a silent auction and a fashion show, sponsored by area merchants.

Tickets are $7.50 per person and can be purchased in advance by calling 547-6143 or 547-2191. The Mother-Daughter Tea is not just for Scouts; all mothers and daughters are welcome to attend.

The Charlevoix concert band received the highest ranking, a one, during the state band competition in Grand Rapids Saturday. To top the excitement, band director Raphael Rittenhouse was not at the performance because his wife was about to give birth. A retired band director from Claire stepped in to coach the high school musicians through their performance.

Hamilton fund-raiser a success

Ralph Hamilton was recently honored by the Charlevoix Historical Society, which held a dinner and fund-raiser in his name April 22. Also, city council declared April 22 as Ralph Hamilton day.

Hamilton, 92, is a Charlevoix native and former deputy county clerk for 24 years, public administrator for seven and served two years on the city council.

He helped reorganize the historical society in 1972 and worked as a local accountant for years. At least $500 was raised in his name from donations given during the dinner, which was attended by about 90 people.

Lillian Esther Kay Swinton

Lillian Esther Kay Swinton, 91, of Charlevoix, died April 24, 1997, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Monday, April 28, at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Canon Gordon Cooper officiated, and burial will take place in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Swinton was born June 29, 1905, in Battle Creek, the daughter of William J. and Augusta (Dahl) Kay. She was raised in Battle Creek, and graduated from Battle Creek High School in 1922. She then attended Michigan Normal College in Ypsilanti, graduating with a two-year degree in teaching in 1925.

In 1963, Mrs. Swinton went to Western Michigan University, where she received a bachelor of arts degree in education.

She taught elementary school in Charlevoix from 1925-26. She also worked as a seamstress and did alterations for the Polly Kay Shop in Charlevoix.

On May 29, 1926, she married George Donald Swinton in Mount Prospect, Ill. He preceded her in death on Sept. 30, 1978.

Mrs. Swinton spent most of her life with her husband as an Episcopal priest's wife. Following their marriage, they lived in Charlevoix until 1951. They then served Episcopal church congregations in Orangeville, Fremont and Newaygo, before returning to Charlevoix in 1976.

Mrs. Swinton was a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix, and was active in the church's Altar Guild, Daughters of the King, church choir, and the Episcopal Church Women.

She was a self-taught organist and served as the organist and choir director for many churches she and her husband served.

Mrs. Swinton was a board member of the National Episcopal Church Women, a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Area Hospital Auxiliary, and the Rainbow Shoppe. She was a charter member of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and the Shakespeare Study Club. She was also a member of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary, and played the piano weekly at the East Jordan facility.

Survivors include one daughter, Sally S. Bales and her husband, Michael L., of Charlevoix; one grandson, Geoffrey Nelson, of Sherman Oaks, Calif.; one granddaughter, Barbara Kay Nelson, of Charlevoix; step-grandsons, Kelly Bales of Charlevoix, and Keith Bales and his wife, Barbara, of Petoskey; three great-grandchildren; one sister, Esther Kay Deltufo and her husband, Anthony, of Port Charlotte, Fla.; and a sister-in-law, Margie Swinton Cleman, of Laguna Hills, Calif.

Mrs. Swinton was also preceded in death by two brothers, Gordon and Richard Kay; and by one sister, Virginia Quigley.

The family suggests memorial contributions may be made to the Christ Episcopal Church or to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation was held from 4-6 p.m. Sunday, April 27.

John Stuart, Jr.

John Stuart, Jr., 85, formerly of Charlevoix, died April 23, 1997.

He was the beloved husband of Wihla, devoted father of John, III, Stephanie and Joan, cherished brother of Joan and Ellen and grandfather of five grandchildren.

Interment will be at the Charlevoix Protestant Cemetery.

OF BLESSINGS

By Joe Johnston
Charlevoix Assembly of God

Who's in control?

Recently my wife and I spent some time with some dear friends. During our stay with them it was soon apparent that there was a bit of disfunction in their family structure. They have a son, an only son, who in the eyes of most people would be considered a brat. This three-year-old child has been reared in a very loving home where unfortunately discipline was not implemented. The parents have adopted the philosophy that if they discipline the child it could "hurt his little psyche" and possibly damage him for life.

Since we are good friends with this couple we tried to help them see what was happening to their home. This child's parents have absolutely no control or guidance (to use a politically corrupt, I mean correct word) upon his life. "Whatever little Johnny wishes, little Johnny gets." To put it simply Johnny is "in control."

I have pondered this situation over and over again in my mind and I have come to the simple conclusion that Johnny is simply acting the role of an adult in a toddlers body. All of us adult-type people really are in a battle for control. As I read my Bible I can see that the control battle in mankind is nothing new.

Just look at the situation between Adam and Eve and God in Genesis 3:1-6. God created this maiden couple. He knew everything about them, how they lived and how they thought. He clearly established the confines of their domain and set them as King and Queen over "His" kingdom. The only thing they were forbidden to do was to eat of one single tree clearly marked in the center of their garden. How hard could it be to stay away from that one tree? After all there were thousands of other trees to choose from which were "good for food" (since they were vegetarians).

However, there became an issue of control. Who would be in charge? Who would be God? Would man be God or would God be God? Adam and Eve cast their vote for themselves. The act of disobedience follows and sin entered into the world. It's all a matter of who's in control.

In our modern society millions of people are hustling for control. I, me, mine are their favorite words. As a matter of fact many have chosen their own little personal gods ranging from cultic religions to New Age philosophy. But all things considered, the bottom line is "I AM IN CHARGE." It seems as if everyone gets to be God, but God.

I ask you this. Who is in control of your life? Is it you or God? Hopefully the latter is true because Jesus said "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life. No one gets to the Father (the real God) unless they go through me."

Won't you let Jesus be the God of your life?

Items being sought for Depot restoration

what natural hazards lay ahead. Photographs, old law books, and other various knickknacks from that era will dot the inside to further a feeling that the visitor's day falls in 1920 and they are waiting for a locomotive.

Collecting the items took research and investigation, but, according to Bennett, a lot of good fortune accompanied them. He said people came forward with items they had had stored in attics and basements as they learned of the new museum being crafted.

"People would say you can have it if you come and get it," Bennett said.

The society is in the planning stages of bringing to the museum various events and displays. Price said they're easing into any special events.

"We want to get our feet wet, and see what ideas will move," he said.

One event that is being ironed for this summer will be an extensive model train display. Bennett said a gentleman from the Grand Rapids area contacted them with the idea and the exhibit hopes to be in town sometime in August.

"It really ties into the depot," Bennett said. "We are really happy with what is going on with this project."

The depot is the society's second museum. The first is the Harsha House, which is located on State Street.

Boating safety classes begin Saturday

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is holding boating safety classes in Boyne City and East Jordan in May.

The East Jordan class will be held from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, May 3, in the East Jordan High School Cafeteria. The Boyne City class is 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, May 31, in the Boyne City High School Cafeteria.

All classes are open to anyone 12 years or older. Class members should bring their Social Security numbers and a lunch. Upon completion of the course, members will receive a Boating Safety Certificate, which is required for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a vessel.

Rick Gomez, of Fabricraft, puts up one of seven awnings at Bridge Street Bazaar, a new retail shop that is preparing for its first summer in downtown Charlevoix.

Business in brief

Former restaurant opens under new ownership

Charly's Restaurant (pronounced Char-lees, like Charlevoix) is now open for dinner. As of Tuesday, May 6, the restaurant, which is located where On The Edge previously was, will be open for lunch and dinner.

Sears celebrates 500 dealer stores

Saturday, the local Sears stores was part of a celebration that marked Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s reaching a milestone of operating 500 dealer stores in rural communities in four years. Sears plans 900 dealer stores by the year 2000.

"Our staff has enjoyed serving customers and helping to establish Sears in the community," said local owner, Joe Trojanek. " ... Sears has given entrepreneurs like me a chance to build a successful business."

Local seminar will aid in understanding stock market

Seemingly the investment location of choice, and one of the hottest news items these days, is the stock market. It's no surprise to hear "ordinary" folks using such words as "my portfolio."

But the stock market is not for everyone, and even some who are in it, don't know as much about it as they should. And some people who are in a 401K plan may not know that their investment could be working smarter for them.

"Six Hours to Investment Savvy" is a free course designed to provide a better understanding of the market in general, including the historical performance record of stocks, bonds, and cash equivalents such as money market funds, Treasury bills, and CDs. Participants will also learn about risk vs. return tradeoff, developing a diversified portfolio, global investing, effects of taxes, and impact of inflation.

The classes will meet for one-and-a-half hours on four consecutive Thursdays, May 1, 8, 15 and 22 from 6:30-8:00 p.m. at the Bay Harbor Yacht Club. This general primer on investment know-how is sponsored by Petoskey's Merrill Lynch office. Please call 348-0762 to register.

Top O' Michigan appoints new operations manager

Dean Carper of Petoskey brings his 37 years experience in the propane business to this new position as operations manager of Top O' Michigan Propane.

He manages the day-to-day operations of the new company that recently began selling propane throughout northern Michigan. His office is based at Top O' Michigan Electric Co.'s headquarters in Boyne City.

Carper was district manager in Petoskey for the former Petrolane propane company.

He is board secretary for the Little Traverse Association of Home Builders and a member of the North Central Michigan College Occupational Advisory Council. He also serves on the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance Board and is a past president of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Regional Chamber of Commerce. In addition, Carper is an avid antique car buff. He and his wife, Jackie, live in Petoskey.

Trout tournament warms up with upcoming fund-raiser

By Laura Maltese
Charlevoix High School publications student

Fishermen, get ready, get set, ... FISH.

The Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament turns 13 this year. For Charlevoix, it's a lucky number.

The trout tournament originally started in 1985. It began as an idea to improve the area fishing as well as bring business to the area.

Each year participation increases. Three hundred and ninety three fishermen the first year jumped to a whopping 883 fishermen in 1995. Although the actual tournament isn't until June, the fun begins at the annual, pretournament kick off dinner held at Alexander's, just north of town. This year it will be held Saturday, May 3. The occasion benefits the organization so money can be raised to hold the tournament.

Area merchants continue to offer gifts so everyone can join in. Not only is it fun; but the food includes some of the best prime rib or chicken in town.

While mingling with other potential and most likely experienced fishermen, the guests can talk about gassing up their boats and polishing their lures for the big dates, Friday-Sunday, June 13-15. What better way could dad spend Father's Day weekend than landing the big one? The date change from past years accommodates graduation obligations.

Include your whole family in the fund-raiser and the upcoming tournament. After all, last year's brown trout winner was a young girl named Corey Mills, whose fish weighed in at 10.96 pounds. Susan Root proved lady luck reins in the lake trout category weighing in at 11.92 pounds.

Fees include, $5 for children, and that includes a free hat and lure. Adult registration is $20.

Seventy cash prizes are awarded, in four divisions: brown trout, lake trout, steelhead, and salmon. Prizes are awarded each day for the largest fish. At the close of the tournament, a grand prize drawing is held with each entrant having a chance to win cash or merchandise, even if they did not catch the big one.

Dean Mikulski, a tournament director, said, "This year should be one of our biggest." The salmon catch was on an upswing last year, and directors expect an even better year.

Directors have voted unanimously to give back to the community, which donates each year to make the tournament a growing success.

New and improved ideas will be discussed at the dinner and include, a scholarship fund for seniors interested in studying the environment. Students who are enrolled at Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan High schools are eligible to apply.

Donation to the area pool is also a new idea. The directors recognize the importance of knowing how to swim.

Meanwhile, the initiation of junior directors, has come about.

Matthew Mikulski, 17, has been initiated as the first junior director. He also loves participating in the event.

Directors believe that the quality of this event is important in bringing families together as well as the community. They hope to see a huge turn out, sponsors and participants are greatly appreciated.

Mark your calenders. To secure your tickets for the dinner, contact Alexander's at 547-2550.

Rayder soccer team fields tough week

A team adroit at putting the ball in the net was shut down for the first time this season in a week that saw the Rayders score just two goals while going 1-2.

The week started with a gritty 1-0 win over Harbor Spring.

Meg Spang's penalty kick goal in the closing minutes of the first half proved to be the game winner. Kristy Shindorf turned back six shots, earning her third shutout of the season.

The Rayders then lost 4-1 against Petoskey Friday before losing a heartbreaker 1-0 overtime game against Cadillac Saturday.

The Rayders had scored 13 goals in the first six games before tallying just two last week. Their record stands at 3-4-1.

Shindorf played well at the posts, making 25 saves in the two losses. Carrie Beemon and Annie Campbell were the on-field stars at the midfield position. Taya Drost scored the team's only goal of the weekend, assisted by Katy Conlan.

The Rayders get a shot at revenge when they travel to Cadillac for a 4:30 p.m. game Wednesday, April 30. The Rayders then square off at home against Alpena at noon Saturday, May 3.

Relay teams rank well at Claire invitational

Relay teams and field events sparked Rayder scoring in the 13 team Claire Track and Field Invitational Friday.

The girls' 3200 relay team of Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Liza Gorkiewicz, Candace Vandergriff, and Tricia Hodge placed first overall with a time of 10:30.

Four other Rayder relay teams placed in the meet's top five. The girls' 1600 relay of Vandergriff, Jessa VanGuilder, Tricia Kelly, and Ann Marie Terryberry placed third; the girls' 800 relay of VanGuilder, Sarah Dominic, Kelly, and Terryberry placed fourth; the boys' 1600 relay of David Manker, Chris Dominic, Nate Martin, and Hugo Jiminez placed fifth; and the girls' freshmen-sophomore 1600 team of Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz, Dominic, and Kelly Sullivan placed second.

Josh Skeel and Mike Rautio flexed some Rayder muscle in the field events with Rautio placing second overall in the shot put and his teammate Skeel checking in third. Rautio threw 49 feet 8 1/4 inches nudging Skeel's throw of 49 feet 1 1/4 inches. The two flip-flopped positions in the discus event with Skeel's throw of 142-2, earning him second and Rautio's third with a throw of 137-5.

Chelsea Gorkiewicz placed third in the individual 1600 run and Jiminez placed fifth for the boys in the individual 800 run.

The Rayders run a conference tri-meet Wednesday, April 30, at Traverse City St. Francis. Boyne City will also be participating. On Saturday, May 3, they run, jump, and throw in the Kalkaska Invitational beginning at 10 a.m.

Rayder baseball, softball split wins over weekend

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Hot starts by Charlevoix's baseball and softball teams were cooled a few degrees over the weekend as neighborhood teams gathered at the Petoskey Invitational Saturday afternoon.

Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City, and Rogers City competed in semifinal games in the morning with the losers and winners squaring off in the afternoon.

Unfortunately, the Rayders came out worse for wear. The baseball club dropped a 15-1 game to Boyne City and were blanked in the second game, 13-0, by Rogers City.

The softball team fell 6-5 to Boyne City, but exacted some measure of revenge by dumping the hometown Northmen 13-8 in the matinee.

The baseball team is 5-3 overall and 3-1 in Lake Michigan Division play while the softball team stands at 8-3 overall, 4-0 in league play.

Scott Kelly's baseball club had started the season 5-1 behind a big hitting attack and solid pitching and defense. Catcher Joe Grundman and outfielder Bob Anzell have batting averages above .500 and outfielder Allen Sliger checks in just below at .455.

"They're having good at-bats," Kelly said. "When they hit it, they hit it hard."

Grundman has smacked two home runs as has Steve Carland who pulled off a hitting feat major leaguers would be envious of. He went deep twice in the same inning.

In a 17-3 trouncing of Harbor Springs last Tuesday, the Rayders sent 15 batters to the plate in the third inning plating 12 runs, seven coming off two swings from Carland's bat.

His bat notwithstanding, it has been his arm, as well as Dan Pardee's, which has manager Kelly pleased with the early season success. Both have pitched two solid outings with the Rayders cashing three of those games into victories.

Carland has not given up an earned run in two starts, a 14-2 win over Central Lake and a 4-0 shut-out against Elk Rapids when he fanned eight Elks while walking none.

Pardee also has a shut-out to his credit, a 2-0 one hitter against Central Lake. The Rayders dropped his second start, though, to Elk Rapids 6-3, despite Pardee giving up the same amount of hits and walks as his Elk Rapids counterpart, Dennis Happ.

Errors, seven of them in all, set up a three-run homer in the fourth inning as well as helped plate insurance runs in both the top half of the fifth and sixth innings.

The error bug bit them at the Petoskey Invitational. Five miscues in the opening game set the tone for the day as the Rayders gave up seven errors in game two despite holding Rogers City's bats to five hits.

"It's apparent, that when the defense is solid, things go really smooth for us," Kelly said.

T.J. Carey and Jeremy Himebauch took the losses this weekend while Grundman and Keith Grunch recorded victories in the sweep of Harbor Springs last week.

The Rayders play at home 4 p.m. Thursday, May 1, against Harbor Light Christian School.

The softball team has rode on the arm of Jenny Eveleigh to a 4-0 mark in league play. Eveleigh has been the winning pitcher in each of those games, and has benefited from a line-up that in coach Rick Grunch's words is "just cranking the ball."

> "It's apparent, that when the defense is solid, things go really smooth for us."
> — Scott Kelly, baseball coach

Julie Gregory after a 6-7 hitting performance over the weekend has a batting average above .600 while Amanda Eaton, Lisa Wheat, and Eveleigh all are hitting above .500.

Charlevoix swept two league doubleheaders last week 8-5, 12-0 over Harbor Springs and 6-4, 5-2 over Elk Rapids.

The Rayders, 8-3 overall, have received strong supporting play from two players new to the varsity squad.

Kelly Tornga batted 3-5 while making four sparkling catches in the outfield over the weekend and Mandi Barrett has solidified the club's third base position.

"She's been great, I didn't know who could handle that spot going into the season," Grunch said. "She's got a nice glove and a strong enough arm to play there."

She also has filled in for Eveleigh on the mound. Barrett pitched four innings of no-hit balls to close out the win over Petoskey and ensure that a so-so weekend on the diamonds ended on a winning note for the Rayders.

The softball team next plays at 4:30 p.m. Monday, May 5, in Kalkaska.

Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgement by default against said Defendants for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Clinton E. Davis

Clinton E. Davis 78, of Central Lake and Charlevoix, died Friday, April 25, 1997, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. Mr. Davis was born Dec. 12, 1918, in Detroit, the son of Everett and Ethel (Slawson) Davis.

He was chairman of the board for Second Chance Body Armor of Central Lake, and past executive vice president. He was the former owner and president of Dialite Plastics Corporation and Engineered Plastics Corporation of Detroit.

He was a long time member and alternate trustee of the Snowflake Spiritualist Church and past president and long time member of the Motor City Lions Club.

He was a devoted family man and loved the water and boating, enjoyed all sports and had a great fondness for nature and traveling.

Mr. Davis was a veteran of World War II, serving in the United States Marine Corp at Iwo Jima in the South Pacific.

He summered on Intermediate Lake most of his life and moved to northern Michigan permanently in 1980.

On May 15, 1942, in Highland Park, he married Mildred Louise Updike, who survives. Also surviving are a son Richard Clinton (Kathleen) Davis of Central Lake, a daughter Patricia Louise (Glen) Crawford of Central Lake, four grandchildren, Andrew Clinton Davis of Traverse City, Matthew Anthony Davis of Central Lake, David Lawrence Ryan of Waterford, Kathryn Louise Ryan of Plymouth, two step grandchildren, Summer Crawford and Christine Crawford, both of Grand Rapids.

Mr. Davis was preceded in death by his parents.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, April 29, 1997, at the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes with Sue Ertman officiating. Graveside services followed at Southern Cemetery, Central Lake Township., under the auspices of the Torch Post VFW #6985.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society or the Leader Dogs for the Blind program.

Charlevoix Area Hospital holds health day

"Caring for the Community" is the theme adopted by Charlevoix Area Hospital for National Hospital Week. Charlevoix Area Hospital will demonstrate its dedication to that theme by opening its doors for a health day at the hospital on Wednesday, May 14.

It will be a day for a personal spring health check-up for area residents. There will be free hearing screening tests, and blood pressure checks. For $5 a total cholesterol test will be available.

"The Caring for the Community, slogan," said Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, "reinforces our commitment to provide community education and wellness programs, to help make people aware of healthy living habits and the importance of regular examinations."

Hours for the tests are varied. Hearing tests will be done in the Respiratory Therapy Department from 8 a.m. to noon. Cholesterol and blood pressure testing will begin at 7 a.m. and continue to noon. The total cholesterol test involves blood drawing and does not require fasting.

For further information, contact Nancy Ellison at 547-4024.

Sailing seminar set

Charlevoix sailors are invited to attend a seminar of new racing rules that go into effect this year. The Boyne City Yacht Club is hosting the seminar at the Boyne City City Hall at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 7.

Admission fee is $5, which is payable at the door.

The agenda includes an overview of new International Yacht Racing Rules and their impact on the local club race leagues. There will be time for questions. People attending the seminar should try to bring their rule books with them. Copies can be obtained by calling 1(800) US-Sail.

For more information, call Jim Rowley at 582-7653 during the evening or (517) 732-0724 during the day.

Charlevoix's state champion Future Problem Solver team of (from left) Tyler Lieberman, Laurel English, coach Tom Southard, Shaun MacMillan, and Joel Trubilowicz will be competing in the International Finals the second weekend in June in Ann Arbor, Michigan. The topic will be everlasting life. The group is trying to raise money to cover their expenditures for the weekend, and anyone interested in helping is asked to contact Southard at the Charlevoix Middle School, 547-3206.

No problem too big

School team heads off to world contest

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

When asked about the preparation it took to win a Future Problem Solvers state championship, Charlevoix freshman Shaun MacMillan said it was all about "mastering a process."

"If you're too broad you get penalized, but you can't be too narrow or there won't be enough solutions to solve it," he said.

Now MacMillan and his trio of teammates, Tyler Lieberman, Joel Trubilowicz and Laurel English, are going to the next level, further perfecting the process at the International FPS competition in Ann Arbor, Friday, June 12 through Sunday, June 14.

Teams from all 50 states as well as Mexico, Canada, New Zealand, Australia, India and Europe will test their brain power against one another. Charlevoix's state champs will be competing in the intermediate division spanning grades 7-9.

"We have high expectations that we will do well down there," Tom Southard, middle school instructor and mentor/coach for the Charlevoix program, said. "We've already met some rigorous competition."

Future Problem Solvers was a contest created by Georgia professor E. Paul Torrance, and Southard sees it as the ultimate challenge of a student's mind.

"It gives students permission and the proper climate to excel academically," he said.

As a program, Problem Solvers has taken off in Charlevoix. This year Southard had 36 students competing on nine teams, five of

New school site challenging for building

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The Charlevoix school district has applied for a permit to test the soil on the M-66 land to verify its ability to hold septic tile fields.

The 170-acre parcel hoped to eventually house a K-12 campus and certain athletic fields will appear on the June 9 ballot as voters are asked to approve a one year, 0.5 millage request to cover the land's $170,000 price tag.

Neither the City of Charlevoix nor Charlevoix townships' water and sewer services extend to the land, which is located across from Castle Farms on the eastern border of Marion Township.

Like anyone in the business to build on land without such services, the school would have to build septic fields in addition to school buildings to accommodate the thousands of flushes, sips, and showers typically occurring within school walls. However, building such fields may be a challenge.

According to a soil survey done by the United States Department of Agriculture, multiple soil types exist within the parameters of the land. Some are conducive to septic fields while others are not.

Much of the soil is classified within the Charlevoix series of soil and according to the survey have severe limitations for septic fields because of poor drainage, slow permeability, and high water tables. However, the soil that classified as part of the Emmet series has slight if any limitations.

Jim Sneathon, architect from Beta Designs, a firm which has worked closely with the school district in finding land and developing site plans, is confident that the land can support septic fields.

"We have people in our firm who are experts in those areas, and their research based on the soils say it should be possible," he said.

In a proposed facility blueprint, Sneathon's firm designed a 75,000-square-foot middle school with estimated costs to build at $9.9. Sneathon said that the estimate includes $750,000 for exterior site development for projects ranging from the installation of septic fields to putting in extra lights in the parking lot. He said it is never known until the tail end of a project what that money will ultimately be used for, but that in this case it probably would be used toward building a septic field.

The land has never been tested for such purposes and the U.S.D.A. survey, while the most up to date the county health department has, was done in 1974.

Due to erosion and other weather factors, soil has a contagious quality that enables spreading of certain types beyond its borders. However, it is unclear if that has happened at the M-66 site.

Since a variety of soils exist on the property, a likely scenario would leave the land acceptable for a limited sized septic field. That would be good for the district in the short run, but once multiple facilities are built, the septic field may be too small.

Sneathon said that in his line of work he has seen a number of schools built outside the parameters of local utility systems only to see services quickly extended as the area around the school grows.

He said he learned in discussions with city officials that if voters passed the land millage, the city expects to be petitioned by residents and business owners in that area for service extensions.

School district superintendent Roberta Jackson said that the land remains a good value for the Charlevoix schools and that the board of education hasn't made a decision toward its ultimate use.

Events in brief

Sheriff investigates rollover accident

The Charlevoix County Sheriff Department is investigating a one vehicle rollover accident that occurred April 29 at approximately 10 p.m. on Behling Road near Cosier Road.

The two occupants of the vehicle were Michael Anderson, 36, of Charlevoix, and Terry Clark, 37, of East Jordan. The subjects were taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital were they were treated for injuries and released.

The sheriff's department was assisted at the scene by East Jordan police, ambulance and fire department.

The accident remains under investigation. Speed and alcohol are believed to be factors.

Playground building bee Saturday

Fun in the sun. Delicious free lunch and snacks. Good company. And healthy exercise are available to everyone who signs up to help with the installation of Phase II of the community built playground at the elementary school.

Please come join us with this community-school project beginning at 7:30 a.m. Saturday, May 10. If you can make it, please call the school office so we can get a head count for lunch.

Firefighter volunteers launch lake cleanup

The Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association will be conducting a Round Lake cleanup from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturday, May 10. Volunteer groups and individuals are invited to help with the effort. All materials will be provided.

Divers from the Charlevoix Fire Department Dive Team are inviting all certified divers to join the cleanup.

For more information and to indicate interest, call the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce at 547-2101. Divers should call Jeff Stevens at 547-5783 or John Fiedorek at 547-2848 to get information on the location of the dive-day briefing.

Women voters hosting school election forum

The local chapter of the League of Women Voters is hosting a candidate forum open to all seven school board candidates. The session will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 12, in the high school study hall.

A series of prepared questions will be asked by a forum moderator. Written questions will also be taken from the audience.

High School yearbooks on sale now

Charlevoix High School yearbooks will be on sale for $40 at the school through Friday, May 23. For more information, call the office at 547-3222.

Orchids is topic of graden club meet

"All About Orchids" will be the topic at the next Charlevoix Area Garden Club meeting Tuesday, May 13, at 1 p.m. at the Charlevoix Library.

Joan Knecht, a member of the garden club, will tell of her personal triumphs and setbacks in growing orchids. She will also cover the care and grooming of house plants in preparation for the club's August Flower Show.

For more information, call Joan Knecht at 547-5072. The Charlevoix Garden Club is a member of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, District V.

Norwood Twp., Barnard holding cemetery cleanup

The annual Norwood Township Cemetery Bee is being held at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 10. There will be a potluck dinner at noon at the Friendship Hall in Norwood with the annual business meeting following. All Norwood Township residents and any other interested people are invited to participate.

The Barnard Cemetery Work Bee will be held at 6 p.m. Monday, May 12. In case of inclement weather it will be rescheduled for May 13 at the same time.

Jordan River cleanup May 10

The Friends of the Jordan will hold their annual spring clean-up of the banks of the Jordan River and throughout the watershed beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 10.

The clean-up will take place along the banks of the river, along the roadsides in the Jordan Valley, and along parts of the Jordan River Pathway.

Anyone interested in lending a helping hand to keep the Jordan clean should meet at Graves Crossing campground off M-66 at 10 a.m. Supplies and refreshments will be provided. Top Rank Disposal of Charlevoix will be providing pick-up service after the clean-up. A barbecue will follow. For more information, contact John Hummer at (616) 533-5063.

Boats needed for pool benefit

Sailboats and power boats are wanted by Charlevoix Friends of the Pool for its silent auction, Saturday, May 17, during Xi Epsilon Gamma's second annual charity ball. Auction proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Community Pool. Proceeds from the ball benefit Charlevoix County Hospice.

The sorority chose "Sail Into Spring" as its theme this year for the event being held at Bay Harbor Yacht Club. "We thought it would be appropriate to offer a boat or two as a way of tying into the theme," explained auction chairman and CFOP Treasurer Joanne Curtis.

Arrangements for boat pick-up may be made by calling the pool office, 547-0982. All donations to the auction are tax deductible.

The public is invited to share the celebration of the completion of the Charlevoix Community Pool at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, May 31, at the U.S. 31 North site.

Dedication of the long-awaited indoor pool will begin with a ribbon cutting ceremony and tour of the facility. The event follows the third annual U.S. Coast Guard sponsored 5 and 10 K races, which begin and ends at the pool site earlier that day. Proceeds from the race will go toward the pool construction fund.

Guild brings opera to town Aug. 8

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Trips to the city for artistic enrichment aren't acceptable to members of the Charlevoix Opera Guild. It is bringing the opera to town Friday, Aug. 8, to ring through the rafters of the First Congregational Church.

The group has been awarded a $1,215 grant from the Cheboygan Area Arts Council to help cover the production. Arias and ensembles from mainstream operas will be performed in the first half of the production while a one-act opera will complete the show.

Opera is a mixture of ballet, singing and acting, said Stewart Boal, the group's founder. He and the enthusiasts raising money to cover the remaining expenses for the upcoming show are excited about introducing the art form to the community.

Guild member Dave Wassenaar said that opera is a way for people to get in touch with experiences and feelings. While living in Detroit, he spent 18 years introducing people to the sites and sounds of opera. Initial distaste never discouraged him.

"Five minutes of opera isn't exposure," he said. "If you read a book and don't like it, you don't say 'I'll never read a book again.'"

Member of the local guild range from opera enthusiasts to former performers. They are: Ellen Addington, Stewart and Susan Boal, Elizabeth Humphrey, David and Sara Smith, Fran Tollas, Wassenaar and Adelaide Wilson.

Boal started the group in February after a failed attempt to bring an opera to town several years ago. The funding fell through. This time, the grant has been approved, and the guild is raising more money to 'let the show begin.'

The group has hired Jon Becker, an arts and education consultant from Traverse City, to organize the production: Five accomplished performers will be taking the stage: Patricia Chamberlain Noverr, soprano; Jayne Sleder, mezzo-soprano; Mark Puchala, tenor; Jeffery Norris, baritone; and Victoria Mushkatkol, piano.

In addition to performing, Sleder will be the artistic director for the event. She is a member of the Northwest Michigan College Music Department faculty and a director of the school's annual opera festival.

To prepare the public for the coming performances, Wassenaar will present two preconcert "informances" at Bridge Street Book Shop in Charlevoix and Horizon Books in Petoskey. He will provide historical and dramatic context for certain concert selections through conversation, readings and recordings.

In addition to selling tickets for $15 each, the guild is seeking support of individuals and businesses. For more information, call Dave Wassenaar at 547-6830.

City OKs Whitney's outdoor music plans

By Laurie Lounsbury
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

The council approved good news for south side customers who shop at Andy's Party Store on Garfield Street. Shoppers will be able to get fresh-baked goods and deli sandwiches at the neighborhood store in the near future.

Keith and Gary Ramsey, store owners, received approval to build a 600 square foot expansion on the southwest side of the building. The expansion will house a deli meat counter and fresh baked goods. Keith will do the baking for the store.

"There was demand in the area for a local grocer who could provide deli meats and sandwiches," said Jodi Ager, who assisted with the architectural plans for the store.

The Ramseys, who have owned the business since 1988, plan to start construction of the expansion as soon as possible.

In other business, city attorney Jim Young reported that Whitney's Oyster Bar owners may continue with their plans for entertainment on their newly constructed, outdoor deck. In the future, downtown businesses will have to get a special use permit to have outdoor entertainment. Young and city planner Gerry Harsch are recommending an amendment to the existing zoning law that will require the special permit. Whitney's Oyster Bar will be grandfathered in, so they won't need a permit.

If Whitney's abuses their ability to have entertainment, then the city has the right to create a more traditional noise ordinance, Young said. The noise ordinance now is subjective, with words that suggest noise is a problem if it is too loud or annoying.

Thursday's day of prayer served to unite

EDITORIAL

On Thursday a group of people gathered in the city hall council chambers that didn't discuss zoning, ordinances or parking. They gathered to pray for Charlevoix.

City employees, professionals, mothers with children, and retired people left all their differences at the door and focused on their unified faith in God for a brighter future. The gathering was refreshing.

We appreciate city hall making the space available for the taxpayers who openly admitted that the betterment of the community doesn't lie in attracting more people with doctorates or in even in bigger and better buildings. It lies in loving our neighbors with a love that goes beyond whether their actions please us. It lies in lifting up the needs of Charlevoix to a God who can do more than the mayor, city council, local school board and service clubs.

Charlevoix is known as a community of controversy. There is even a sense of pride about that reputation. However, the desire that came from the hearts of the people at city hall Thursday spoke of unity, appreciation for each other and regret for previous wrongdoings.

The National Day of Prayer is held each year on the first Thursday of May. It is a distant, hardly noticed event for many. The people who spent their lunch breaks Thursday gathering to talk to God about themselves and their neighbors brought it close to home.

Not everyone in Charlevoix believes in prayer. And that is a personal choice. But regardless of religious affiliation and denominational preference, the attitude of those gathered was unlike we had seen in a city hall before.

We appreciate the time and effort of each person who attended the service, which included readings from the Bible and special music.

It was a nice change from the lunches we all have; the mean rushing around on errands and grabbing a quick bite of fast food.

Tennis! That precision, competitive, exhilarating, life-time sport for boys and girls.

It all started here when a patient father practiced hitting the ball to his 7-year-old son on the tennis court. By the time Erik Lundteigen was an eighth-grader, he was already giving exhibition matches to the newly formed Charlevoix High School tennis team.

I remember well when the first Charlevoix High School tennis team was organized in 1973 by an enthusiastic and supportive group of parents. We held a raffle to raise the money to fund the program, and hire a coach, Chuck Wright. Later, during Erik's high school years, he played No. 1 single position and won the regional for us every year. He was designated All-State both in tennis and skiing his senior year.

During college, Erik attended Dennis Van Der Meer's Tennis University, where he received his coaching degree and membership in the United States Professional Tennis Registry. During Erik's tenure as a Charlevoix High School tennis coach, from 1983 until his retirement in 1996, the team was considered a powerhouse. Charlevoix won seven regional championships — with an unprecedented five wins in a row. During those championship years, the team once placed third in the state finals, following only the prestigious private schools of University of Liggett and Country Day.

Last week, Erik Lundteigen finally received the hometown recognition he so well deserves from the present team. Anne Martin and Leah Dulaney organized a "Thank You" presentation from the coed team of 29 members, for Erik's 14 years of outstanding coaching. The present coach, Bob Morgridge, and his capable assistants, Janet Freidinger and Vinnie Klooster, were all at hand to applaud. Erik graciously accepted the team sweatshirt designed by the kids themselves, and everyone dove into the large cake topped with the words "Thank You Mr. Lundteigen."

For the time being, due to growing family responsibilities, Erik is limiting his tennis coaching to his position as tennis coach at the Belvedere Resort during the summer, which he has held for 16 years.

As for the Charlevoix tennis team, there is divided opinion as to whether the future team should remain coed, or if it ought to be divided into a boys' team and a girls' team. Because girls' tennis teams compete regionally in the fall instead of spring, half the girls would like it to remain coed because they can play tennis in the spring and engage in other activities, such as basketball, cross country skiing and performing arts in the fall. However, half the girls would like to form their own team and compete in the region with other girls' teams from Harbor Springs, Petoskey, East Jordan, etc. It will be interesting to see what develops.

In the meantime, the long tradition of adult involvement with young tennis players continues. Senior adult men currently volunteer to set the pace with the young players. Last week, for example, Gunnar Lundteigen and Erik played a set with Erik Halverson and Ben Owens, No. 1 boys doubles team. I asked the fellows how it felt to play against such experienced players and they replied, "It's hard! We learned a lot of how to position ourselves on the court, and it's surprising how they can read you. When you make a mistake, they find a way to make you pay for it. They know where to put the ball. Even though we get beat, it's fun. Those men deserve a lot of respect."

Our coaches predict that next year Charlevoix will have a pretty good tennis team when the 17 first-year players have more experience under their belt. Yes, tennis is for everyone!

Casting call goes out for Jordan River Players' children's theater

Auditions for Jordan River Players' sixth annual children's theatre festival will be from 3:15 - 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday, May 8 and 9, at the East Jordan High School auditorium.

Children, teenagers and adults are needed for more than 40 roles in three new plays. Performance dates are June 19, 20 and 22; August 7, 8 and 10 and September 18,19 and 21.

Actors may audition for more than one play, but should be aware that they must be available for rehearsals frequently during the six week period preceding the performance dates. Parents of children auditioning are expected to volunteer some time to the productions, either as actors themselves or in the area of costumes, sets, props, painting, stage managing, sound, lights or make-up.

This summer's theatre festival is partially funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, the Cheboygan Area Arts Council and the Malpass Family Fund. Jordan River Players is the theatrical arm of Jordan River Arts Council, which has produced 13 new plays for children during the past five summers.

No appointment is needed for auditions, but appointments may be scheduled for persons unable to make the May 8 or 9 dates. For further information, call Lenore Bechtel, festival coordinator, at 536-2445.

Official Notice

ORDINANCE #639

AN ORDINANCE TO ADD PROVISIONS TO TITLE II, CHAPTER 26 OF THE CITY CODE AND TO PROVIDE MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR THE DISPENSING OF FUEL BY FIXED BASE OPERATORS AND AIR CHARTER OPERATORS FOR AIRCRAFT AT THE CHARLEVOIX MUNICIPAL AIRPORT.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

1) That the following sections be added to Chapter 26 of the Charlevoix City Code:

Section 2.300 Definitions. As used in this Chapter:

A. "Air Charter Operations" means a commercial operation involving the transport of passengers or cargo by aircraft for a fee pursuant to Federal Aviation Regulation Part 135 or Part 121.
B. "City" means the City of Charlevoix.
C. "Dispense" means to sell or exchange.
D. "FBO" shall mean a fixed base operator which provides aviation related parts or services for a fee and which is located on the City Airport.
E. "Fuel" means any fuel which is used to power an airplane. It includes, but is not limited to, aviation gasoline, kerosene, jet fuel and automotive gasoline.
F. "Person" means any individual, firm, partnership, corporation, company or association and including any trustee or receiver.

Section 2.301 Dispensing Fuel/License

A. No person shall for a fee dispense fuel at the City Airport without first obtaining a fuel dispensing license from the City Manager.
B. No person shall dispense fuel to aircraft used by that person for air charter operations without first obtaining a fuel dispensing license from the City Manager.

Section 2.302 license requirements

The City Manager shall issue the fuel dispensing license only after all of the following requirements are met:

A. Storage requirement
B. Financial assurance
C. Payment of the fuel dispensing license fee
D. A ground lease has been executed with the City for fuel storage facilities.

Section 2.303 Storage Requirements

A. Fuel shall be stored only in underground fuel storage tanks at such location as shall be specified in a ground lease with the City. The underground storage tanks and the fuel delivery system shall be installed, monitored and maintained pursuant to regulations prepared by the City Manager and approved by resolution of the City Council.
B. Specialized fuel dispensing trucks may be used to refill aircraft. However, all such trucks and their fuel dispensing systems shall comply with and be maintained according to safety regulations prepared by the City Manager and approved by resolution of the City Council.
C. The City Manager or a designee of the City Manager shall periodically inspect all motor vehicles, underground storage tanks and all associated fuel delivery systems to ensure compliance with this Ordinance and applicable regulations.

Section 2.304 Financial Assurance

An applicant which will have underground storage tanks must comply and remain in compliance during the term of the license with subsections A, B and C as described below. An applicant which merely dispenses fuel solely by means of motor vehicles and which does not own underground storage tanks must comply and remain in compliance during the term of the license with subsections B and C as described below.

A. Provide a performance bond which covers site investigation, tank removal, clean up/remediation costs and site restoration if there is a release of fuel from the storage facilities. The bond shall be payable to the City and shall be in an amount of not less than $2 million. The bond shall continue for as long as the applicant dispenses fuel at the City Airport and for two years thereafter. The bond shall be in a form acceptable to the City Manager and shall be issued by an insurance company with at least an A rating by the AM BEST Insurance rating system. As an alternative, the applicant may deposit $2 million with the City. All interest earned on these funds shall be paid to the applicant at least quarterly.
B. Provide a policy of general comprehensive liability insurance including products/completed operations coverage. The products/completed operations coverage shall at a minimum provide liability protection from allegations of the dispensing of improper or contaminated fuel. The insurance coverage shall be at least $1 million per occurrence with a deductible not greater than $1,000. The City shall be named as an additional insured on the policy. This policy shall be issued by an insurance company with at least an A rating by the AM BEST Insurance rating system.
C. Provide a policy of environmental impairment liability insurance which is designed to provide third party liability protection from third party claims such as actions by governments or land owners due to damages allegedly caused by the applicant relating to the dispensing or storage of fuel at the City Airport and also to provide liability protection relating to spills or releases associated with motor vehicles used by the applicant. The insurance coverage shall be at least $1 million per occurrence with a deductible of not greater than $5,000. The City shall be named as an additional insured. This policy shall be issued by an insurance company with at least an A rating by the AM BEST Insurance rating system.

Section 2.305 Fees

The fee for the license shall be set by resolution of the City Council. The fee shall be of an amount sufficient to reimburse the City for all administrative costs associated with the issuance of the license. Administrative costs include, but are not limited to, legal fees and consultant fees relating to the review of documents and the issuance of the license. There shall be no renewal fees.

Section 2.306 License

The license shall be in a form determined by the City Manager. The license shall continue until such time as the applicant fails to remain in compliance with all requirements of this Ordinance; or, if the applicant is an FBO dispensing fuel to third parties, fails to be available to provide such services on-site at least 8 hours per day for 30 days in any one year period; or, if the applicant is an air charter operator, fails to be available to provide such services on site at least 8 hours per day for 30 days in any one year period.

Minister group hosts praise meet

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association is sponsoring a Community Praise Gathering at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 18, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

The gathering will be an evening of singing contemporary praise and worship choruses. There will be other special features in the service as well. The service will begin and conclude with songs by a Community Choir, which is composed of vocalists from the participating churches. A Community Orchestra with instrumentalists from the various churches will accompany the praise and worship singing. The local Men's Glee Club will be singing a couple of special songs and a Youth Band will be presenting an "afterglow" concert of contemporary music. The Bell Choir from the Congregational Church will play the offertory.

In prior years the ministerial association has sponsored Hymn Sings. Such events were well attended and served to unify the community. The large turnout for the Christian Unity Service at St. Mary's Catholic Church on Feb. 9 prompted local pastors to organize another "community" worship service. Out of their discussion at the March ministerial association meeting came the plans for the upcoming Community Praise Gathering.

An afterglow fellowship time will immediately follow the service May 18. Refreshments will be served. Everyone is invited.

Church briefs

Crop walk date changed

Changing the dates of the 1997 Charlevoix County CROP Walk was one of the actions taken by the organizing committee when it met April 21 at the Methodist Church in Charlevoix. This year's walk will be held Saturday, Sept. 27, rather than on the first Saturday in October.

Present at the meeting was Johanna G. Blazer of Lansing, associate director of the Michigan CROP Walk. She agreed that the change in the date would avoid conflict with the annual Catholic Diocesan meeting in Gaylord and perhaps free more people to join the walk against hunger. Twenty-five percent of money collected is returned to the three local food pantries in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan to help fight hunger on a local level..In 1996, the pantries shared $3,609.87.

Chosen coordinators of the county walk were Mary Helen Riggle and Kay Smith of Charlevoix, Diana Walls of Boyne City, and Marge Teske of East Jordan.

1997 is the 14th year for the walk in Charlevoix County, but it's the 50th anniversary of CROP Walk nationally. It is hoped that 140 walkers will take to the streets in Charlevoix County with a goal of $14,000 in pledges.

There are 300 agencies to which walkers can designate their pledges. This way each walker can walk for an agency he or she particularly wishes to support.

Methodist ladies hosting bake sale

The Charlevoix United Methodist Women are holding their annual "Spring Salad Luncheon Bazaar and Bake Sale" from 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. Friday, May 9, at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, 104 State St.

Cost is $5 for adults or $4.50 for seniors. As always there will be a variety of salads, vegetables, meat dishes and pie for desert. Come see our expanded bazaar and new fellowship hall.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

She was 100 years old. The year she was born was the year the first Buick rolled down America's highways. In her lifetime, our wings took us from the sand dunes of Kitty Hawk to the silvery plains of the moon. The Spanish American War, the "War to End All Wars," World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War marked our history. We grew to fifty states. The innocence of "Leave it to Beaver" gave way to the bluntness of "NYPD Blue." A lot has happened in the century she was around. To me, she was a shining light that will sorely be missed.

There are babies who are now grandparents themselves that came into this world with her helping hands. I can imagine what was her firm, steady voice watching over a young mother in labor and reassuring her that everything would be all right. It's not hard to picture the broad smile that would break out when that new life arrived safely in his or her mother's arms.

She and her husband saw to it that a lot of folks kept active and stayed active in Grange meetings. Their horse and wagon would go from neighbor's house to house picking them up for a ride down to meetings and parties and all the other things that went along with being a Granger. It didn't matter if they were the last ones to get home. They were looking after their friends.

Those of us who were priviliged to really know her would tell you about her quilting as well. One of the first times I met her, nearly twelve years ago, I had to squeeze my way around a quilting frame that filled one end of her trailer home. She had piles of material that she would lovingly sort according to colors and patterns, many of which would end up in a priceless gift of love. My wife and I enjoy a peach colored creation of hers every winter.

Her most recent home was at Boulder Park Terrace. The comment I most often heard was that she was "the model resident." She never complained. She always tried to help. She kept thinking of others before she would think of herself.

So why write about a 100 year old woman that a lot of you may have never known. Because above all, she knew the Lord. She was ready to go home to heaven. She was an example of hope and courage in an era that has all too few. She may have left but her legacy will continue to touch more than a few hearts she left behind.

I share her tale because I want you to realize that more people pay attention to who you are and what you do in life than you might think. And if you are someone who has faith in the Lord, more people are looking at how you react and handle things to see if faith really works. If they see it at work in you, they might be open to it themselves.

Charlotte Willis was a blessing in her century upon this earth. I don't expect to last that long myself. If I do, that's great. But one thing I want to do. I want to try and be a "Beacon of Blessing" every day the Lord gives me. I hope you too will value the joy of what reaching out and touching other people's hearts can do.

Big Rock ex-manager joins nuclear institute

Pat Donnelly is no longer the plant manager for Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. He has accepted a new, temporary position with the Institute of Nuclear Power Operations as an assistant evaluation team manager.

Donnelly left April 28 to prepare to help lead a team of nuclear specialists as they visit nuclear power plants across the United States to provide technical assistance and performance improvement strategies. His assignment is expected to last from 12 to 24 months. The nuclear power organization is headquartered in Atlanta, Ga.

Pat Donnelly

Donnelly was named Big Rock Point plant manager in 1993. He began his career with parent company Consumers Energy in 1966 as an assistant operator at the Saginaw River Steam plant. He joined Big Rock Point in 1969 as an auxiliary operator. He held increasingly responsible positions in operations, risk assessment and licensing at Big Rock Point and Consumers Palisades plant in Covert, Mich.

"Pat Donnelly's vision and leadership helped Big Rock Point achieve significant improvements in his four years at the plant," said Consumers senior vice president of nuclear, fossil and hydro operations Bob Fenech. "Under his watch Big Rock Point continued its outstanding safety record, became the longest running nuclear plant in the United States, set a plant record for electrical generation and set new plant records for United Way giving. That is a record to he proud of."

Ken Powers, Big Rock Point's plant general manager, will be assuming all of Donnelly's duties, according to plant public affairs director Tim Petrosky. Powers came to the plant in January.

Donnelly and his wife, Judy, plan to keep their home in Charlevoix while on assignment in Atlanta.

Tickets on sale for $5 million dinner

A planning meeting was held recently at the Charlevoix Country Club for the Five Million Dollar Dinner, which is a fund-raiser for Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Tickets are now on sale for the Five Million Dollar Dinner, which will be held Saturday June 14. The dinner will be held at the elegant home of Mary and Chuck Adams of Charlevoix. Their home overlooks Lake Michigan, and will offer the five lucky winning couples not only an evening to remember, but a magnificent sunset as well.

The fun begins as each winning couple is chauffeur-driven to the Adams' home to sip champagne and sample hor d'oeuvres. The six course gourmet meal, coordinated by the Charlevoix Country Club, will be a team effort by area chefs from Andante, Crow's Nest, New York Restaurant, Charlevoix Country Club, Rowe Inn, Walloon Lake Inn and Tapawingo.

Tickets may be purchased at the McCune Art Center in Petoskey, Compulsive Cravings in Charlevoix and the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. The drawing, is 1 p.m., Tuesday, May 27. Tickets are $10.

For further information, call the arts center at 347-4337.

Tennis

The Rayder Tennis team captured their first win of the season with a 6-2 victory over Grayling.

The team swept all four doubles matches with Ben Owens-Eric Halverson, George LaBlance-Wally Pair, Jamie Whitley-Simeon Perreon, and Leah Dulaney-Shelly Riley all taking straight set victories.

"That number three doubles match by Whitley and Perreon was tremendous and really exciting for them," coach Bob Morgridge said of the 4-6,6-4 and 7-5 match.

Two single victories by Scott Pair and Jess Wood rounded out the wins.

"It was just so great to see the smile on Scott's face after his win," Morgridge said. "It was really important to him."

Dave Drury and Todd Freidinger playing at #1 and #2 singles respectively dropped their matches.

The team plays in the Lake Michigan Conference championship Friday, May 9, at Boyne Mountain Tennis Courts. Play begins at 9 a.m. at Traverse City St. Francis, Elk Rapids, and Whittemore-Prescott are considered the favorites to win.

Soccer

The Lady Rayder Soccer team split a pair of 1-0 decisions last week.

Despite nine saves from keeper Kristy Shindorf, the Rayders fell to the Alpena Wildcats 1-0, but earlier in the week gained a measure of revenge against against Cadillac winning 1-0 on a goal from Mandy Webb.

Katy Conlan fired a shot towards the goal, but the keeper had a little case of butterfingers and Webb was able to knock the rebound home. Meg Spang and Lindsey Carland played well at midfield and sweeper and Shindorf registered her fourth shut-out.

The Rayders play at Harbor Springs Wednesday, May 7 at 5 p.m. before hosting the Charlevoix Invitational this weekend.

Lansing Central Catholic, Reed City, and Elk Rapids will join the Rayders. Play begins Friday, May 9, at 4 p.m. with a doubleheader and Saturday, May 10, winners and losers play each other beginning at 10 a.m. The matches will be at Kipke Field, but the pairings have not been set.

Track and Field

Dave Manker took first place in the 100 meter dash as did the girls 800 meter relay of Tricia Kelly, Jessica VanGuilder, Anne Marie Terryberry, and Liz Andreae and the girls 400 meter relay of Kelly, VanGuilder, Terryberry, and Sarah Dominic as the Rayder Track and Field teams competed in the Kalkaska Invitational over the weekend.

Overall the boys' team finished fourth overall with 62 points, the girls seventh overall with 38 points.

Harbor Springs and Kalkaska tied for the girls title while Kalkaska took the boys crown.

The team runs in their first home match of the year against East Jordan Wednesday, May 7.

Baseball/Softball

All four varsity and junior varsity baseball and softball teams had their games against Kalkaska rained out Monday afternoon.

Athletic Director Barry Anderson said the games will be rescheduled because they are league contests although a date has not yet been set.

The baseball team is 6-5, 3-3 in league play while the softball team is 8-5, 4-2 in Lake Michigan Division play.

The teams have two home doubleheaders this week, Wednesday, May 7 vs. Gaylord and Thursday, May 8 vs. Boyne City. Games begin at 4:30 p.m.

A men's and women's softball meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, in the city council chambers at city hall. A $100 team fee is due at this time.

Men interested in forming teams or playing on a fast pitch league are encouraged to attend.

Varsity wrestling coach quits

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The Charlevoix athletic department has another coaching vacancy as the board of education voted 7-0 Monday to accept the resignation letter of head wrestling coach Phil Christ.

Athletic director Barry Anderson had sent Christ a letter dated April 30, 1997 informing him that his services as coach are "no longer desired," and that within the program were "problem areas which have made your dismissal necessary."

Christ responded with a one sentence letter of resignation dated May 2, 1997.

A tight-lipped Anderson refused comment on what specific problems existed other than that he was concerned that numbers were low.

Ten students went out for the 1996-97 team, but most either quit or battled ineligibility problems, leaving Christ with just two wrestlers by season's end, forcing many cancellations of meets.

The team had been mostly comprised of first year players and underclassmen, leading the team to compete in JV and freshmen tournaments when they did compete.

"I'm just trying to save the program," Anderson said Tuesday morning.

Anderson did say that despite low numbers, it would be premature to consider wrestling an endangered species as a Rayder varsity sport, noting the success as well as high participation in this year's middle school wrestling teams.

Christ refused to comment.

Christ's resignation marks the sixth head varsity coach in the last year to resign for a variety of reasons.

Fore! One of the program's students makes a swing to tee off during last summer's classes.

Area youth take swing at golfing

Area youngsters 7-17 are alerted that the popular summer golf instructional program will again be offering both lessons and tournament play to Charlevoix area youth. Charlevoix Area Junior Golf Association Academy's Director Dean Davenport is releasing plans for this summer's program.

"Our goal is to structure a healthy teaching environment so that area young people will learn early, the proper fundamentals, golf etiquette, and official rules so they can enjoy a sport that will last them a lifetime," said Dean Davenport, Charlevoix Area Golf Association Director.

The program is starting its third summer. In 1995, the first year, there were 118 participants. Last year 129 enjoyed the 10-session program. This year's plans includes all aspects of the previous years. The instructional staff will again feature teaching professionals from area courses; Charlevoix Country Club, Dunmaglas, Belvedere, and the Charlevoix Municipal Course. Classes and golfing opportunities will be scheduled at each of these same local courses. Last year, the program offered intensive instruction early in the summer, meeting several times weekly so that by midJuly youngsters were ready to apply their lessons to actual play.

The seven member board of directors that oversees the program has added an advisory committee, consisting of selected parents, area coaches, ant other golf enthusiasts that give guidance in program growth and direction. New this year is the decision to form a Golf Mentor Corp. out of adults desiring to monitor foursomes as they play 2-4 holes. More volunteers are needed.

Board president, Brian Brogan, reminds parents that while there's an advantage for youngsters to own their own equipment, there are clubs at each lesson, available for those that don't have their own.

The cost of the program is relatively inexpensive with a small registration fee, which provides a shirt and hat for each participant, and a couple dollars for each lesson that generates some of the revenue necessary to fund the program. The remainder of funding comes from the popular "Supe" Invitational Golf Classic held in late August. Local golfers support the program through participating in this tournament that enables the association to send 5-6 youngsters to Ferris State University's summer golf school for a week.

"As in the past, scholarships will be available for any youngster where finances may be a hardship as well as to selected youngsters with potential that could be enhanced by the exposure to the sport of golf," said board member Nancy LaCroix. She has more information at 547-6418.

Registration and the orientation session will begin around the week of June 16, however, the exact date is to still be determined. Applications for the Summer Golf School Scholarship program for those 12 or over who regularly attended last year's program will be taken in late May.

For more information, contact the Charlevoix Recreation Department office at 547-3253 and the Municipal Golf Course 547-3268 or contact Dean Davenport at 796-7252 or 547-6433.

City sets 1997 launch ramp fees

Effective this year, the City of Charlevoix will have the following fee structure at the Ferry Beach Launch Ramp: daily rate $5, seasonal resident $15, seasonal nonresident $30.

In previous years there was no charge for a seasonal resident permit, but as a result of rising expenses to operate the facility, additional revenue was needed to offset those costs.

OBITUARIES

Clifford T. Reich

Clifford T. Reich, 87, of Charlevoix, died May 3, 1997, at Meadow Brook Medical Care Facility in Bellaire.

Funeral service will be 10 a.m. Thursday, May 8, at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The Rev. Dale Ostema will officiate. Burial will take place in Donaldson Cemetery in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Mr. Reich was born March 29, 1910, in Sault Ste. Marie, the son of William and Nancy (Eagle) Reich. He attended trade school and learned to do carpentry work.

Mr. Reich built several homes. He worked for Locks City Manufacturing in Sault Ste. Marie for many years.

On Aug. 31, 1935, he married Edna White in Pickford, Mich. She preceded him in death on May 14, 1994.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1966. Mr. Reich retired in 1975 from Freedman Aircraft in Charlevoix, now known as Harbor Industries.

He kept busy during his retirement working in his garden and doing woodworking for many people. Mr. Reich enjoyed camping, traveling and reading the Bible.

He was a member of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Norma Mae Kuhl of Longmont, Colo., and Verna Darlene Truman of Charlevoix; five grandchildren, Jack Levi Jewett, Bill T. Jewett, Shirley C. Jewett, Scott K. Truman and Gary T. Truman; several great-grandchildren and nieces and nephews; one brother, Manford Reich and his wife, Dottie, of Yucaipa, Calif.; and three sisters, Bernice C. Reich of Redford, Mich., Alva Allen of Cortez, Colo., and Pearl Newcomb of Newberry, Fla.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Reich was preceded in death by his daughter, Olive Reich; and by 10 brothers and sister.

Memorial contributions are suggested to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Elizabeth R. Brun

Elizabeth R. Brun, 89, of Bayshore, died May 3, 1997, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan.

Funeral service was 10 a.m. Wednesday, May 7, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Wilbert Hegener will officiate. Burial will take place at Saint Francis Xavier Cemetery in Petoskey.

Mrs. Brun was born May 14, 1907, in Yugoslavia, the daughter of Michael and Rose Evakich. Mrs. Brun came to America at the age of 18, and settled in Northern Michigan. In October 1934 she married Joseph Brun in Ohio. He preceded her in death in September 1979.

Mrs. Brun and her husband moved to Bayshore in 1947.

She was a member of Saint Solanus Church and Altar Society in Bayshore.

Survivors include two sons, Thomas Brun and his wife Karen of Benton City, Wash.; and Michael Brun and his wife Donna of Orange Park, Fla.; two daughters Judy Herriman and her husband, Nate, and Louise Hamlin both of Charlevoix; 17 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Brun was preceded in death by her brother Paul and her son-in-law Thomas Hamlin.

Memorial contributions may be made to Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation was held Tuesday, May 6.

Charlotte C. Willis

Charlotte C. Willis, 100, of Charlevoix, died May 5, 1997, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was Tuesday, May 6, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Willis was born July 28, 1896, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Fred and Anna (Wells) Hull.

On June 3, 1916, she married George Willis in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death.

Mrs. Willis enjoyed sewing and making dolls. She also enjoyed quilting and needlework.

Mrs. Willis had a wonderful life.

She was a member of the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, and the Barnard Grange.

Survivors include one son, Jim Willis and his wife, Dorothy, of Beaver Island; two grandchildren, Ann Willis and Don Willis, both of Charlevoix; one great-granddaughter, Ashley Willis, of Metamora, Mich; and one dear friend, Helen Cunningham, of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Willis was preceded in death by three sisters, Edna Ager, Ruby Brown and Irene Whitley; and by three brothers, Frank, Lawrence and Floyd Hull.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Community Church of God. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation will be held from 7-9 p.m.

which qualified for the state finals. This is the school's third state title, winning in 1990 and 1993 prior to this year.

Middle School principal Dennis VanGuilder quipped when presented with a championship banner that his quaint gymnasium was beginning to resemble the fabled Boston Gardens.

While Charlevoix's three titles doesn't quite yet match those shamrocked Celtics' 16 titles, the playing field is not even, as most of Charlevoix's competitors are Class A schools from the metro and suburban Detroit area, where FPS is big business.

Avondale, for example, not only has dollars in their budget set aside for FPS, but training and gearing their students towards FPS is part of the curriculum.

Southard, meanwhile, admits that his program may be stretched a bit, but that there always has been a demand for FPS and he refuses to make it an exclusive club.

In order to raise money needed to make the trip, Southard has been taking the students around town. Southard said anyone interested in help can contact the middle school at 547-3206.

Lieberman said that, to him, FPS was "addicting" and he, MacMillan, and Trubilowicz had been teammates for three years. They were joined this year by English, who recently moved into the district, and they spent their time after school — "religiously" in Southard's words, even on Fridays — researching and reading up on every angle of the topic they would be facing in the competition.

For the state finals they dealt with competition in the workplace, and for the internationals event they will be tackling the concept of everlasting life.

During the competition, they go behind closed doors for two hours where they're given a specific problem within the topic and they must write a handful of solutions. By the end of the 120 minutes, they must be prepared to present and convince a panel of judges that one solution is the best.

Trubilowicz said that nerves have a tendency to take over in that room and as time ticks away a feeling of being rushed creates some arguments. Lieberman is quick to point out that there not arguments, but "creative conflicts."

"I can't go in the room with them physically, but believe me, I am in there spiritually," Southard said.

SCRAPBOOK

Area is wealthy in fishing history

By Nancy Ritsema
Courier columnist

Along the northern shores of Lake Michigan, several small creeks flow west into the big lake. In the spring, rains and melting snow fill the creek beds. Spawning trout and "bay fish," or suckers, swim into the creeks to deposit their eggs.

Suckers, freshwater fish with thick-lipped mouths for feeding by suction, have good flavor. The meat, however, is full of fine, forked bones which tend to get caught in your throat. Many early settlers to northern Michigan caught, scaled and cooked suckers, but after one meal of bones and fish, rarely ate them again. Most agreed they wouldn't pay a nickel for a three-pound sucker.

Commercial fishermen a century ago hated the suckers because they rolled up on their nets and broke the mesh, and were of no market value. Hook and line pleasure fishermen, who were eager to catch a fine, flashing trout, wouldn't dream of bringing home a sucker.

Nonetheless, for over a hundred years, young and old alike have eagerly awaited the spring arrival of spawning suckers that splash their way up Whiskey and Antrim Creeks near Norwood. Many senior citizens today remember sliding and slipping on the wet banks of Whiskey Creek as a youth at midnight, a multi-pronged spear in one hand, and kerosene lamp or a flashlight in the other, waiting to spear the "running" suckers.

Ed Chase, whose family owned a summer home in Norwood, wrote of his recollections of spearing suckers in the late 1800s in a letter to family members. "The blacker and darker the night, the heavier the sucker run up the creeks would be. The suckers didn't start their run until around midnight, except at the height of the spawning season. Then the creek would be full of suckers. To be sure, we couldn't see all the fish in the darkness, but we speared them by the hundreds."

"The Dutch farmers, who came up north from around Holland, Mich., to turn cut-over timber land into farms, valued the suckers. They came over to Whiskey or Antrim Creek from around Ellsworth and Atwood with horses and wagons to harvest hundreds of pounds of fish. They smoked the suckers, and when smoked, the fish would keep indefinitely."

"The woods resounded with our shouts in both English and in Dutch. By daylight the excitement was over. Many of us had fallen into the creek, and all of us were wet."

"We boys rowed a small boat home along the lakeshore or trudged home on foot. The Hollanders went through the woods picking up the speared fish and dropping them into burlap sacks. They took home a wagonload of suckers at a time."

Around 1950, a group of five Norwood men raised the art of spearing fish to a new level. In early January, when the ice first froze solid and clear over Torch Lake, the men found a new way for them to spear the fish. Lacing on ice skates, they skated out onto two and a half inches of Torch Lake ice in search of a school of whitefish.

"We could see the bottom of the lake in the shallow parts of Torch," 84-year-old Stubb Lord of Norwood recalls, "and once we located the whitefish we moved them toward shore by tapping the ice with our ice spuds. The fish turned away from the tapping sound and in this way we "herded" them like they were sheep!"

"As soon as the fish swam into three or four feet water, we quickly knocked a hole in the ice and speared the fish. We started early in the morning and quit before 11 o'clock a.m. Once the sun grew strong, the ice clouded over in spots and we couldn't see through the ice to drive or spear the fish."

"Altogether, we caught about 15 three-pounders in one morning. A man from the Mort Neff show happened to be at Torch Lake that January morning and he filmed us. Everybody thought our fishing technique was pretty unusual. But we sure got a nice catch of whitefish," Stubb laughed.

TREE CITY USA
The National Arbor Day Foundation

ARBOR DAY IS 125 YEARS OLD THIS YEAR

The Arbor Day Foundation is a not-for-profit educational organization whose goal is to promote tree planting and improve the care of trees in both urban and rural areas. Arbor Day was first celebrated in Nebraska in 1872 when J. Sterling Morton, editor of Nebraska's first newspaper, convinced the state's Board of Agriculture to designate a special day for planting trees. At that time Nebraska was a treeless plain and Morton and many of his fellow eastern born pioneers missed all the benefits of trees and their beauty as well. As a result by 1894 Arbor Day was celebrated in every state. Today it is observed in many other countries as well. In downstate Michigan the Arbor Day celebrations are in the third week of April. Up here In Charlevoix our 'Plant-A-Tree Week" is in May.

CHARLEVOIX'S FIRST TREE ORDINANCE IS 103 YEARS OLD

In 1884 Amos Fox, President, Village of Charlevoix, along with the town's trustees enacted Ordnance No. 7 dealing with the protection of trees along streets and other public lands. Today no one knows how many trees there were in 1884, or if there are any still around.. However, a city-wide street-side tree count taken in late 1995 indicated a total of 3200 trees. Due to the city;s ongoing tree planting program this tree count is nearly 700 more than in a count done in 1987. With the help of property owners the City intends to keep the tree planting program on-going.

ONLY 2000 COMMUNITIES HAVE EARNED TREE CITY USA STATUS

Tree City USA is a cooperative program of the National Arbor Day Foundation, the National Association of State Foresters and the US Department of Agriculture Forest Service. Its purpose is to give national recognition to communities who have outstanding tree care programs and who are involving their private citizens in the process. It also provides technical information and expertise to enhance on-going tree management programs.

Each year, to be recertified, Charlevoix and other Tree City USA communities must meet four required standards. First: the annual budgets for tree planting and care projects by City staff must meet or exceed Tree City USA minimums. Second: there must be a tree protection ordinance. Third: There must be a tree management board including citizen volunteers ( the Shade Tree Commission.) Fourth: A proclamation by the Mayor calling for public celebrations of National Arbor Day (our "Plant-A-Tree Week".events.)

The 2000 nationwide Tree Cities USA, range in size from New York City at 7 million to Rodney Iowa, population 65. Also included are most US military bases. In Michigan there are 70 qualified communities. Those closest to Charlevoix are Alpena, Cadillac, Mackinaw City,and Traverse City.

Look for our Tree City USA flag on flagpoles around town during "Plant-A-Tree Week".

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS ---------- the City of Charlevoix has an ongoing tree management program for the planting, pruning and removal off hazardous trees; and a recycling program for the Street-side collection and composting of branches, leaves, and lawn clippings; and for providing the resultant enriched soil for City and residential planting projects; and -----

WHEREAS ---------- in 1997 the City will plant 200 trees in parks and recreational areas and on City right-of ways in front of both residential and non-residential properties and , when so requested by the owners and at no cost to the owners, up to 100 additional trees; and -----

WHEREAS ---------- in 1994 the City and Charlevoix Scout Troop 11 cooperated in establishing a tree nursery for growing the disease-resistant American Liberty Elm; many of which trees are now available for transplanting along City right-of-ways and may be purchased from the Scouts of Troop11 for planting on private lands; and ----

WHEREAS ---------- the year 1997 marks 125th anniversary of the first celebration of Arbor Day in Nebraska in 1872; and also marks the 103rd anniversary of the first tree protection Ordinance No. 7 in 1884 by the then Village of Charlevoix; and is also the 10th anniversary of the first Tree City USA certification in 1987 by the City of Charlevoix; and is also the anniversary of the City's most recent 1996 Tree CityUSA recertification; and -----

BE IT SO RESOLVED THAT THE MAYOR OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ---------- hereby declares the week of May 12th through the 17th, 1997 as "Plant-A-Tree Week" in recognition and in celebration of National Arbor Day and the 125th anniversary of its beginnings; and in observance of the past and future tree programs of the City of Charlevoix; and to promote its continuing participation in the nationwide Tree City USA program; and -----

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED ---------- that Charlevoix property owners, who have openings for trees along their street right-of ways, be urged to call the City Manager's office at 547- 3270 at once to reserve their trees for this year's fall planting; and ----

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED ---------- that as a part of the "Plant-a Tree Week" activities, all Charlevoix property owners be encouraged to enhance the beauty of their homes and businesses by planting trees; and -----

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED ---------- that "Plant-a-Tree-Week" observances be held by City departments, schools, churches, youth and service organizations, garden clubs and that promotions be offered by news media and businesses; and -----

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED --------- that the City will continue its partnership with Scout Troop 11 in growing Liberty American Elms and additionally American Chestnut trees for future transplanting to City and private properties.

School board candidates face issues during debate

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

During the school board candidate debate, a rarity occurred.

All seven candidates agreed on one issue: fixing maintenance problems at the schools. They all gave a thumbs-up to the Monday, June 9, ballot issue that asks voters to pay one mill for six years for roof repair, electrical rewiring, asbestos removal, and other work at the high and elementary schools.

Barnie Way

The rarity was brief, however, as most of the evening candidates differed on many issues facing the district. However, when the dust settled two sets of candidates were clear.

There are those who favor the M-66 land purchase and those who don't want to buy it because of the proposed budget cuts that are sure to change Charlevoix schools.

Barney Way, Scott Boss, and Dwight "Ike" Boss spoke out against the land, noting that they are worried over the parcel's wetness, lack of sewer and water systems, and its distance from downtown Charlevoix. (Scott Boss's answers to prearranged questions were communicated by his father. He could not attend because of a prior business commitment.)

Ike Boss

Ike Boss quipped the land was in "Char-Ironton," and that schools should remain where "students can walk to them."

Added Way, "How can we keep businesses downtown if we jerk the schools away from it."

Joan Buday, Pat McKeown Jr., Dennis Halverson, and Michael MacMillan all favor the purchase as a good investment for Charlevoix's future.

Halverson feared without this land schools in the future would be in Atwood. MacMillan pointed out that once before the district failed to invest in land and said that land "is not getting closer, nor is it getting cheaper."

Buday reminded the audience that some sites may have been better, but that owners were not willing to sell.

Joan Buday

McKeown supports the land purchase, but proposed a different use for it: Building a new high school on the existing football fields, moving middle schoolers into the high school, and using the M-66 land for an athletic complex. The middle school on Grant Street could become the central office with extra rooms being rented out to businesses as a way of income for the district. This would also create extra parking for downtown, he said.

All the candidates did seem to want a new middle school, although they differed in approach with Halverson, Buday, and MacMillan favoring building on the M-66 site; Way, Ike Boss, and Scott Boss doing so in a "fiscally responsible" facility plan, although neither of them put forth any de-

High school students could face closed campus for lunch

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Administrators and school board members have met twice to discuss the possibility of closing the high school campus.

When school reconvenes next fall, a new set of lunch rules may exist.

"It's just in the investigative stage," principal Gary Grundman said. "The jury is still out."

Grundman's jury is Charlevoix's parents. Questionnaires from the school broaching the subject were sent out to parents. Grundman said a vast majority of them support an open campus as a privilege for the school's upperclassmen.

He said that it dips to an even split in regard to the tenth-graders and when discussing freshmen, parents seem to support closing the campus by a slim majority.

Grundman supports closing the campus, but gradually, beginning with the freshman class.

With the open campus policy, students are free to leave the school during lunchtime, which on most days is 12:15 to 12:55 p.m. for lunch at home or at one of the many eateries surrounding the school. Many feel the time is a break from the monotony of school and is a treasured time for all students.

Some students do stay on campus. Grundman estimated anywhere between 165-210 students a day stay and eat at the school's cafeteria. On the busiest days, nearly half of the school stays to eat either a

Annual petunia planting scheduled

Charlevoix streets will be lined by petunia planters beginning at 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 27. The flowers will be ready to be planted, and everyone is welcome to come and dig in the dirt.

The Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Board is preparing for the annual Petunia Planting and Picnic. The city, service groups, organizations, businesses and individuals are involved in the preparation.

Planters are needed along U.S. 31 South, Bridge Street, Petoskey Ave. and U.S. 31 North. Block captains for planting are being recruited by Karen Kelly-Lavanway (547-5345). Jean Seymour (547-9732) and Patti Sitzema will have all the food, grills and dining tables in place at 6 p.m. in East Park. Seymour is asking volunteers to call her if they are unable to plant, but willing to wrap a hot dog or two.

Dale Boss and crew are preparing the Petunia truck to have all the bright colors in place, with Pam Barnes coordinating ideas for ongoing maintenance. Men, women, children and students are asked to help Keep Charlevoix Beautiful again this year.

Performing arts team makes 7th at state

Charlevoix's talented troupe of thespians showed off their talents at a recent state competition where they finished in seventh place out of 71 schools competing in the "C-D" category.

Ian Powell, Kelli Skiba, Nick Bogart, Nick Kessler, Jennifer Ricks, and Danica Kilander put their own spin on Pink Floyd's The Wall, earning themselves a fourth-place finish overall.

Performing a version of Hamlet, Ryan Borths, Rhonda Williams, Mike Czerkes, Caleb Levengood, Ann Scott, and Nick Gosberg acted into an eigth-place finish. Heather Gotshall and Kris Staton placed 13th acting as a duo portraying the life of poet Slyvia Plath. Kari Jo Boss and Jessica Babb placed 14th in the duo competition.

The troop ends their acting year with a special dinner theater Saturday, May 17.

Drive closed near Glen's

One driveway at the Captain's Corner shopping center is closed to traffic.

In compliance with the city council's approval of a site plan, the southern most driveway going onto M-66 is closed. A new entrance is located off Stover Road, near the new Rite Aid. A barracade is being used to block the drive.

Developers originally planned to closed both the north and south drives off of M-66 after construction of a larger, more central drive. However, last fall property manager Tracy Sell approached council with concerns of the cost for the changes.

Council members allowed an old drive to remain open, stating that they were committed to only allowing one driveway onto M-66 because of traffic congestion near the intersection.

Events in brief

Launch ramp fees set for summer

Effective this year, the City of Charlevoix will have the following fee structure at the Ferry Beach Launch Ramp: Daily rate $5, seasonal resident $15 and seasonal nonresident $30.

In previous years there was no charge for a seasonal resident permit, but as a result of rising expenses to operate the facility, additional revenue will be used to offset those costs.

Local girl wins county coloring contest

Sara Shepard

Charlevoix first-grader, Sara Shepard, is the winner of the Charlevoix County Humane Society's Be Kind to Animals coloring contest.

All contest participants received certificates and humane society buttons. Sara's winnings include a blue ribbon, two free games of bowling, a movie theater ticket, Kmart gift certificate, a two liter bottle of Coke, a combo meal from McDonald's and an am/fm radio cassette player.

All entrants' artwork can be seen at the Charlevoix County Humane Society at 1004 Grant St.

Annual circus coming to town

The Kelly-Miller Circus, sponsored by the Charlevoix Lions Club, is returning to Charlevoix. The circus is making its third return trip and will perform at 2 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Saturday, July 5, 1997, across from the ball field on Carpenter Street in the large field next to the city's utility facility.

The circus is family oriented entertainment and well known throughout the Charlevoix community. This year, the circus will feature new shows in a new big top tent.

Tickets will be on sale at various stores and from members of the Lions Club. Advance ticket sales are $5 for children and $7 for adults. Tickets sold on the day of the performance are $7 for children and $9 for adults.

School board candidate forum scheduled

The Charlevoix Elementary P.T.O. is having a School Board Candidate Forum from 6:30-8 p.m. Tuesday, May 20, in the elementary school library.

Each candidate will have time for an opening comment, followed by prepared questions asked by a forum moderator. Written questions will be taken from the audience. Each answer will have a time limit.

Golf outing, dinner raises money for D.A.R.E.

The 8th Annual D.A.R.E. Benefit Golf Outing is being held Thursday, May 22, at the Alpine Golf Course at Boyne Mountain. The event raises money to teach drug and violence resistance to Charlevoix and Emmet county students.

A prime rib dinner will be held for golfers and non-golfers. Tee off is at noon and dinner begins at 5 p.m.

Businesses are welcome to sponsor holes for $100 or make prize donations.

For more information, call the Boyne City Police Department at 582-6611.

The second and last major phase of the Charlevoix Elementary School playground is installed by volunteers amid cool temperatures Saturday. To finish the project, a wheel chair ramp, basketball courts and park benches will be added. The newest equipment — a large play area, spring ring toy, independent twirler, double tire swing and an independent swing — are all made from recycled soup cans and plastic containers. The playground is worth more than $120,000, $40,000 of which was covered by the school budget.

Crack dealers face more charges

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

It was a bad day in court for defendants Michael Russell and Pamela Stoneham Fuller as their preliminary hearing on drug dealing charges wrapped up in district court Thursday adding two more felony charges to their list.

Charlevoix County Assistant Prosecutor Larry Burgess asked judge Richard May to impose two counts of conspiracy to deliver cocaine onto the docket of charges, which already includes two counts of delivery/manufacturing cocaine, possession of cocaine, and possession of marijuana.

John Michael, defense attorney for Russell, pleaded with May to dismiss the delivery charges against his client.

He said the prosecution's confidential informant had contradicted himself on the witness stand about Russell's whereabouts during the drug deal at the Mason Street house in March.

Michael said that the witness' testimony in the police report in comparison to what he stated in court was a "100 percent about face."

On the stand the informant said that Russell had been watching TV, was in and out of the house, but that he and Fuller at one point were arguing, presumably over the deal.

> "At no time did he say to Mr. Russell 'hey can you sell me some rocks or how much are some rocks. No conversation existed at all."
> — John Michael, defense attorney

"At no time did he say to Mr. Russell 'hey can you sell me some rocks or how much are some rocks,'" Michael said "No conversation existed at all."

Michael also pointed out that a defense witness said he and Russell spent the evening watching television.

Two Charlevoix educators chosen as outstanding people

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Success is in the smile for Charlevoix teachers Roger Gowell and Betsy Reynolds.

Gowell

Teaching at opposite ends of the spectrum — Gowell being a high school biology teacher and Reynolds a K-5 teacher's aid who tutors less-gifted students — both realize their impact through their pupils' smiles.

"When after a little work they say 'Oh, now I see it,'" Reynolds said, "I see that smile start as they begin to understand. It makes my day."

Gowell gets satisfaction when his class — some he admits might not have biology as their subject of choice — attacks the projects he assigns with gusto.

For their efforts, Gowell and Reynolds have been voted Outstanding People in Education. The OPIE awards, in their second year, are handed out by the local Michigan Education Association chapter recognizing teachers and other staff members who are impacting students' lives in and out of the classroom. This year 14 winners from 32 northern Michigan schools were recipients of the awards at a banquet Tuesday in Gaylord.

Reynolds

"This is a real honor, there are some excellent teachers in this building alone," Gowell said. "I am not alone in this award, I have some fine colleagues and students."

Gowell, who is in his 23rd year at Charlevoix High School, said his goal is the same today as it was when the district hired him out of Central Michigan University: Create an enthusiastic, hands-on approach in the classroom and students will follow.

"It lets them do things instead of just hear them," he said. "If you let them do a lot of labs and dissections it keeps them interested and gives them more opportu-

OPINIONS

'Well done' offered to volunteers

EDITORIAL

Volunteers give countless hours of service throughout the year. However, spring is when they are noticed most. It is when they are seen picking up trash along the highways, raking neighbors' lawns, cleaning up children's day camps, building playgrounds, and beautifying area cemeteries.

This past week area residents, firefighters and certified divers, Scouts and service club members tended to Charlevoix the Beautiful. They gave up personal agendas to help make two major community projects step beyond planning stages.

The projects involved dredging the bottom of Round Lake and hauling away the trash and the construction of phase two of the elementary school playground. Numerous people help removed the refuse that man carelessly left in the lake. Another group built more playground equipment for the community's youth.

These projects are a wonderful example of how Charlevoix can band together for the good of the whole. Past differences and opinions about how the city or schools should be run, whose child may have mistreated another child, and what side of town people live on were left behind.

Gathered at the Round Lake cleanup, which was organized by the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department were divers and firefighters, local police, Boy Scout Troop 6, Cub Scout Pack 11, the Tiger Cubs, Girl Scout Troop 267, members of the Barnard Grange and individuals from throughout Charlevoix. The team worked together to get the debris from the lake to dumpsters. People then ate lunch together.

The playground project was continued from a November effort that built phase one. Tools and coffee were brought to the site as more of the town's volunteers invested time and energy into an improvement project.

As head of the playground project, Robin Blosh said that two years of raising money and organizing was worth the look on a little girl's face when she gazed at the new playground equipment and said how beautiful it was.

The playground, the lake and several townships are more beautiful today because of Charlevoix's willingness to work together. Kudos to all.

Letters to the editor

Thanks expressed for birthday party

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who helped make my 80th birthday party at Greensky Indian Hill Susan House very memorable for me. The many cards, flowers, gifts, money and just your attendance meant so much to me.

A special thank you to the following friends who helped make this a joyous event: Debbie and Joey Palmer, Betty Martinchek, Virginia Marme, Birdie Whitley, Tommy Meggison, John Haggard, Jan Dohm, Dale Boss, Louie Poole, Helen Gaskin, Lyn and Scott Groves, Gina Gaskin, Lori Kopecki and my family. Also, thank you to the many of you who volunteered your time on the clean-up crew. What a great team.

Most of all I would like to thank my grandsons Jeff, Chad and Jamie and great-granddaughter Kylie Mae for thinking so much of me to travel many miles on the weekend to attend my party. One of the greatest gifts of life is friends, and I am truly blessed with so many of them. Thank you from the bottom of my heart.

Sincerely,
Lillian May "Frenchie" Holm

Letter carrier lauds support of food drive

Editor:

Once again, the residents of Charlevoix are to be applauded for their generosity during the NALC food drive on Saturday, May 10. Through their donations, letter carriers in Charlevoix collected 8,100 pounds of food items. A sincere "Thank You" to each of you who donated items.

I would also like to thank each letter carrier who loaded up their cars and mail trucks with food and still, somehow, managed to get the mail delivered; volunteers from Charlevoix Assembly of God and volunteers from Charlevoix Community Food Pantry who so cheerfully and efficiently loaded their vehicles; Lori Antaya for bagging items; and letter carrier Al Seese (the one who wore shorts all winter to raise $500 for Muscular Dystrophy) and his family for volunteering their time and labor on Al's only Saturday off in quite a while.

The goal of this food drive is to feed the hungry. It does not matter what walk of life the hungry come from or from where they collect this food. I hope these donations will help those who are truly in need as intended.

Sincerely,
Kelly Morris

Bicycle licensing could raise road money

Editor:

I read with great interest an article in the Petoskey News-Review where our own sheriff George Lasater made a suggestion that the State of Michigan license all bicycles on our roads, the revenue to be used to establish bike paths. What a great idea.

I've wondered for years why we license everything we use except bicycles on our highways. We are even required to license our dogs (a great percentage of them running loose on streets and neighborhoods) so why not license bicycles? There is a great amount of money "lost" for our roads without this license fee. I have a bike and ride it once in awhile and have always thought I should be required to buy a license. After all, wouldn't this be classified as a "use tax?" This is something that should be considered.

My second concern is the intersection of US-31 and Boyne City Road. Once again, sheriff Lasater has gone "the extra mile" trying to get this intersection changed in order for it to be safer for our motorists. As a concerned citizen who travels this route daily, I have seen numerous accidents (some very serious and deadly) and I am very concerned about this section of US-31.

Sheriff Lasater has tried extremely hard to bring attention to this section, to no avail. I believe only a blinking light is to be installed. This is not going to take care of the problem. We need a wider turn lane, as there is a blind spot on US-31 when cars pull out from Boyne City Road onto US-31.

We all know how busy that intersection is and it will be busier with our new pool and country club just up the road. I urge everyone who is concerned about this very dangerous intersection to write our congressmen and anyone else you can think of to get this changed before we see more accidents and deaths at this area. I will be starting a petition in order to show our concern. If you are interested in signing this petition please call me at 547-5790.

Student thankful for recognition of writing

Editor:

I would like to thank you and your staff of writers for reprinting my article regarding the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Fishing Tournament. As you may have gathered, my highest interest and quality is writing.

As a dedicated student of the Charlevoix High School Publication's class, I do understand the day to day rush of deadlines and hard work that goes on in the newsroom, and in bringing out a newspaper. I have also learned the quality work should have, as well as its accuracy. Having my name republished under my article, made a huge difference in my eyes as well as others, more than you may actually know. I am now able to post it in my portfolio, for future use in job opportunities.

Again thank you, and I hope to one day be a part of the Charlevoix Courier. I always will acknowledge your work, as others should mine.

Sincerely,
Laura N. Maltese
Publication's Student

Charlevoix couple make bridge tourney a success

Editor:

On May 3 and 4, 1997, the Birchwood Inn of Harbor Springs, hosted it's semi-annual Contract Bridge Tournament. Thanks to David and Nancy Fowler of Charlevoix, the tournament ran very smoothly and the entire event was a huge success.

Three rounds of 28 hands were played with round one being won by Judy Owen and Joan Hursh of Royal Oak with 5,950 points. Round two was taken by Philip and Virginia Miller of Lupton with 6,570 points and round three was won by Marion Pray of Petoskey and Jessie Willson of Boyne City with 6,820.

The grand prize winners of the tournament were Stan and Lee Katlein of Boyne City with a grand total score of 17,090.

Congratulations to all of the winners. The next bridge tournament at Birchwood Inn will be Saturday-Sunday, October 25-26. Please call 800-5530-9955 if you would like more information.

Sincerely,
Janece Clark

nities to be successful."

Gowell's classes challenge students and lately they have been using the Internet, which Gowell appreciates because it lets his students into a whole new world of research usually not available to Charlevoix students.

"It also helps me keep up with current research, so it makes me a better teacher as well."

Reynolds doesn't focus on one subject, rather, she tutors a variety of disciplines to those students who are having trouble keeping pace. Like Gowell, she preaches enthusiasm.

"If I show my enthusiasm for the subject and the lesson, it will rub off on them," she said. "Keep their spirits boosted, keep it exciting, then the job of teaching is that much easier."

Reynolds has been on the job for 20 years. She helps students become better readers by not straying too far away from the basics: Phonetics, learning vowel sounds, and decoding words by sounding them out.

"The old basics seem to work the best," she said. "You always want to incorporate new teaching methods, but you can never get to far away from the basics."

Charlevoix Area Hospital taking nominations for board of directors

Three terms on the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors are expiring.

Nominations for the positions may be made by any member of the hospital association or person who has donated to the hospital in the past year. Those nominated should be at least 18 years of age and be members of the association in good standing or a contributor to the hospital. He or she should have an interest in the viability of the hospital and its importance as a community health resource.

Nominations should be in writing and addressed to Richard L. Krueger, president, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Lake Shore Drive, Charlevoix, MI 49720. The deadline for nominations is May 31.

Elections will be held at the annual meeting on July 15.

New restaurant brings variety of foreign tastes to Charlevoix

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

A friendship started between co-workers at a gourmet delicatessen has weaved into a partnership at Charlevoix's newest restaurant.

Helen Coon and Paul Carter purchased the eatery, formerly known as On the Edge, on Bridge Street overlooking the channel. The name has changed to Charly's (Sharlee's) and the entire menu revamped.

The pair met while working at Palate Pleaser, a gourmet take-out in Bloomfield Hills, and spent this past winter putting the refinements on their restaurant.

"Regional cuisine, with the finest, freshest ingredients available. That's really who we are," Carter said, describing their menu.

The menu taps into Coon's international background. A native of Malaysia, she spent 24 years working in kitchens in Australia.

"There is a fusion of Asian cooking because it's so close," she said of Australian cuisine, noting that Indian and Thai recipes are the most prevalent. "It's a wonderful blend of multi-cultures, and a nice mix of people."

Backgrounds have brought Charly's menu has a distinct ethnic twist. Appetizers like chicken satay and won tons dot the menu, as does a middle eastern platter of hummus, salsa, and Indian cheese. Malaysian linguine, fajitas, enchiladas, and sesame chicken are just a handful of entrees served with a variety of Asian sauces and jicama and cooked cucumber side dishes.

The menu also includes a regional curry of the day.

"We didn't think we would be doing that this soon, but so many people have told us how they like curries so we went ahead with it," Coon said.

Carter, meanwhile, has spent part of his career cooking throughout France and to Charly's has brought the Parisian's flare for pastry and dessert. Their sweets menu is highlighted by a gateau, meringues with chocolate and Bavarian creams, as well as tarts, tiramisu, and an assortment of homemade sorbets.

While the pair obviously are excited about their first "summer season," they have their eyes and excitement set to the off season. They plan on shaking things up a bit with a variety of taste-a-thons offering Texas, cajun, and other weekends with regional themes.

"We want to look out for the people, and keep things interesting for them," Coon said. "We have 100 more ideas and we want to do it all."

Carter said by all appearances they want to promote a casual good time.

"We want people to sit down, have a fun time and enjoy a sunset," he said. "There's always room for good food."

Charly's is open for lunch from 11 a.m-3 p.m. and 5-10 p.m. for dinner. They are closed on Mondays. Lunch sandwiches average $6.50 while dinner entrees range from $15.95 to $18.95. Charly's has a wine list and offers eight different wines by the glass.

Helen Coon and Paul Carter, co-partners of Charly's restaurant, are hoping to entertain Charlevoix with regional cuisine, homemade desserts, and spectacular sunsets from their Bridge Street eatery. Charly's is open 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. for lunch and 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. for dinner six days a week. They are closed Mondays.

Business in brief

Big Rock Point continues producing electricity

Consumer's Energy's Big Rock Point nuclear plant was returned to service at 6:32 p.m. May 5 following a 63-day outage.

The plant was removed from service March 2 to repair a steam leak on a backup safety system. Other major work completed during the outage included the replacement of three relief valves in the same backup safety system, testing and installation of a spare electrical circuit breaker, and rebuilding of a recirculation pump water seal.

Big Rock Point's next refueling and maintenance outage is scheduled to begin August 30.

a movie," the attorney argued.

However as May was rendering his decision, he brought up the fact that the informant had stopped by the 214 Mason Street residence earlier in the evening to inquire about buying drugs and Russell told him they would have some after 8 p.m.

Also $140 of the prerecorded buy money was found on Russell when police searched the home in the early morning hours of March 17.

While binding them over to circuit court, judge May, without hesitation, added the two conspiracy charges at the request of Burgess.

The defendants, however, did receive some relief on their possession of cocaine charges. Originally charged with possession of .25-.5 grams of cocaine, lab reports showed that less than .25 grams of cocaine substances were found on the premises.

With the new charge of possession of less than .25 grams, the pair face no mandatory sentence if convicted of that offense.

Fuller and Russell will be arraigned on the six charges at 9 a.m. Friday, May 16, in 33rd Circuit Court. If convicted, they face up to 1-20 years on the delivery charges, 1-20 years on conspiracy charges, and a maximum of four years on possession charges.

Lunches lose money

$1.50 Type A lunch, which includes a protein, fruit, and vegetable or to pick and choose and pay as they go ala carte style from the school's cache of food.

District treasurer Judy Boss said that through the end of April, hot lunches at the high school have brought in $62,685 in revenue while running $71,693 in expenses. The school gets reimbursed from the state 17 cents for each Type A lunch sold.

Boss said that the figures are fairly consistent every year, and money is taken out of general funds to cover left over expenses.

With a full campus staying for lunch, the district could bring in more money, but expenses to do that range from more staff and equipment to more food. Students prefer to eat ala carte which takes more food, a preference that could keep costs higher than revenue.

The school also would have to figure out where to put the extra 200 students should campus close. The present cafeteria can't hold them. Grundman said if campus closes two separate lunch hours would be created.

While investigating, three factors are being considered: Does attendance drop off after lunch?; do grades fall in the post-lunch classes?; and the overall student behavior when they're off campus.

Grundman said the first two aren't proving as relevant.

Daily school attendance hovers in the 96th percentile and stays consistent throughout the day, and he said he has seen no trend towards poorer classroom performance after lunch.

Behavior, though, is a different matter.

From time to time, the school office gets a call from an area restaurant about rude and rushed students. Grundman, while concerned, sees that as a mixed blessing as at least the students are aware of being tardy.

Littering is a problem as discarded fast food wrappers find themselves swirling around school grounds.

Grundman pointed out that that has declined after talks with students and that they have become more responsible towards keeping their school clean from debris.

One concern that seems to be sticking is the tendency for teenage drivers, to drive fast and reckless while going to and from lunch during a limited window of time. That concern may lead to a more immediate decision to, instead of closing campus altogether, just disallow driving away from campus.

"It would be difficult to administer, but we could do it," Grundman said.

The school board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 19, in the high school study hall.

Rayder softball mixes losses

An ace pitcher and an oddball last inning kept Charlevoix on the losing side of the scoreboard in girls' softball play last week.

The Rayders dropped a pair to Inlands Lakes 4-1, 7-2 then to Gaylord 8-11, 7-2.

Victory seemed in hand in the first game as the Rayders led 8-2 going into the final inning with Gaylord. However, the Blue Devils used the help of two misplayed fly halls and an error on a throw to the plate to extend the inning, plate nine runs and escape with a win. Jenny Eveleigh pitched the game, and kept Gaylord at bay until the last inning.

In ~~the second game~~, Gaylord scored their runs early on off pitcher Mandi Barrett and Charlevoix could not catch up.

The day before, Charlevoix could not break through against Bulldog pitcher Chrissy Mathews. Eveleigh almost matched her counterpart save for a three-run home run which broke the game open.

All three league doubleheaders scheduled for the week were washed out, although the twin bill against East Jordan Monday afternoon in reality was snowed out. The games will be rescheduled.

Baseball team has winning week

Thanks to pitching performances from unlikely sources, the Rayder baseball team took three of four games last week.

Keith Grunch pitched a 1-0 shutout against Gaylord in the nightcap of a doubleheader. In game one, the Blue Devils spanked Charlevoix 15-4, but Grunch stymied the Gaylord attack with a two hitter.

After a game in which Gaylord exercised by running around the base paths, Grunch relegated them to the dugout, as just four runners reached base.

Joe Grundman's single plated Bob Anzell for the game's lone run in the bottom of the third inning.

The day before, the Rayders swept Inland Lakes 5-2, 11-4.

T.J. Carey showed off his quarterback arm, striking out seven while issuing no walks in game two. Carey had struggled with a shoulder injury, and coach Scott Kelley wasn't expecting him to pitch at all this season.

In the first game, a nine-run fifth inning propelled the Rayders to the win. Grunch and Steve Carland combined on the winning pitching effort.

League contests against Kalkaska, Boyne City, and East Jordan were all postponed due to ill weather.

Tennis team excels

The Rayders top two doubles teams advanced to the championship match as a team with nothing but a rosy future placed fifth overall in the Great Northern Conference Championship meet Friday afternoon.

Traverse City St. Francis won the title in the seven team field with 14 points. The Rayders earned five points.

No. 1 doubles team, Ben Owens and Eric Halverson, defeated a pair from Harbor Springs and Boyne City before falling to a duo from Traverse City St. Francis 3-6, 2-6. George LaBlance and Wally Pair at No. 2 doubles defeated duos from Grayling and Boyne City before falling to a TCSF pair 6-3, 0-6, 6-7 in the finals.

Simeon Perron playing No. 4 singles won an opening round match, rounding out Charlevoix's scoring.

"They have good careers in front of them," coach Bob Morgridge said of his team, which is dominated by underclassmen. "Their day will come."

The season winds down with the regional competition Friday, May 16, at Harbor Springs.

Field events dominate Rayder wins

Rautio won the shot put with a throw of 48 feet, 11 inches and placed second in the discus. Skeel backed him up with a second place in the shot put.

"They've worked diligently over the years on their strength and quickness," coach Hal Evans said of the pair who have been exchanging wins all spring.

Nate Martin placed sixth in the 400 meter run. The track and field teams compete in the regional competition Saturday, May 17, in East Jordan.

Soccer team meets tough competition

Despite falling in the championship game of their own invitational, Hagen Manker is a happy soccer coach.

"It was the coming of age of Charlevoix soccer at any level," he said after the team fell to highly ranked Lansing Central Catholic 3-0 in Saturday afternoon's final.

Earlier in the season, Lansing took target practice en route to an 8-2 win over the Rayders.

"We were aggressive and didn't back off," Manker said. "If we played like that against everyone, we would be tough to beat."

Annie Campbell and Brooke Block played tough midfield, keeping Central Catholic scorers contained.

The Rayders defeated Reed City 3-0 in round one with Taya Drost tallying two and Jodi Bingham chipping in the third goal. Freshman keeper Kristy Schindorf earned her fifth shutout of the season.

The Rayders play at home against Elk Rapids Thursday, May 15, and against Petoskey Friday, May 16. On Monday, May 19, the Rayders host Grayling in the opening game of district play.

Rayder sophomore Sarah Dominic tries to flop over the bar in a high jump competition during a dual meet with East Jordan Thursday. Jenny Goebel and Amanda Pepin of East Jordan finished first and second. The Rayders did, however, defeat the Red Devils in both the girls' and boys' meets.

John D. Dutcher

Charlevoix summer resident John D. Dutcher, 88, died May 7, 1997, at his home in Hollywood, Fla.

Graveside service was 1 p.m. Tuesday, May 13, at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema officiated.

Mr. Dutcher was born Oct. 7, 1908, in Charlevoix, the son of Delmer F. and Grace (Weiderman) Dutcher. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1926, then earned a teaching certificate at Western State Teachers College in Kalamazoo.

Mr. Dutcher taught one year in Rock, Mich., two years at Marion Center School in Marion Center Township, and one year at Hilton School in Norwood Township.

On Dec. 25, 1949, he married Helen Taylor in Charlevoix. She preceded him in death on Jan. 21, 1985.

Mr. Dutcher was employed as bank manager for NBD Bank in Detroit for 20 years, retiring in 1965 when he moved to Hollywood, Fla. He spent his summers in Charlevoix.

Mr. Dutcher was a member of the American Legion. He loved playing cards.

Survivors include one sister, Daisy Szczepanski, of Hollywood, Fla.; one nephew, David Dutcher and his wife, Lois, of Charlevoix; and one niece, Joyce Dutcher, of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Memorial contributions can be sent to Charlevoix Area Hospital or to Charlevoix United Methodist Church. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation was held from 7-9 p.m. May 12.

Kiwanis collects to kill iodine deficiency

Charlevoix's Kiwanis Club is joining a campaign to solve a major world health problem. The worldwide project is working to eliminate iodine deficiency disorders (IDD) as a global health problem by the year 2000.

IDD is a disorder that results from a lack of iodine in a person's diet. Its effects include goiter, stillbirth, miscarriage, increased infant death and mental retardation.

The Michigan District of Kiwanis had declared the week of May 12 as Michigan IDD Public Awareness Week. Members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the Charlevoix High School Key Club will be collecting donations from 2-8 p.m. Friday, May 16, and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, May 17, at Glen's, Kmart and Oleson's, to fight the disease. Money collected will be used to pay for adding iodine to salt or other staple foods in more than 110 iodine deficient countries.

"IDD has been documented for at least 4,000 years," said Ed Buday, chairman of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club's IDD Campaign Committee. "During that time, uncounted millions of humans have failed to live fully productive lives because of iodine deficiency."

The Charlevoix Club has set a goal of $7,200 as its contribution to the IDD campaign.

"This may seem a small part of the $75 million needed," said club president Harold Pletz. "But when we combine our efforts with thousands of other Kiwanis Clubs around the world to virtually eliminate IDD, we will be helping to change world history. And that's an impressive accomplishment."

The IDD campaign is the first Kiwanis service project designed to achieve a global impact. The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix is one of more than 8,500 Kiwanis Clubs in more than 80 nations.

For more information, contact Ed Buday, IDD Campaign Chairman for the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club at 547-2474, or Laurel English of the high school Key Club at 347-4459.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

I heard a short story from back in the days of the depression that really fascinated me. I think my old high school English teacher would refer to it as a kind of morality play.

Back in the 1920's and 30's people did all kinds of things to survive. The man in the story played his violin as he walked through different neighborhoods counting on the kindness of his listeners to hopefully make a little money. As he played in front of some apartments one evening, out of one window came a note saying, "we are a poor family, we just wanted you to know that we were grateful because tonight you have let us dance and sing."

Out of another window came a note with a dime in it from an old man thanking the violinist and saying "you made me smile." Out of a third window came an anonymous note with a dollar in it with the words, "Beat It!" boldly printed.

The story ends by asking what would you do if you were in the violinist's shoes? Stay and play? Walk away playing or just go away? I hope it's not too early in the day for you to do some deep thinking but there is a lot to contemplate in that little story. Our lives say more about us than we might have realized. The way we treat others, how we react to different circumstances, our attitude and more all reflect the values that are important to us.

I'm sure you have heard the expression before, you may be the only picture of Jesus some people may ever see. If that's the case, each one of us needs to think long and hard about what our lives say. Another more contemporary way of putting it might be that it is not enough to talk the talk. You've got to be sure that you walk the walk.

Those of us who call ourselves people of faith need to realize that people do pay attention to our actions. The reputation Christianity has is put to the test in every believer. Do we stand up for the principles that the Bible declares or are they just a Sunday morning fashion statement? There are folks out there looking for encouragement. Will they find it in the faith they see at work in us? There are hearts searching for hope. Do our lives reflect the assurance that believing in Jesus brings? There are worries and doubts that gang up on people that they earnestly wish that the peace Christ speaks of might be real for them like it is for you.

As you go through your day, look for ways that you really can share Christ's love with others. When circumstances challenge your faith, put your trust to work. When an opportunity comes to encourage someone else, let them know that you have been in their shoes and what Jesus has done for you He can do for them, too.

You may not be playing a violin but you are playing a song. May the song of your life make people smile, bring happiness to their hearts and remind them that just as Jesus loves you, He can and will love them, too.

Balancing the budget was another hot topic with most candidates declaring it a top priority if elected.

Way and Ike Boss leaned toward slashes in the athletic department. Way said the athletics are spread too thin, and he is worried about the different number of sports offered, and the money it takes to run them. Ike Boss said when a school the size of Traverse City Central offers 20 sports, it's a bit silly to think a Class C school like Charlevoix could offer 17 and effectively compete. He called it a "coach's graveyard" partly because they don't have the students to win.

McKeown said it was "baloney" to slash certain sports, hinting that it was a blessing that some coaches have been resigning because if they "can't cut it" they need to step away. He recommended that some of the programs should model the highly successful Rayder cross country running teams.

McKeown, Jr.

Halverson called it inappropriate to react solely to win-loss records and that school boards should resist the temptation to get involved beyond making sure quality people are put in charge of the teams.

MacMillan said even if just three or four students want to play a sport, the district should attempt to field a team for their benefit.

As for cuts in staff and academic programs, Way suggested teachers might begin doubling up class work but everyone else seemed to hold low student to teacher ratio as an untouchable.

Halverson said it was unfair to upset the balance of the classroom for the sake of a balanced budget but "after that everything is fair game for critical review towards reduction or in extreme cases elimination."

Halverson

Ike Boss said one of his primary goals would be keeping K-2 class sizes at or below 1 teacher to 20 students but everything after that needs little bites taken out of it.

MacMillan suggested cutting non-salary benefits while Buday and McKeown said that the new early retirement agreement between administration and staff would go a long a way in preventing staff and programs from being cut.

As for academic standards all the candidates promoted higher academic expectations, but only MacMillan and McKeown seemed willing to consider an idea of making anyone with a grade lower than C in any class ineligible for sports. Ike Boss said no one with less than a D should be able to play.

MacMillan favored drug testing all athletes and while no one else broached the subject McKeown did say that his feelings and pride were hurt with the reinstatement of Sean Kimble to the basketball team despite being arrested and convicted on drug charges.

Only Ike Boss spoke in favor of reducing to one bus run calling it "a long overdue change," and that for those fearing the criminal element of the high schoolers, cameras could be installed to monitor bus behavior.

The other candidates cited safety concerns of putting a first-grader on a bus with a twelfth-grader. Way backs separate runs "for the quality of life of our little kids."

MacMillan

As far as curriculum changes, all gave rosy reviews to the teaching staff, but MacMillan expressed concern over the trend to teach and focus kids' studies on how to score better on MEAP tests. Way called for more technology and computer education, and McKeown stressed further development of vocational education, performing arts, and future problem solvers.

MacMillan and Ike Boss are running for the one-year term vacated by Sulane Hamilton while Buday, McKeown, Scott Boss, Halverson, and Way are vying for the two four-year seats.

Election day is Monday, June 9. Polls are at the elementary school.

Old county building, fire hall Charlevoix social center

By Marilyn Boss
Courier columnist

Hometown Chronicles

It was a very exciting life to be around the county buildings when I was growing up. If things weren't happening at the jail, there was always something going on at the fire hall or the court house, all of which were located at the end of the block on the Antrim and State street corners.

Charlie Marshall was the fire chief, and he and his wife, Tillie, lived in the court house building, in an upstairs apartment. It was nestled into an addition, which was covered with tin, made to look like brick, and located on the north side of the building. The apartment was very small, but served its purpose.

The noon fire whistle was blown by pressing a button on the wall, and when I was up there, Charlie would let me push it. I loved going up to see him and Tillie. Even as a little girl, the smallness of the apartment was something I remembered. You could just get by their kitchen table, which was right by the siren button. It was like living in a hallway.

The fire trucks were stored directly under Charlie's apartment, and were always ready to take off. The oldest fire truck and the first motorized one that Charlevoix had was a 1916 Reo. The newer truck was a 1927 Graham. Both trucks were small and had open cabs. There were only three feet on each side of the trucks, which were stored end-to-end in the little building. They both had tire chains on all winter long, as the only place they went was right in town. They couldn't service the townships because they had no water. They were both chemical (soda acid) trucks.

The fire whistle would blow one time to signify a fire north of the bridge, two times for the valley, and three times for the south hill. I can remember the town kids jumping on their bikes to find the fire. Everyone went in those days.

One day, Charlie put a big swing up in a large tree located by the court house and just across the drive from the jail, so I could swing. It was a wonderful swing, one that was tied so high in the branches, that you would swing way out and back.

The courtyard was also used as a horseshoe area. There were two metal stakes in the ground at each end, and the men would stand at one end and throw the horseshoe to the other, trying to loop the the stake. That corner was quite unique, in that it was centrally located so that people from all around in the business places could gather there to play, talk or just enjoy each other's company.

The courthouse itself was quite an awesome building. The courtroom was on the second floor, and the steps leading up to it were very long. There was no such thing as easy access to that room. The rooms for the offices were around the perimeter. Each outside door had steps leading up to it.

In the same area, across the drive, next to the jail, was a house with bars on the windows. A nice woman by the name of Nellie Meech, lived there. She took in children who were homeless or in trouble. She was employed by the county.

I remember feeling sad to see the bars they had on the windows, and I don't recall seeing the children outside. Times were different then.

City council passes airport fuel ordinance with second try

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

After a series of public hearings and delays, the Charlevoix City Council passed a new airport fuel tank ordinance at a special council meeting April 29.

The ordinance requires customers who want to sell fuel at the airport to front a $2 million performance bond before initiating business.

The ordinance was drafted because of concerns about potential damage and liability from fuel spills.

"It's a preventive measure," mayor Josh Barnes said, noting that he didn't want the city to be in the predicament Emmet County was in when a fuel leak at Pellston Regional Airport in 1987 cost more than $100,000 in cleanup costs.

Barnes said he couldn't justify using taxpayers' money to pay for someone else's mess.

The bond will remain valid for two years after a seller stops business to provide the city with proper time and money to clean up and remove an underground tank should the seller suddenly become bankrupt or just leave town.

"We don't want a leaking tank and have to be responsible for its cleanup and removal," Barnes said.

Councilman Bob Timms had voted against the measure, fearing it too much of a burden for small operators. Only four council members were in attendance when the ordinance was first presented. Timms' nay kept the measure from receiving the necessary four votes to pass and stalled it until further research uncovered less financial burden for sellers.

Barnes said that insurance companies would put up a 10-year bond costing operators $25,000.

At the special meeting the measure passed without dissent with no changes in the original bill. The ordinance will be in effect by the beginning of June.

Operation Petunia shines brighter

Greenleaf Gardens owner Doug Perrault (left) and "Mr. Petunia" Dale Boss are preparing for this spring's Operation Petunia. After a long winter and slow spring, residents may be shocked by the brighter, more vibrant colors soon to line city streets.

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Brighter, bolder petunias have extended their days in the greenhouse while Charlevoix weather delayed the annual planting. However, the hot pink, sky blue, traditional red and white, and a vibrant midnight purple are awaiting the petunia party.

The new purple and pink flowers are replacing lighter shades that were once part of Charlevoix's spectrum of street-lining petals.

"We're going to have louder colors this year," said Doug Perrault, owner of Greenleaf Gardens, who decides each year's colors with originator and chairman of Operation Petunia, Dale Boss. "I think it's going to pick up the whole town."

Spring has teased residents with a few warm days. But cold, rainy weather that imitates a fall frenzy has dampened spirits and delayed the annual planting.

"They were safer in here than they were out in that ground," Perrault said.

As of 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 27, volunteers from throughout town will show with gloves and hoes in hand.

Before Memorial Day can come, the Petunia Truck will help pass out the fledgling plants and prepare for its daily watering journey.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has ordered 50,000 plants from Greenleaf. Perrault said he has extra of all five of the city's colors for residents who wish to match.

"You'd be surprised how many people coordinate with the city," he said.

Operation Petunia will unveil the new colors as block captains supervise the planting under the organization of Karen LaVanway. The Knights of Columbus will be hauling and lugging food to East Park, where Jeanne Seymour and helpers will prepare Charlevoix's own gourmet hotdogs.

Septic system is possible

Howard Haselschwardt of Northwest Design Inc. gave an initial thumbs-up to the Charlevoix Board of Education about the M-66 land's ability to hold septic fields.

Haselschwardt participated in the field test done along with the county health department and said Monday that they did find an area on the land "very suitable for in ground septic disposal.."

However, he did say that how many and how large the fields could be would be the subject of further work and that an official report is still forthcoming..

"I didn't see anything out there that would scare me," he said.

Also during the short meeting Monday, Annie Campbell, a senior at Charlevoix High School, spoke out against the possibility of drug testing Charlevoix students.

Frustrated about all the negative talk towards the high schoolers, she told the board of the improvement that she has seen in student behavior during her four years at CHS. She said drug use has gone way down.

"Instead of always saying how bad it is, we should be talking about how far we've come," she said. "Put a little more trust in the students."

Campbell also noted that students were supposed to be included in future discussion, and wondered why no students have been contacted.

Board member Joan Buday, who serves as a board liaison to the commitee reviewing the drug policy, said that there has yet to be additional meetings

School officials had hoped for a new, tougher drug policy to be implemented by next fall. Drug testing Charlevoix students had been brought up as a method to find users.

In board action, they approved a $6,300 bid from Tri-County Excavating for the demolition, removal and restoration of 209 Mason Street.

Schools look to early retirement incentive as alternative to layoffs

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Charlevoix Public Schools has ratified an early retirement incentive for teachers with at least 20 years experience with two hopes in mind: avoiding the sticky business of layoffs and nearing the long-range goal of a balanced budget.

Teaches who opt out by Sunday, June 22, are eligible to receive monthly payments of $416.97 over the next 10 years.

The offer is good for two additional years, but with decreased monthly payments of $375 for those stepping away after the 1997-98 school year and then to $333 after 1998-99.

More than 40 teachers qualify for the incentive. According to the superintendent's office, early estimates show that maybe 20 would take the offer over the next three years.

Superintendent Roberta Jackson admitted that those who opt for the plan may not be replaced, but at least some of the new talent in the teaching ranks are no longer on the chopping block.

Last month the board of education refused to acknowledge a motion to lay-off second-grade teacher Krista Martin, whose hiring helped reduce growing student-teacher ratios in the large younger grade.

During the attempted layoff, the incentive plan was being hashed out, and in addition to Martin three other faculty members would be laid-off sometime during the current five-year budget plan.

"It's been a main goal to avoid layoffs," Jackson said.

A second goal of the plan is getting a balanced budget. This agreement is hoped to give district leaders more mobility in attaining the nirvana of an even ledger.

The district budget is 80 percent weighted toward staff salary and benefits and cuts within that would typically meet strong union opposition.

However, Tom Sothard, middle school teacher and lead negotiator for the teachers, gave a quick thumbs up to the early retirement plan.

"It's a win-win situation for everyone," he said.

Amendment to benefit pool up for hearing

A public hearing will be held at the 7 p.m. Monday, June 2, city council hearing to hear comments on a proposed amendment to an ordinance that would allow community recreational facilities to pay their water tap-in fee in five payments.

The amendment originated earlier this month when representatives from the Charlevoix Community Pool's requested payments rather than $40,000 being due to hook into city water.

If passed, the ordinance would allow a 20 percent downpayment and four equal payments over four years for commercial buildings that aid in bringing johs into the community and recreational buildings that offer residents the lowest possible user fees.

Councilmembers Bruce Reid and Barnie DeVries said that a 20 percent downpayment is too low, that at least half of the money should be collected up front.

City attorney Jim Young said the amendment was drafted based on instructions from the city manager after he met with pool representatives in a meeting.

Public comment will be heard June 2. The amendment will then need to be voted on by the council before it can be adopted.

Events in brief

Republican Party throws Lincoln Day bash

The 1997 Charlevoix County Lincoln Day Dinner will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 29, at Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant in Charlevoix with a reception beginning at 5:30 p.m.

The event will feature U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham, R-Mich., U.S. Sen. Dick Posthumus, as keynote speaker, state Sen. Walter North, R-St. Ignace, and state Rep. Beverly Bodem, R-Alpena.

The dinner is being sponsored by the Charlevoix County Republican Committee. Tickets are $25 each. Century Club members are prepaid.

For more information, call John Haggard at 547-4046 or 547-6600, or Virginia Marme at 547-4697.

Muscle car swap meet Sunday

The Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club is holding their first annual swap meet from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday, May 25, at the Kmart parking lot on M-66 South of U.S. 31 in Charlevoix.

Spaces are available at $5 each by calling 582-3658 or showing up at the meet between 8-9:30 a.m. The meet is for cars and car parts only. Automotive paraphernalia will also be permitted.

Pop and grilled coney dogs will be available. Proceeds will benefit local charities.

Session set on sleep disorders

Help for those suffering from sleep disorders will be offered in a talk entitled "Sleepless in Northern Michigan" by David Walker, D.O., pulmonologist, via the interactive television at Charlevoix Area Hospital from 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, May 28.

The public is invited at no charge. Call Connie Roland, at Charlevoix Area Hospital, or leave your name with the hospital operator, at 547-4024, before Monday, May 26, if you would like to attend.

Free information session on arthritis being held

Arthritis affects one in every seven Americans. It can last a long time, and for many people it never goes away.

For an overview of arthritis, medical therapy, and surgical intervention join Charles Huebner, M.S. Burns Clinic Rheumatologist, and Craig Silverton, D.O. Burns Clinic Orthopedic Surgeon in a question and answer session.

The free session is scheduled for 7-8:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 28, at the Community Health Education Center across from the main entrance of Northern Michigan Hospital.

To register or for more information, please call HealthAccess, 1(800)248-6777.

Mail carrier raises $500 for Jerry's kids

For braving the winter with bare legs while he delivered mail on Charlevoix's north side, Al Seese raised $500 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

"There were days when it was really cold," he said. "You just got to bite your teeth and keep going."

Most of the contributors to the cause were fellow post office employees and people he met along his route. Seese said he is grateful to the people who helped with his cause, which was spurred by bare-legged mail carriers in Minnesota.

Although the winter fund-raiser is over, Seese is "seriously considering" making the trek for Jerry's Kids again next winter.

Colorguards will lead the way in the Memorial Day parade at 10 a.m. Monday, May 26.

Memorial Day parade prompts peace-time thanksgiving

America's springtime thanksgiving — Memorial Day — is hringing young and old together for a parade to honor all who have fought for our freedom.

Charlie Butcher, captain of the combined Color Guards of VFW Post 1153 and American Legion Post 226, is organizing the annual Memorial Day Parade, which will begin at 10 a.m. Monday, May 26, at the American Legion Post on East Garfield Street.

Form-up will be at 9:45 a.m. As usual, the parade will be led by U.S. Coast Guardsmen from the Acacia, followed by the combined posts color guards, veterans, the posts women's auxiliaries and the Charlevoix High School Marching Band.

The Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Brownies and Cuh Scouts are also invited to march.

The parade route runs north on Bridge Street to East Park, where ceremonies will be held facing the Submarine Memorial.

After the flag has been raised to half-mast, the band will play the National Anthem. Rev. Mike Dennis will give the benediction, followed by Memorial Day remarks by American Legion Cmdr. Larry Laske. The volley hy the rifle team will be followed by the playing of Taps.

Wreaths will be thrown into Round Lake in memory of those lost at sea.

A brief ceremony by the Color Guard and Laske will be held at Brookside Cemetery at 11:15 a.m.

Poppies will be sold hy members of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliaries to raise money to help veterans in the hospitals and the local ones who need assistance.

Graduation draws near for seniors

Charlevoix High School's Class of 1997 is preparing for its graduation ceremony, which will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, June 8.

Valedictorians are Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Margaret Spang and Jessica VanGuilder. Salutatorian is Sarah Shepard.

Other students named to the top of the class list are: Zachary Bakker, Ann Campbell, Alissa Lachiusa, Nathan Martin, William Parton, Michael Post, Scott Smith, Robert Sommerfeld, Stacy Urban, Courtney Webb and Lisa Wheat.

Northwest Academy has two seniors: John Chase, who has received a scholarship from the Detroit Free Press Class Academic All City and All State Teams, Andrea Jackson. The seniors are both graduating with honors and have been co-enrolled at North Central Michigan College.

Northwest's graduation is 2 p.m. Saturday, May 31, at the school on East Hurlbut Street.

More information will be published about the upcoming ceremonies at Charlevoix High School and Northwest Academy in the Courier's graduate supplement, which will be found inside the Wednesday, May 28, edition of the paper.

$5 million project to be dedicated

Planners throughout the state and in Washington are being marked for the coming Bridge Park dedication, whicb will begin at 3 p.m. Thursday, May 29, with tours of the area.

The formal ceremony begins at 5:30 p.m. and includes music by the Charlevoix High School band, a presentation from the U.S. Coast Guard colorguard, comments by state and federal legislators, the Michigan Department of Transportation, Beaver Island representatives and the city's mayor.

The event will celebrate the completion of a $5 million project to improve the waterfront. The official dedication will take the form of a christening, with a bottle of champagne being broken over a Bridge Park railing by Mary Fiendt, a member of the Downtown Development Authority, the local body that has overseen and funded much of the project.

Red, white and blue biodegradable balloons will fill the sky and Charlevoix celebrates its newest accomplishment.

The project began in 1994 when voters gave their approval. Included in the construction is a new building that jointly houses the U.S. Coast Guard, Beaver Island Boat Co. and public restrooms. A second building, placed closer to the dock allows for storage of the items being shipped back and forth to the island. A new loading ramp was added to the dock and fresh landscaping lines the channel. All new streets, lighting and public areas have been installed, as well as a new walkway under the south end of the U.S. 31 bridge.

More information on the upcoming ceremony will be published in next week's edition of the Courier.

People put heart and lives into making Memorial Day

EDITORIAL

Every city, village and town in the United States is blessed by an unseen sacrifice.

As years pass since our country has been involved in a major war, we citizens become more and more distant from the reality of the death caused by our fellow man.

We hope that this Memorial Day will spur true appreciation for all that has been sacrificed by Americans who lived before us. As the gun shots ring through cemeteries and uniformed men and women lead our parades, we have much to be thankful for.

Rosalyn Goldstick is an example of an older Charlevoixian who has not forgotten the meaning of the upcoming holiday. She writes, "'In Flander's Field, the poppies grow, That mark the crosses, row on row ...' The poem was written after the ending of World War I. How many of us learned that poem when we were youngsters in school? And as the parades marched by, we stood there in awe and watched the older men who all stood at attention, saluting the flag as it went by in all its glory. It was such a special day."

Rosalyn remembers the hush of the children, as they recognized the seriousness of the moment. Memorial Day isn't a time to be sad, but it is a time to remember all the blood that was shed for our freedom.

Let freedom ring.

As the current generation grows older, we watch the news and appreciate the absence of civil wars. But we fail to really remember the price that was paid for our freedom.

We appreciate all the veterans who have organized and marched in parades in Charlevoix for decades. They help us remember when we see the emotion on their faces as they carry the American flag and their rifles through town.

For the first time in years, Charlevoix's veterans organized a Fourth of July parade last summer. Their frustration was evident as they stepped beyond the norm of marching during the Venetian Parade and insisted on taking to the street ON the Fourth of July.

Charlie Butcher announced to the city council Monday that there will again be a Fourth of July parade — on July 4 — in Charlevoix.

We want to thank every veteran and auxiliary member who has shown us the kind of passion that is rightly associated with Memorial Day and the Fourth of July.

Bicycles don't need licenses

Editor:

I would like to write in regards to Violet Dinwiddie's article of bicycle licensing on May 14, 1997.

If every time she gets on her bicycle and wonders why she doesn't have to buy a license, maybe she should donate the money to the city for bike paths. Unlike her, maybe not everyone in this community has the money to spend on senseless taxing.

She questions the use of bicycles being considered a "use tax. Well, let's take that one step further and question if we should all get a seasonal license for joggers and walkers along our roads. We are using them the same as bicyclers aren't we?

There isn't much in this country that we are not already taxed for, and see how well our tax dollars repair roads, rebuild schools, etc.? If we the people continue to license and tax everything we own and do, the next thing you know is she'll be petitioning to put a tax on the air that we breath.

Maybe if she would put her ambitions to better use, for example, police funding, drunk driving, or better jail systems instead of worrying about dogs being dogs, sheep grazing, or taxing bicyclers, this community could be a much healthier place to live in.

Vote "no" at school election for M-66 land purchase

Editor:

Attention Charlevoix school district voters: It has been said, and it is true, that history repeats itself. Twenty-nine years ago, in 1968, the majority of the school board and Superintendent wanted to build a new school just south of Ironton and merge with East Jordan. I was the only board member that aggressively asked for the votes to help defeat this plan, and the voters came out and soundly defeated it in the largest voter turnout ever. Immediately after, the voters approved building the new elementary school on the north side. We bought a new Rayder bus for the kids, and in 1969, built the new library on Clinton Street.

We are now asked to approve buying land just north of Ironton. Unless you really want our schools on this piece of property, get out and vote against this site. Did you know that the deed restrictions by the present owner say it can't be sold for 30 years? This will result in using it for sure in the future. There are four other excellent sites we could use, three in the city limits, and one near the K-5 school.

This M-66 site was picked out because they said it was the very cheapest one they could find. It will turn out to be the most expensive in the long run, with almost all students being transported by busses. The cost of trying to develop this site and all the extra roads that will have to be built on unstable land is unbelievable. It would end up being the most expensive site you could find. Also, kids on bikes are at high risk on busy M-66.

This is a wetland with much of it covered with red reeds, which always grow in wet places. I checked the costs of sewer and water to the site, and was told that it would cost approximately a half a million to run these two commodities to the closest edge of the property. A very reputable person told me that the backhoe that was digging the test holes got stuck clear to the axle. They wanted to keep it a secret, and you know there are no secrets in Charlevoix. There are several alternatives for sites, with utilities right there. Let's not believe the snow job the present board is trying to give us.

More letters to the editor

On May 13, I attended a forum put on by the League of Women voters. The question was asked about buying the site, and of the seven candidates for the board seats, Scott Boss, Barney Way and Ike Boss said no, they didn't want to buy this property. The others were adamantly for it. Let's get some people with backbone, who will stand up and be counted, and set the policies that we, the people, want for our kids. It's house cleaning time folks, and you are the ones who are going to shape the future for the next century.

I am all for getting the best for our children, but I am against establishing the Char-Ironton Public Schools. I am voting yes on the 1 mill for repairs and I will vote positive in the future on anything that makes a good, sound business sense. We need a big turnout, and we can all do it. Our grandchildren will reap the reward and the voters will have spoken.

Sincerely,
Dale Boss

Firefighters thank volunteers for help with cleanup

Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association, we would like to take this time to mention some of the groups and businesses that supported our Round Lake clean up on Saturday, May 10. Without the backing of these groups and businesses, we would not have been able to accomplish what we did.

As we have seen in the paper lately, volunteerism has taken on an even more positive note. We feel that the more positive things that we have going on in our community, the less time there is for negative comments. As anyone who has done any volunteer work knows, the rewards come back to you over and over again. The time that you take to volunteer your time, no matter how small, helps our community to be a better place for everyone.

Thank you to Bridge Street Ace Hardware, Wolohan Lumber, Ben Franklin True Value, Top Rank Disposal, Waste Management, Gordon Food Service, Midstate Food Service and Divers Central. The service clubs that made this event possible were the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Harbor Master, the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, members of the Barnard Grange, the U.S. Coast Guard Life Saving Station, and all of the volunteer divers and other support personnel on the docks.

This was a very good start on cleaning the waters of Round Lake, and hopefully we can do this type of project in the future. Thank you all again for your support!

Sincerely,
Jeff Stevens, Dive Team Leader and John Fiedorek, President - Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association

Elementary principal appreciates unity found in playground project

Editor:

What a great experience It was to see a community come together to build something good for kids. In two years the elementary PTO playground committee raised close to $120,000 to build a beautiful playground. This project was spearheaded by a very talented and resourceful Robyn Blosh. She has spent a great deal of time and effort in leading and coordinating all the efforts to make this project a reality. Other members of the steering committee that also have spent a lot of time and energy are Bonnie Withrow, Brenda Bryan, Carol Madison, Barney Way, Kelly Vogel and Gayle Gennett.

The real beauty is that it was truly a community project. The amount of people and businesses that contributed to this creation is staggering. In the day of construction, a Saturday, we had people of all ages and occupations, some with kids in school, some with no kids in school, men and women, all coming together to build something great for kids. It gives one that old-time barn raising feeling. It makes me very proud to live in the community of Charlevoix.

To all those who contributed in any way, I thank you on behalf of the students, staff and myself for making a dream come true.

Sincerely,
Richard L. Swenor, Principal
Charlevoix Elementary School

Thanks extended for successful Day of Prayer

Editor:

I would like to extend a personal thank you to all the Christians of Charlevoix that participated in the National Day of Prayer on May 1.

We may never know the full effect that our combined prayers have in bringing our nation back to Godly standards. History is shaped by those who faithfully intercede and there is no question our nation, state, and local community needs our continual intercession.

As a reminder, Intercessors for Charlevoix meets regularly every Wednesday in City Hall at 7 a.m., and there is a noon Concert of Prayer also on Wednesdays at the United Methodist Church. Both of these times of intercession are designed for you to come and go as your schedule demands. Whatever time you can give will result not only in a personal blessing, but will release more of the Holy Spirit's power through his church to accomplish his will. God's No. 1 priority is still the salvation of the lost, and we are privileged to have been chosen to intercede for a dying world. Join in whenever you can.

Again, bless you in all your endeavors to follow the Lord.

Andie Mathews

Granvue in need of simply items

Editor:

Grandvue Medical Facility is in need of attractive formal tea cups and saucers, large tea pots, Glen's receipts, old jewelry in good shape, empty ball-type roll-on deodorant containers and a piano bench.

Volunteers are also needed to help with the following: Wednesday evening Bingo at 7 p.m., every third week during the summer, weekly outings, a volunteer to sew a simple clown outfit (materials are provided), and volunteers to do friendly visiting once a week (training provided).

For further information call Cheryl Sothard, activities director, at 536-2286.

Early deadlines for holiday

Because of Memorial Day, Monday, May 26, our deadline for news and advertising in the next issue of the Courier has been moved up to 5 p.m. Thursday, May 22. This will enable early production of the newspaper so our staff can spend the holiday with their families.

Out of the Blue

Guys of TV have gabbed about it —
Cold weather every day —
Maybe if they just blabbed without it,
It'd go away!

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

My poor confused chives. They think it's spring and their tender, hollow leaves are ready to be snipped — instead it is snowing. I don't know if I should say it's still snowing or just snowing again in the middle of May.

I noticed with delight the return of this hardy, perennial clump of herbs growing by my kitchen door. I, too, thought it was a sign of spring, a welcome forerunner for home-grown raspberries and fresh corn of summer. But with the discouraging chill in the air, one wonders how much longer we have to wait? I am more than ready to snip the onion-flavored leaves now and add them to my favorite dishes.

The first thing I always prepare is a bowl of large curd, cottage cheese. With this I stir in several tablespoons of sour cream. Then I sprinkle chopped chives on top and really savor the first fresh taste from my own garden.

The next treat I plan for myself is a classic chilled soup, tasty enough to serve for company. I buy several cans of Campbell's Beef Consomme with gelatin added, and put them in the refrigerator for several hours.

Before serving, I open a can, empty it into an individual soup bowl, add a generous dollop of sour cream, and sprinkle this with chopped chives. So easy and delicious.

Of course there are many other ways to use fresh chives. They are tasty with omelets, or added to a simple oil and vinegar dressing. Cut up chives are also good in butter or cream cheese and salads. Later in the season, I love to decorate my platters with the fluffy, round, purple flowers that blossom on the stalk. Finally, before the end of summer, one may shop and freeze chives or dehydrate them for a special occasion.

If you don't have chives already, do yourself a favor and plant a clump of the small bulb near your kitchen door now. Plant them once, and they will come up every year, whether you like it or not. Of course, you can also plant them in a pot and keep them indoors.

The mild, plant is related to the onion, garlic and leek. It is native to both Europe and Asia, and has been around forever. Viva spring and viva la chive.

Wedding

Brad and Charity Closson

Charity Love Bradley and Chad William Closson were joined in marriage April 5, 1997, at the Petoskey Assembly of God Church before 150 guests.

Charity is the daughter of J. Paul and Connie Bradley, of Charlevoix. Chad is the son of Bill and Caren Closson, of Salem, Ore.

The candlelight wedding was performed by the Rev. Lowell Anderson, pastor of the Charlevoix Assembly of God. Guests were escorted in on the aisle lined with globes, ivy, white roses and gold ribbon. Pews were decorated with gold bows, tulle and ivy candelabras and white wicker basket with ivy and white roses and tulips.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, J. Paul Bradley. She wore a white, shantung fabric dress with a portrait neckline, off-the-shoulder sleeves, fitted bisque waist with full tulle skirt and chapel-length train. Her veil was a white and cathedral length. Flowers were an arm bouquet of white roses, white tulips, white stock and babies breath and ivy.

Music was played by Tom Eggers, cousin of the bride, on the mandolin; Judy Slocum played guitar and Dale Rhea base guitar.

The maid of honor was Amber Bradley, sister of the bride, and matron of honor, Heather Behan, sister of the bride. Bridesmaid was Kelly Yaroch. They wore black, satin tea-length dresses accented with pearly jewelry and carried arm bouquets of white roses, babies breath and ivy tied with a gold bow.

Junior bridesmaids were Haley Behan, niece of the bride, and Brittini and Brooke Whittaker. They wore white, tea-length cotton dresses with lace collars. They carried garland of white lilacs entwined with gold ribbon.

The flower girl was Kelby Behan, niece of the bride. She wore a white cotton dress with lace collar and carried a white wicker basket full of white lilacs decorated with gold ribbons.

Ring bearer was Wyatt Drost, cousin of the bride.

Best man was Tyvin Whittaker, and groomsmen were Jimmie McWatters and Dean Behan, brother-in-law of the bride.

A brunch reception was held at the Terrace Inn in Bay View. It was given by the bride's parents. Dick and Lois Way were host and hostess. The tables were decorated with candles and gold wicker baskets filled with silk flower arrangements, all made by Brenda Drost, aunt of the bride.

Charles Elzinga offered prayer over the meal. Michelle Martin served punch, and Kelly Davis and Treasure Eggers, both cousins of the bride, served punch.

An overnight wedding trip was taken to Traverse City.

Charity attends Petoskey Beauty Academy and will graduate this fall. Chad works for Marvin's Gardens in Charlevoix.

4-H gets foundation endowment

Life is full of challenges, but there's one challenge that the Charlevoix County 4-H Council is happy to meet.

Last December, when the council voted to establish an Endowment Fund with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, an anonymous donor offered to give up to a $5,000 grant to the fund if the 4-H Council could raise $5,000 in contributions and pledges by December 1997. This grant is a dollar for dollar match up to the $5,000 level.

"The great thing about an endowment fund," said Paul Haver, 4-H Council President, "is that money contributed to it continues giving for years to come, since it is permanently invested and only the interest gained will be used by Charlevoix County 4-H."

As the endowment fund grows, the council hopes to increase its ability to develop new and innovative programs where needed, provide scholarships for area youth to attend 4-H workshops and programs, and expand services to present and future generations of children and families.

Charlevoix County 4-H Council is actively seeking donors to help meet the challenge grant. Please make checks, big or small, payable to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, with a notation that it is for the Charlevoix County 4-H Endowment Fund. Checks and pledges should be sent to P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

All pledges must be paid by December, 1999, in order to qualify for the matching grant.

All contributions are tax deductible and all donors are eligible for a State of Michigan Community Foundation tax credit.

Students get first at language day

Nancy Ferguson, foreign language teacher at Ellsworth Community School, and 17 students participated in the 25th Annual Foreign Language Day at Central Michigan University recently.

The students were awarded first place in level 2 German Song for singing "Deutsch vergnugen." They were among hundreds of high school students from around Michigan who took part in song, dance, skit, display, poster and alternative reading competitions in French, German and Spanish.

Garden club hosts plant sale

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host its annual plant sale from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, May 24, at 807 E. Dixon Street in Charlevoix.

There will be a nice selection of annuals, perennials, house plants and related garden items. Proceeds benefit the annual plantings done by the Garden Club.

Anyone willing to donate plants for the sale is invited to drop them off between 2 - 5 p.m. on Friday at the sale location.

Second place Doug Rieck, aluminum tooled picture-dog. Third place Krista Lisk, safety poster. Fifth place Troy Smith, aluminum tooled picture-Snoopy.

Sixth place Ticker Bakker, aluminum tooled picture-fish, and Taryn Drost, safety poster. Seventh place Kyle Dobrowolski, hot dog fork; and Kati Swenor, safety poster.

Eighth place Ryan Rafacz, safety poster; and Katheryn Ricks, hot dog fork. Ninth place Ben Cross, ringmaster wooden bowl; Ryan Houghton, walnut Michigan wall clock; and Jennifer Rowe, hot dog fork. Tenth place Abraham Dhaseleer, hot dog fork; and Nick Wilhelm, walnut/maple turned bowl.

Honorahle Mention Roy Cooter, ringmaster wooden bowl; Ryan Leitner, ringmaster wooden bowl; and Chris Smith, oak Michigan wall clock.

In the High School Division, Bill Parton, a senior at Charlevoix High School, won a first place with an electronics project, an audio signal generator, and an honorable mention on a CAD electronic schematic drawing.

All state winners receive ribbons and certificates, and first-, second-, and third-place winners also receive a plaque from the Michigan Industrial and Technology Education Society, the sponsoring organization.

Local flower garden memorializes loved ones

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club encourages you to remember your loved ones and friends by contributing to its "living" Memorial Garden.

Established in 1977 and maintained since then by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, this garden is located on the northern flower island at the end of East Dixon Avenue on Mercer Boulevard. It was included in the city park system by the Charlevoix City Council in 1978. The garden includes such plantings as hosta, weeping mulberry, variegated dogwood, burning bush, junipers, yews and tamarix. The committee hopes to replace two purple leaf plum trees lost to winter kill a year ago.

Memorial contributions made by members and friends throughout the year to enable the club to paint and care for this garden. Spring is a nice time to view this garden which is in the process of being "spring cleaned."

You need not be a garden club member to make a memorial gift as a living memory for a friend or loved one. To make a contribution, call or write Nancy Fowler at 409 East Dixon Avenue, Charlevoix, 547-9314.

Those for whom memorials have been given to date include:

Obituaries

John L. Boss

John L. Boss, (Jack), 90, of Barnard in Marion Township, died Saturday, May 17, 1997, at his Charlevoix home.

Funeral was held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, May 20, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, with the Rev. Larry Grooters officiating. Burial will be in the Barnard Cemetery.

He was born on Oct. 23, 1906, in Barnard, the son of Lawrence and Gertrude (DeGroot) Boss. He attended the Barnard School.

On May 10, 1930, he married the former Frances M. Carpenter, at the Carpenter farm in Banks Township.

He farmed in Barnard for more than 30 years, and then worked in construction for 20 years.

He was a member of the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix and also served as a church elder. He served as Marion Township treasurer, was on the Charlevoix School Board and Barnard School Board.

Survivors include his wife, Francis M.; three sons, Herb Boss and his wife, Beverly, Nathan Boss and his wife, Kathy, and Kenneth Boss and his wife, Myrna, all of Charlevoix; two daughters, Esther and her husband Garry Vandenberg of Fenton, and Kathy and her husband, Rodney Lindner, of St. John; 16 grandchildren and 29 great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by a grandson, David Boss.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix organ fund.

Envelopes will be available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where friends called from 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. May 19.

Character joins Christian comic

The Community Church of God in Charlevoix, along with local churches in East Jordan and Petoskey, are putting out a free non-denominational, Christian comic called Cardinal Adventures.

The comic is the vision of northern Michigan native, K.J. Kolka. It has been funded by the Rev. Bruce Hamilton and the Community Church of God since 1992.

The theme of this year's publication is denominational cooperation. The story has been co-authored and co-illustrated by Kolka, an evangelical Christian, and Dave Elyea, a Roman Catholic. In the adventure, the men team up two super heroes of their creation. One is a generic protestant and the other a Catholic seminary student.

"Our story revolves around a Christian unity conference which the two heroes are protecting," Kolka said. "Through the course of the story, our heroes discover they are united by their dedication to their common Savior. Each hero has different gifts and have different styles of prayer, yet both felt called by God to do what they do. It's a story about respect."

Copies of the comic are available in Charlevoix for free at Central Drugs, Sweet Sam's Java Joint and through the Community Church of God.

Gospel drama group coming Sunday

The First Baptist Church of Charlevoix is hosting Covenant Players at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, May 25, at the church on M-66 North, across from Kmart.

The group is based in California and uses drama and storytelling to present a sermon to encourage people to examine themselves and their faith in today's world.

The group's unit leaders are Jan and Jim McGinnish, out of Woverine. The college students travel throughout the United States to present the gospel message.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Lowell Anderson
Charlevoix Assembly of God

As a pastor, I've conducted scores of funerals in my life but in none of the processions to the cemetery was the hearse ever pulling a U-Haul trailer. The time-worn phrase is so true ... you can't take it with you.

You do leave it here. I'm not talking just about money and material possessions. I'm talking about the legacy of meaning and significance you found in life that will make a difference for others after you've left the scene.

While self-actualization and self-fulfillment are the catch phrases of our society, they are ultimately empty and meaningless pursuits. "Someone all wrapped up in himself makes a pretty small package," the truism states. It's true. While preoccupation with self brings momentary pleasure, it never lasts. When the party's over the fun stops.

True meaning while you live and a lasting legacy when you die is not how much you've gotten but in how much you've given. Money's not the point here at all.

A popular attitude is, "get all you can, can all you get." A beer commercial a number of years back captured the contemporary mood — "you only go around once in life ... grab all the gusto you can!" The only problem with gusto is once you grab it, it vaporizes in your hands. Certainly there's more to life than "gusto."

Jesus Christ addressed the issues of the meaning of life and the life hereafter in numerous teachings. Probably the most popular is the Sermon On The Mount.

He said, "Do not store up for yourself treasures on earth where moth and rust destroy and where thieves hreak in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not destroy and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also." (Matthew 6:19-21 NIV)

The treasure that does not rust, and that you can both send on ahead and also leave behind, is your investment in loving and serving others. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," Jesus said. Is your neighbor hungry? Feed him. Is he naked? Clothe him. Is he sick or in prison? Visit him. You'll discover that in giving you will receive. By loving you will be loved.

"You can't take it with you," but you can send it on ahead!

Elaine Ruth Lockwood Belfy

Elaine Ruth Lockwood Belfy, 77, died May 18, 1997, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, where she had resided since 1986.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, May 21, at Winchesler Funeral Home, followed by internment at Brookside Cemetery. The Rev. Canon Gordon Cooper will officiate.

Elaine was born Dec. 22, 1919, in Lansing, Mich., to Roy and Edna Lockwood, both graduates of the Michigan School for the Blind. Their only child, she graduated from Lansing Eastern High School in 1937 and completed her bachelor of science degree in physical education at Michigan State University in 1941.

After an interim position with Ionia Public Schools, she joined the physical education faculty at the Michigan School for the Blind, where she taught from 1942 to 1953. During this time, she was briefly married to Robert C. Mosher, also a teacher at the MSB. Important memories she held from that time were of her beloved "girls," the dozens of visually-impaired young women she helped grow up with grace and beauty through athletics and dance.

In the early 1950s, Miss Lockwood left her cabin on Silver Lake to spend summers in northern Michigan. Here she waited tables for establishments such as the Argonne Supper Club, and met Chester E. Belfy, whom she married in 1953 in Pentwater. She set up housekeeping at 604 Bridge Street with her ready-made teenage son Eddie and daughter Carol; daughter Jeanne was born in 1954.

After graduate work in special education at Central Michigan University and Northern Michigan University, she resumed teaching and became a special education teacher for the Charlevoix Public Schools in 1965. She retired in 1971.

Elaine was baptized in Christ Episcopal Church in 1954, and enjoyed directing and singing in the choir until the mid-1970's. She took great pleasure in her involvement with the White Shrine and especially the Order of the Eastern Star, OES Chapter #72. Joining in 1955, she became Past Worthy Matron, District Marshall, and Soloist, and was a member of the Grand Chapter, OES of Michigan 1976-77.

Elaine loved her dogs, her various homes on the beaches of Michigan's beautiful inland and great lakes, and teaching and mothering; helping adolescents become adults with humor, cheerfulness, and honest, sound advice. She also loved the true friends she made in southern Michigan and in Charlevoix, many of whom have already passed away.

Her memory impairment began during the late 1970s and early 1980s, and Mr. Belfy cared for her at home until she required hospitalization in 1986.

She is survived by her son, Edwin Eugene Belfy, pharmacist and businessman in Paw Paw; her daughter, Carol Ann Wojan, retired registered nurse in Petoskey; her daughter, Jeanne Marie Belfy, music professor in Boise, Idaho; and five grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband in 1996.

Memorial may be made to the Grandvue Medical Care Facility. Envelopes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where friends called from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday.

Erwin Martin

Friends may call Friday, May 23, at the Ernie Martin home on Beaver Island.

Helen Cooper

Helen Cooper, 91, of Beaver Island, died Feb. 26, 1997.

Funeral will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, May 24, at the Beaver Island Episcopal Church. The Rev. Joe Howell will officiate. Burial will be in St. James Cemetery.

Friends may call Friday, May 23, at the Beaver Island Episcopal Church.

Jack Cull

Jack Cull, 77, of Beaver Island, died Feb. 12, 1997, at Mary Mercy Hospital in Hammond, Ill.

Funeral mass will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 24, at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island. The Rev. Pat T. Cawley will officiate. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery in Beaver Island.

Visitation will be held on Friday, May 23. at the Cull home on Beaver Island.

FMB heading for new ownership

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Huntington Bancshares, an Ohio based chain of regional lending institutions, is in the process of buying up shares of stock from First Michigan Bank.

FMB shareholders will receive 1.05 shares of Huntington stock worth $30 dollars a share. In all, the buy-up is estimated at $908 million.

FMB is based in Holland, Mich. It has 90 branch offices throughout the state with heavy interest in Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Holland, and Muskegon where 80 percent of their deposits are made. FMB has nine banks in northern Michigan; five of which are spread throughout Charlevoix County, two in East Jordan, and one each in Boyne Falls, Boyne City and Charlevoix.

FMB has a total asset value of $3.6 billion and showed a 1996 net income of $42.2 million.

The merger between FMB and Huntington is pending shareholder and regulatory approval, which is expected to be completed by the end of September.

Executives from both institutions are pleased with at the change.

Frank Wobst, corporate executive officer of Huntington, cited western Michigan as one of the fastest growing markets in the country and that FMB customers will benefit from the technology improvements that make banking more efficient.

"We are very excited to join forces with Huntington," said David Ondersma, chairman and corporate executive officer of FMB. "Our customers, employees, and shareholders have the opportunity to be affiliated with an excellent regional banking franchise."

Huntington, based out of Columbus, Ohio, has 445 offices in a 12-state area throughout the Midwest and Atlantic coast. They have assets in excess of $21 billion.

BEANIE BABIES

Drake Nagel, an 8-year-old from Ellsworth, has friends standing in line for one of the 77 Beanie Babies he picked up from manager Mark Becker at Charlevoix's McDonalds Wednesday. Drake's family came to Charlevoix to put their name in a box that filled up with about 500 registration slips when the restaurant began to give away miniatures of the dolls.

Business in brief

Gary Osterbeck has recently joined the Boyne City staff at FMB-Northwestern Bank as vice president-business development officer. He will be responsible for loan and deposit growth, community involvement, sales, public relations and customer service, primarily in the Boyne City, Petoskey and Charlevoix markets.

He comes to the bank with years of sales experience, the last seven of which were spent working for Boyne USA Resorts as group sales and marketing director. The previous 32 years, Osterbeck worked for Kelsey Hayes Co. as director of sales and marketing for the Aluminum Wheel Co.

Osterbeck and his wife, Lynn, live on Lake Charlevoix near Horton Bay. Lynn is a teacher at Northwest Academy in Charlevoix.

Playground Paradise: Charlevoix elementary students have it

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Recess is sweeter than ever for the upperclassmen at Charlevoix Elementary School.

The day's lunch in inhaled to enable more time to play on the newest playground.

"It's very entertaining," said Lexie Evans, a fourth-grader. "I like all the colors."

The blue, green and tan playground equipment is the result of years of work by local parents and service club members. Two new playgrounds, the most recent being finished as more sand arrives, has become a reality. . .

"You'd think they'd never been outside in their lives," said teacher's aid, Kathy Ballew as she supervises the rowdy ones during playtime. "This has been well worth the wait, well worth the effort of everyone."

Phase two of the project was installed May 10, phase one in November. The metal and plastic pieces from the newest section are an equivalent of 38,152 plastic containers, 5,854 aluminum cans and 14,832 soup cans, according to a wooden sign that is posted near the equipment.

A larger roller enables kids to run in place on it. Stairs lead up to two towers attached by a wooden walkway. Anchored pods and sliding, overhead handles take students into an Indiana Jones movie.

Caitlin Cole doesn't know where to start. So, she tries it all — over and over. Since the opening of her part of the playground Friday, she has said good riddance to using the kindergartners and first-graders toys, which everyone used until the newest equipment was added.

Although there are all kinds of new, shapes and sizes of climbing equipment, there is still one constant — the blowing whistle that tells kids when they have stepped over the behavior line.

Ballew warns the children how to use the equipment properly — no jumping off the upper level. Overall though, she sees good, clean fun.

"This is what all the work was for," she said smiling.

Top left: Students clamor onto the new playground equipment Friday, the first day it was open for use. The equipment is shaped like a large square, like a huge fort built on the sand.

Track, field athletes advance to state

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

All season, the success of the Rayder track and field teams were their boys' throwers and their girls' distance runners.

Consistency held form at the regional meet in East Jordan over the weekend, as the only Rayders to qualify for the state meet came from those events.

Mike Rautio showed off his strength by throwing two first-place efforts in the shot put and discus. His shot throw of 52 feet-10 inches and discus toss of 147 feet-8 inches made him Charlevoix's only first-place winner of the day.

As a team, the Rayders gathered 35 points for seventh-place in the 16 team event. While other Rayder teams have done better, this one has been besieged by nagging injuries that have limited its numbers. Still, the team finished in the top half of the Class C region. Mancelona was dominant much of the season and breezed to the boys' title in front of second place Benzie Central.

The girls' qualified their 3200 relay team of Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Tricia Hodge, Jessica VanGuilder and Candice Vandergriff with a time of 10 minutes 7 seconds.

The quartet battled with Harbor Springs and Inland Lakes exchanging positions throughout the race. The Rayders finished third, missing automatic qualification, but earned an extra spot in the state meet by besting the predetermined qualifying time.

Vandergriff placed second in both the mile and two mile run, earning a spot in the state meet.

Overall, the Lady Rayders finished sixth out of 16 teams with 33 points. Kingsley with 112 and Lake Central 80 finished first and second.

The Lake Michigan Conference meet will be Wednesday, May 21, in East Jordan and Charlevoix's annual Meet of Champions will be held at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 27, at Kipke Field.

Justin Coen passes the baton to Steve Felter in a relay during Class C regional competition Saturday in East Jordan. The boys finished seventh and the girls finished sixth in the 16 team field.

Little Leaguer clears the fence

Matt Kilkenny, 12, hit a homerun over the fence at the Little League field on Carpenter Street May 14. The ball landed between the double fence that separates the field from the city airport.

It is estimated that Matt hit about 187 feet for his team — the Round Lake Lodge. He is the son of Diane and Michael Kilkenny.

Rayder softball tied for second in league play

The Rayder softball team scraped to doubleheader splits against league rivals Boyne City and East Jordan, but with a little better luck could have pulled off a sweep.

They downed the Ramblers 4-3 behind Jenny Eveleigh's two hitter, where she fanned six Boyne City batters.

A three-run third sparked by consecutive hits from Lyndsay Blechel, Eveleigh, and Mandi Barrett did most of the damage. Amanda Eaton stole home for the Rayders' first run of the game in the first inning.

The second game was for the taking until the Ramblers plated seven runs in their final at bat, earning them an 11-5 win. The gateway for the big inning was opened by four Rayder errors.

Lisa Wheat smacked three hits in four attempts and Eaton, Blechel, Eveleigh, Angie Potter, Ann Spang and Kelly Tornga each added a hit. Eveleigh struck out five, but the defense let her down.

"We gave that one away," assistant coach Bob Eveleigh said. "That stuff just comes back and kills you."

The errors reared their ugly head in the nightcap of the East Jordan series, where sloppy outfield play enabled the Red Devils to score three runs in their final at-bat, breaking open a 3-2 ball game. The Red Devils won 6-2.

One of the season's most balanced offensive attacks tilted game one to the Rayders 10-5.

The team plated four runs in the third, then two each in the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings.

Christine Sweeney had two hits, Eaton had two RBIs on a double, Potter added two hits with an RBI, as did Blechel and Tornga. Eveleigh earned the win, striking out seven Red Devils.

The Rayders are 6-4 in league play, tied for second place with Elk Rapids. Traverse City St. Francis is 8-2, with two games to play.

League play ends with a doubleheader at Kalkaska today with the Rayders slated to knock heads with Central Lake in a non-conference doubleheader, Thursday, May 22.

Baseball team win one

Joe Grundman's two run homer in the top of the sixth inning broke a 2-2 tie in the Rayders first game against East Jordan, leading the Rayders to a 7-2 win, their only one of the week.

Dan Pardee scattered seven hits, while walking none to earn the win. He helped his cause at the plate by smacking two doubles. Grundman also added a double as did Steve Carland, and Zac Bakker.

For most of the week, though,

Eastern Star starts season

The first meeting of the new season of the Order of Eastern Star, Charlevoix Chapter #72, was held with Worthy Matron Dorothea Kelley presiding.

Thank you notes were read from those who received contributions this past month. Members voted to contribute $125 for a brick for the Charlevoix Community Swimming Pool. The chapter donated to the Estarl Fund, which furnishes training awards for religious leadership.

Thousands of cards have been turned in and are to be sent to St. Jude's for their rehabilitation program for children.

An announcement was made that Dorothea Kelley had been chosen as an Assembly Page at the General Grand Chapter which will meet in Orlando, Fla., Nov. 1-7, and that Ann Hufford had been appointed as co-chairman of the Grand Chapter of Michigan to convene in Grand Rapids in October.

Sunshine chairman Sara Sievertsen reported that since the last meeting 76 calls had been made, two visits, and cards sent to 120 ill or shut-ins, in addition to baby gifts and Valentine cards being sent. Several members also attended the 104th birthday party of Frances Durance in East Jordan.

Plans for the Meguzee District meeting and luncheon to be held in Charlevoix were continued. Delegates were chosen as Hazel Rehkoph and Madolyn Heise, with Carla Spencer as an alternate. Honorary memberships will be given to the Worthy Grand Matron and Worthy Grand Patron of Michigan from the Chapter. The Worthy Matron thanked her pro-tem officers, including Sandra Birdsall of Petoskey, Madolyn Heise, Ethyle Marshall, Amy Russell and Nancy Wood. Refreshments were served at the close of the business meeting by Nancy Wood, Hazel Rehkoph and Janada Chingwa.

Eastern Star starts season

The first meeting of the new season of the Order of Eastern Star, Charlevoix Chapter #72, was held with Worthy Matron Dorothea Kelley presiding.

Thank you notes were read from those who received contributions this past month. Members voted to contribute $125 for a brick for the Charlevoix Community Swimming Pool. The chapter donated to the Estarl Fund, which furnishes training awards for religious leadership.

Thousands of cards have been turned in and are to be sent to St. Jude's for their rehabilitation program for children.

An announcement was made that Dorothea Kelley had been chosen as an Assembly Page at the General Grand Chapter which will meet in Orlando, Fla., Nov. 1-7, and that Ann Hufford had been appointed as co-chairman of the Grand Chapter of Michigan to convene in Grand Rapids in October.

Sunshine chairman Sara Sievertsen reported that since the last meeting 76 calls had been made, two visits, and cards sent to 120 ill or shut-ins, in addition to baby gifts and Valentine cards being sent. Several members also attended the 104th birthday party of Frances Durance in East Jordan.

Plans for the Meguzee District meeting and luncheon to be held in Charlevoix were continued. Delegates were chosen as Hazel Rehkoph and Madolyn Heise, with Carla Spencer as an alternate. Honorary memberships will be given to the Worthy Grand Matron and Worthy Grand Patron of Michigan from the Chapter. The Worthy Matron thanked her pro-tem officers, including Sandra Birdsall of Petoskey, Madolyn Heise, Ethyle Marshall, Amy Russell and Nancy Wood. Refreshments were served at the close of the business meeting by Nancy Wood, Hazel Rehkoph and Janada Chingwa.

1997 Charlevoix High School inductees to the National Honor Society

Students inducted into honors society

The largest group ever was inducted into the National Honor Society at Charlevoix High School.

The 28 new members were chosen for their high achievements in scholarship, leadership, service and character. They are Ann Spang, Heather Ferber, Michelle Potter, Liza Gorkiewicz, Jenna Ward, Lori Stargardt, Jessi Whitley, Amanda Webb, Nicole Bunting, Jamie Gowell, Jessica Corey, Kathleen Bogart, Danica Kilander, Tricia Hodge, Melissa Swem, Michael Czerkes, Nicholas Grossberg, Jeremy Rafacz, Jacob Feindt, Nicholas Martinchek, Jim Kanine, Tom Cunningham, Levi Bakker, Caleb Levengood, Nicholas Kessler, Todd Schaperkotter, Kristin Staton and Jessica Seibert.

Officers for 1997-98 term are president, Tricia Kelly; vice president, Jamie Whitley; secretary, Candice Vandergriff, and treasurer Stephen Felter.

Young teachers bring in updated techniques

Teachers with at least 20 years experience earn between $49,500 and $52,900. Under previous retirement agreements, teachers with 28 years experience could have two years bought out in yearly payments of between $7,000-$9,000 with an additional $3,000 stipend. Sothard said that deal still is applicable even with the new incentive.

The district will be trading less costs in faculty salary for less classroom experience, but Sothard put a positive spin on that.

"There are many well-trained people waiting for an opportunity to show what they can do," he said.

Sothard also pointed out that many of the younger teachers brought in will bring with them training on how to use computers as a teaching tool, something older teachers may not possess.

The incentive agreement should reduce spending some, but balancing a budget still has hurdles to clear. For example, the district is unclear how many students will be walking the hallowed school halls next year and in the future. School of choice legislation and charter schools have made student counts move up and down, and state funding is tied at the hip to student population. Variations in per-student stipends from the state makes predicting incoming revenue difficult.

In any event, the board of education has challenged the administration to effect a balance budget plan by the first of July, and Jackson said a week long jam session is being scheduled for June to get ideas out on the table.

However, by the time July 1 flips onto the calender, a revamped school board may sit in charge. With possibly three new personalities driving the decisions, a balanced budget, while helped with this early retirement plan, is far from a reality.

The latest proposed five-year budget plan shows the district outspending revenues in each of the next four years by as high as half a million and as low as $75,000, squeezing a general fund of more than $2 million down to below $500,000.

Sports shorts, continued from page 13

an inability to come through with the big hit kept solid pitching efforts winless as the Rayders dropped game two to East Jordan 3-1 and were swept by Boyne City 5-1, 6-2.

In the first game against Boyne, the Rayders had ducks in scoring position all game, but couldn't manage to score a run until Bakker single plated Steve Speigl in their final at bat.

In the second game, Boyne chased Pardee out of the game with a four spot in the first, however, T.J. Carey held the Ramblers to just two more runs the rest of the game.

It was Carey's second impressive outing of the spring. He has battled a shoulder injury.

Despite the cool bats, coach Scott Kelley remains upbeat if not comedic. He said expect spring break next year to be in Alaska to better prepare players for the reality of baseball in northern Michigan in the "spring."

The Rayders are 9-8-1, 4-5-1 in Lake Michigan play. They complete their league schedule with a doubleheader at Kalkaska today and then play in a non-league Thursday, May 22, at Central Lake. The doubleheader vs. Northern Michigan Christian Academy will be Friday, May 23, but will be played by the Rayder JV squad.

Post season draw announced for teams

District play will begin a little early for the Rayder softball and baseball play as both drew a first round game against Mancelona.

The games will both be at home 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 27.

Should the Rayders win, district semifinals and finals will be played in East Jordan on Saturday, May 31.

Tennis team ends season at regionals

The doubles teams of Wally Pair-George LaBlance and Jamie Whitley-Simeon Perron advanced to the championship match in their No. 2 and No. 3 doubles flights before falling in regional play Friday in Harbor Springs.

Pair-LaBlance defeated a duo from Boyne City 7-6, 6-2 before being ousted by Eddie Wierzbicki-Jess Coine from Elk Rapids 6-4, 6-4.

Whitley-Perron bested a pair from Harbor Springs in a tightly contested 7-6, 6-3 match before losing to Bill Case-Josh Hall of Boyne City 6-3, 7-5.

They were the only Rayder wins on the day. The team finished fourth of four with Harbor Springs advancing to state.

More area homes could qualify as state historic sites

By Geoffrey D. Reynolds
Courier columnist

As the Charlevoix Historical Society and its two recognized buildings, the Harsha House Museum and the Charlevoix Depot Museum, each celebrate anniversaries this summer, it is only fitting that I talk about the many ways in which each of you can celebrate your property's past.

To start, many homes and businesses within Charlevoix's city limits are considered historic, not only by their owners, but by the State of Michigan and national historical agencies. Within Michigan, property owners can apply for State Historic Site status through the Bureau of History in Lansing. With this granted status you will receive permission to become a recognized State Historic Site and have the honor of placing a small plaque or free-standing sign on or around your historic property. While no restrictions are placed on the home owner at the state level, you will be listed in the State of Michigan Historic Sites booklet as a place representing historic Michigan.

From the Archives

Other state sponsored programs include the Centennial Farm Program and Centennial Business Program. The Centennial Farm Program is sponsored in partnership with the Michigan Farm Centennial Association and the State Bureau of History. To qualify, the farm must have remained in the same family for at least 100 years

Once approved, a local electrical power company will purchase a handsome marker for your property. However, requirements for the Centennial Business Program vary and can be provided by the Charlevoix Historical Society or the State Bureau of History office.

At the national level, the national Register of Historic Places, some restrictions do apply to property owners concerning changes they might propose after receiving the coveted status. But most conditions only seek to preserve the integrity and historical status for your historic landscape. Landscapes include cemeteries, parks, and farms known for their landscaping beauty and design.

Another way to formally recognize your historic building is to register it in the Michigan Stained Glass Census. This statewide survey of architectural stained glass is sponsored by the Michigan State University Museum and seeks to locate, record, and photograph stained glass windows throughout the state. Once submitted, the information provided on your window or windows is placed in a computerized archive at the museum and into the national Census of Stained Glass Windows in America database, which has been underway since 1979.

Once entered, the information is used for the study of this form of architectural embellishment. Examples of this artistic form may be seen on buildings around the area including churches, synagogues, public buildings, business places, and private homes. Many homes in Charlevoix illustrate the jewels or cast-glass style which can be recognized by the glass nuggets inserted into windows for a decorative effect along the top or sides of the frame.

If you are interested in seeking state or national historic status for your property and still need to do some work on the buildings, there are local, state, and national groups eager to help you with your restoration project.

To start, you can contact the Charlevoix Historical Society at 547-4640. They will provide the necessary literature and addresses to these groups as well as the necessary forms for applying to the above mentioned state and national agencies.

Remember that they are as eager as you in recognizing your historic property.

Charlevoix County Hospice holding annual fund-raiser

How lucky do you feel?

Charlevoix County Hospice organizers are hoping you feel good enough to challenge suspicion by attending their annual fund-raiser Friday, June 13, at Boyne Mountain Resort in Boyne Falls. There will be plenty of opportunities for good luck.

This year's event will be highlighted by an opportunity to win an elegant, black 1949 Jaguar. The evening's auction activities will build a crescendo of excitement with bidding on donations of art, entertainment, services and manufactured goods from area commerce and artisans. Culmination will be the drawing of the winning raffle ticket for the car.

The raffle is enticing participants by offering 200 tickets for $100 each.

The auction always mixes fun and surprises with the concern for a serious cause. There is something for everyone: door prize raffles, an extensive silent auction, and an energetic and varied live auction. There is plenty of food and a cash bar to keep bidder energy levels up. The auction will start at 5 p.m. with the silent auction.

Tickets are $15, and can be purchased at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City; The Clothing Co. in Charlevoix, and Busy Bridge Gifts and Antiques in East Jordan, or from hospice volunteers and board members.

Further information about the auction and the jaguar tickets can be obtained from the hospice office 536-2842.

Luncheon held for volunteers

A recognition luncheon was held at the Grey Gables for volunteers working with the Charlevoix County Family Independence Agency..

Annually volunteers are formally recognized for their years of service. A valued asset, volunteers are a solution to getting tasks accomplished that otherwise go unmet.

Volunteers provide a variety of services such as transportation, visitations, mentoring children, activities for the elderly, food services, donation processing and a wide range of whatever needs to get done.

"Volunteers are a vital part of our agency and add that extra workforce and expertise where needed," said volunteer services coordinator, Vasco Zucchiatti. "Volunteers have been an ever increasing asset to getting our goals met. Our local county office feels very fortunate to have volunteers giving their time and effort toward making other's lives better."

School board candidates agree on many issues

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

School board candidates gathered for a second round of debates, and instead of producing differing viewpoints, the candidates surprisingly found themselves in agreement much of the time.

So much so that Scott Boss, who was unable to attend the first debate a week earlier, quipped that he was shocked this was the same group he had heard about on the streets and in the paper.

None of them approve of a set policy requiring K-2 teacher-student ratios of 1:20, but all agreed it was an ideal goal. None support moving the fifth-graders into the middle school, at least not unless a new middle school was built for that purpose. Each said their conscience and what's best for children would drive their decisions as opposed to pure public opinion.

More often than not the words "I agree with" or "I'll just echo the comments of," began the candidates' minute-long forays into some of the issues.

Joan Buday, Pat McKeown Jr., Dennis Halverson, Scott Boss, and Barney Way are vying for two four-year terms while Ike Boss and Michael MacMillan are competing for the one-year term left after Sulane Hamilton resigned in March. Buday and McKeown, Jr., are incumbents.

Just because disagreements weren't the highlight of the March 20 debate, which was sponsored by the Parent Teachers Organization, doesn't mean original thought was altogether avoided.

Bridge Park dedication nears

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Charlevoix residents will be rubbing elbows Thursday, May 29, with the local, state and federal officials who have taken a dream for Bridge Park and made it a reality.

The dream took the park another step beyond the early days of when a sewage plant pumped waste into Round Lake. It took the waterfront property and made it efficient space that city leaders hope will stabilize the economy.

Three reasons surrounded the project, which has cost more than $5 million: aesthetics, retaining a U.S. Coast Guard ship in port and improving transportation of people and goods to Beaver Island.

The Coast Guard Cutter Acacia will stay in Charlevoix until she is decommissioned in 2002. With the renovations in the park complete, providing the Coast Guard with classroom and storage space, city mayor Josh Barnes hopes that one of the newer, larger vessels will be assigned to town.

"The Coast Guard would have left if we had not undertaken the project," Barnes said.

Barnes said the ship brings money and a sense of safety on the lakes into the community, as well as the crew's participation in the schools, fund-raisers and events.

The improvements that will benefit the Beaver Island Boat Co. will not all be seen in action this summer. The elevating dock will be used this fall when the company's stern loading ferry arrives.

"We feel this will greatly stimulate the economy of the island, and frankly, everything that goes to the island goes through Charlevoix," Barnes said. "We expect to substantially increase the Beaver Island-Charlevoix economy, which I think of as one."

Entire semis will be able to be back onto the boat without having to be unloaded and reloaded upon reaching the island.

In December 1994, Charlevoix voters approved the construction of the park. It began in the fall of 1995. Almost two years later, the park is completed, with the planting of trees being one of the finishing touches.

The May 29 dedication will officially recognize the efforts of everyone who persisted through and contributed to such a major project. There were roadblocks, like when the city had to make $80,000 worth of emergency repairs to the siding at the channels. Each step of the way, the city worked with government officials to minimize problems and overcome hindrances.

The celebration will mark the end of this project. It begins with an open house and tours of the park and the new building that provides space for the Beaver Island Boat Co. and the U.S. Coast Guard. Tours will be held from 3-8

McSauba getting lodge addition

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Kids are going to have more indoor space at Mt. McSauba when an expansion of the lodge is complete. The building is used by children during summer camp and winter skiing.

A new two story addition, totaling 1,728 more square feet, is in the works.

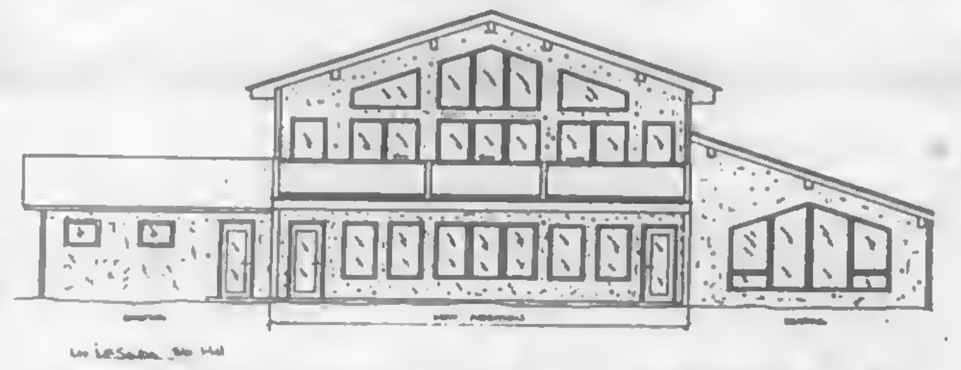
The project, which is expected to cost about $23,000 for a roughed-in addition. It is being funded by the city until business and private donations cover costs. City recreation director, Ike Boss, said he hopes to have the project fully funded by donors. More than $12,600 have been raised through private cash donations, discounts on materials from local suppliers and at-cost construction labor provided hy Bo Boss of Charlevoix County Construction.

"The goal is to have no money out of the city budget," Boss said.

City council easily backed the plan.

"We're fortunate to have some hard working young fellows who will come out and work," said councilmember Don Meggison at a May 19 meeting.

The city-owned lodge will be ready for kids when they arrive for the first week of summer camp on June 23. The addition will allow 65 campers — 15 more each week — to attend summer camp. City treasurer Rick Brandi estimates that registration fees from the additional campers generate about $4,500 more dollars for the city's recreation fund.



This is a line drawing of the lodge when the addition is finished.

Throughout the summer, the added space will enable 120 more kids to attend the camp. The young people come during the day Monday-Wednesday and then sleep over Thursday night. The kids will be sleeping in the expanded lodge, which is also used for projects during rainy days.

In recent years, the camp has been booked hy young people learning archery and BB gunnery, doing arts and crafts and taking nature hikes. Last summer, 160 people were turned away, Boss said, and 280 campers are already registered for this summer.

The recreation department had planned to build a pole barn to provide the additional space, with an expanded lodge occurring in about four years. Boss said that expanding the lodge now will save money in the long run since two structures are not needed at McSauba.

During the winter ski season, the second floor of the lodge will be used as a lounge for adults who want to watch the ski hills without the chaos found around the concession counter the downstairs.

Band to start dedication

p.m.

The formal ceremony opens at 5 p.m. with the Charlevoix High School Band and the U.S. Coast Guard Color Guard combining efforts to create a patriotic atmosphere.

By 5:30 p.m., speakers from the local chamber, downtown development authority and the mayor will intertwine comments on the project with U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham, U.S. Rep. Bart Stupak; State Sen. Walter North, R-St. Ignace, State Rep. Beverly Bodem, R-Alpena, Lt. Cmdr. Karl Schultz, from the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia, Bill McDonough, from Beaver Island, and Robert Welke, director of the Michigan Department of Transportation, appearing as the honored speaker.

Comments will be short and over by 6:30 p.m. Mary Feindt, a member of the downtown development authority, will be breaking a bottle of champagne over the park railing. Final celebration will come in the form of red, white and blue as 400 biodegradable, helium balloons are released to float skyward.

Events in brief

High school projects to be on display

The Fourth Annual Charlevoix High School Expo will be held in the high school gym from 6-9 p.m. today, May 28.

Student projects from various educational departments will be featured; for example, the school publication, computer-aided drafting projects and displays of items made during construction class. There will also be carbon dioxide car races.

Outstanding educators honored at reception

A celebration will be held from 3:45-5 p.m. Wednesday, June 4, in the high school library for Roger Gowell and Betsy Reynolds for their being named Outstanding People in Education by the Michigan Education Association.

The public is invited to attend the reception.

Absentee voters ballots available

Absentee voter ballots for the annual school election are available at the Charlevoix schools administrative office at 208 Clinton St. from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday, June 7.

The election will be held from 7 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday, June 9.

The election will include seating three school board members, a 1 mill for six years to pay for major school repairs and a 0.5 mill for one year request to establish a sinking fund to purchase 117 acres on M-66.

A separate millage will also be on the ballot for 0.5 mills to fund the Charlevoix Public Library. The money must be voted on because it formerly was channeled through the school and now, because of a new state law, is being governed by a library board comprised of city and township representatives.

Indoor pool being dedicated

At last the Charlevoix area will have an indoor pool. To celebrate the completion of the Charlevoix Community Pool, a public dedication and tour of the facility by Friends of the Pool have been planned for Saturday, May 31.

The celebration follows the U.S. Coast Guard 5K and 10K races at 9 a.m. to benefit the pool.

Ralph Hamilton, 93, will cut the ribbon at the event, which begins at 10:30 a.m. at the site on U.S. 31 North. For 50-some years, Hamilton has campaigned for an indoor pool in an area surrounded by lakes.

Music for the occasion will he played by the Charlevoix Middle School band, directed by Evelyn Wujcik and Raphael Rittenhouse. Middle School students led the way among local schools to raise money for the pool.

The pool is expected to officially open in June, after certification by health department inspectors. Meanwhile, Kimberly Tromhetti is scheduling water safety orientation sessions and pool tours for school children prior to summer vacations. She is certified by the American Red Cross as a water safety instructor.

Charlevoix Friends of the Pool, the volunteer organization which took up Hamilton's challenge to build an indoor pool, surmounted many obstacles to reach its goal. The pool is believed to he the only one in Michigan built for public use by volunteers with donations from individuals and foundations. In the past 10 years, the group has raised more than $1.5 million toward construction, operation and endowment of the pool. But it still must raise at least $60,000 more for construction. In addition to an annual auction, a number of local organizations sponsor yearly events to benefit the project.

Architect H. Jack Begrow designed the facility, which has energy saving features, a pool ramp to accommodate wheelchairs, a shallow instructional area, and state-of-the-art equipment. Pool water will be treated with bromine.

James Petrie of Petrie Construction Co. is the contractor. The Grand Rapids firm of Acme Pool Co. built the pool shell.

Dale Troppman, of LexaLite International Corp., designed the lighting and also served as volunteer project liaison together with Bernard Cannon, a retired chemical engineer. The 14-member board of friends group is headed by Bruce MacArthur, a General Motors retiree. Todd Welscott is pool manager.

Coast Guard co-sponsors races

The U.S. Coast Guard and Charlevoix Friends of the Pool are co-sponsoring the third annual Coast Guard 5K Run/Walk and 10K Run on Saturday, May 31.

The runs begin at 9 a.m. at the pool, on U.S. 31 just north of Charlevoix. The finish line is also at the pool, which will be dedicated after the runs. Applications for the races can be obtained from Subway, 7-Eleven, Glen's, Biceps Gym and Harbor Health and Fitness.

Registration is $10 in advance and $12 the day of the race. All proceeds will be donated to the Charlevoix Community Pool.

OPINIONS

Community rightly responds to needs of fire victims

EDITORIAL

Once again, the community has responded to tragedy with open hearts, wallets and homes.

The fire May 20 burned five people out of house and home. Four of those people belong to the Chulick family. There have been funds established for people to make donations to help them.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club has donated $100 and Bolt Designs, Inc., also donated $100. The money has been deposited into an account at Charlevoix State Bank to enable the family to withdraw money as needed. A second account is being orchestrated by the Christ Episcopal Church.

As a potter, the mother of the family, Barb Godwin, is well known for her generosity in providing bowls to hungry people and helping abused women. She is now benefiting from other good hearts in her time of need.

We thank the community for pulling together to help their own.

But there is one other, the renter, who appears to be unnoticed by the community. She is Susan Withee, a waitress at the Weathervane Restaurant. We urge people to remember Susan's needs while they reach out to help the Chulicks.

None of the occupants of the 230 Antrim Street House had insurance. The fire started in a downstairs work area that the. Chulicks used as a type of garage. Susan's apartment was just upstairs. Her living space, which she rented from Godwin and Dave Chulick, was badly damaged by the water and foam used to put the fire out and by the smoke.

Two days after the fire, Susan's car died. It will cost about $300 to put it back on the road. Susan hopes to get the month's rent she just paid and the last month's rent she put down when moving into the apartment back to pay for the needed repairs.

Like the Chulicks, Susan is devastated by the event. Coming home to flames in your house is a tragedy that nobody can prepare for.

Although Susan has not been allowed to be in the apartment long enough to discover what possessions survived the fire, we believe that the community could reach out by donating her money to repair her car and find a new place to live and by donating electric appliances.

Charlevoix fire chief, Doug Carver, said the people can drop of goods for Susan Withee at the fire hall. She is currently staying at her sister's house and will use donations to get another place to live.

It's possible that Susan can move back into her apartment after the community building project benefiting the fire victims is finished. Until then, all five people are in need of our help.

Letters to the editor

Young life saved by full-time firefighter

Editor:

In reference to the structure fire we had last week, Tuesday, May 20, at 230 Antrim Street.

9-1-1 dispatched the fire department at 17:34 (5:34 p.m.). Because the City of Charlevoix has an "on duty fireman," he was able to arrive at this particular scene in less than two minutes. The two-minute response time was very important in this case, because we had a young girl to rescue from the second story window of the building.

We feel that if we had to wait another few minutes longer, the victim would have suffered severe smoke inhalation, or worse, she would have jumped.

The City of Charlevoix and our contracting townships benefit from having a full-time, on duty fireman, and well trained volunteers. This last structure fire is a prime example why it is so necessary.

Sincerely,
Doug Carver, fire chief

Pastor encouraged by community unity

Editor:

I had the privilege of attending the Sunday, May 18, the Community Praise Gathering sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association, which was hosted by the Charlevoix Assembly of God. It was an evening of congregational singing accompanied by a community orchestra with special music by a community choir, men's glee club, a bell choir, and youth choir and band. The event was packed to standing room only. We couldn't have asked for a better evening.

I was impressed by the amount of local church participation and the spirit of unity. We were united in our hearts as we praised the one true living God and celebrated the fact that Jesus Christ came to save us and provide a home for us in Heaven.

I've served as a pastor in our community at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene for almost 12 years and have always considered it a privilege to serve here. But last Sunday evening was "icing on the cake" for my ministry in Charlevoix. We've always had a wonderful community, and the praise gathering with all the participating churches has given us the potential to be a great community for the Lord. We are on the verge of a revival, and I'm glad to be a part of it.

Rev. Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

Camp McSauba preparing for kids

Editor:

It is once again summer and time to think about Camp McSauba. We are hoping to have one of our greatest camp years. We have already signed up more than half of the possible positions for campers. Get those applications in fast, we're filling up.

Camp McSauba is a day camp located in Charlevoix at the Mt. McSauba Recreational Area. Campers aged 5-13 attend weekly sessions starting June 23 and running eight sessions through August 15. Camp begins each day at 9 a.m. and runs until 3:15 p.m. Thursday is our camp overnight. The campers arrive at 9 a.m. and stay through the night. Friday morning includes a breakfast of delicious pancakes. The camp week is concluded with an awards ceremony, which is held Friday at 11 a.m.

Camp activities include arts and crafts, BB gunnery, archery, recreational games and activities, beach activities, nature hikes and campfire programs.

We are currently working on the expansion of the ski lodge. We will be adding 1,700 square feet to the existing building. This will allow us to increase the number of children that will now be able to attend camp to 65 campers per week. We are still taking contributions for the addition, which would be tax deductible. We are planning to have an honorary plaque for those who contribute in the following denominations: $25-$100 Bronze, $101-$200 Silver, $201-$300 Gold, $301 & up Benefactor.

More letters to the editor

We once again have an excellent camp staff. Amy Parrish will be returning for her fourth year to be our head counselor. Amy is studying at Western Michigan University to be an elementary education teacher. Jeff Boss is returning for his third year and attends North Central Michigan College. Jeff is also studying to be a teacher. Don Jess is returning for his second year. Don, a former Charlevoix star athlete, attends Alma College and is now playing football for Alma. Bruce will be returning full time this summer from a part-time counseling position he held last year. Bruce is currently teaching second-grade at East Jordan Public Schools. Our fifth counselor is yet to be decided.

We are really looking forward to this summer at camp. Our goal once again is to ensure that kids have fun. To sign up for camp you can call the Charlevoix Recreation Department at 547-3253. The cost is $55 per week. Scholarships are available.

Have a great summer and thank you for your continued support.

Sincerely,
Meg Fowler, camp director

Mail carriers pick up community donations

Editor:

The Charlevoix Mail Carriers joined the National Food Drive and the United Way in sponsoring a food pick-up on May 10.

This caring community gave fine support and many people in the Charlevoix School District will benefit. We appreciate all your efforts in this drive.

Sincerely,
Community Food Pantry

Rate Changes

Effective Wednesday, June 4, the home delivery rate for the Charlevoix Courier will be adjusted. The newly yearly home delivery rates will be $37.50 for local customers and $48.80 for those living out of the area.

Guest Commentary

The following is a guest commentary submitted by Rosalind Stump, a Charlevoix voter and taxpayer.

"Pride goes before destruction, a haughty spirit before a fall."
— King Solomon

June is fast approaching. Voters within the Charlevoix Public School District are about to vote for whom they believe will become the "new" board of education, which will lead the district into the next century. I wish to express some concerns not only to the candidates, but also to the voters who will go to the polls to elect them. I begin by recalling, as constructive examples, the work of two citizens, and the accomplishments which their dedication made possible.

I did not know Ray Kipke, after whom the high school athletic field is named. However, those who knew him will attest to the fact that he was not a proud or boastful man. His commitment to the community's children was recognized when, several years ago, Mr. Kipke was honored for his role in developing the lives of young men in our community.

I personally know Pete Spieles, who as a coach taught the Charlevoix cross country team the true meaning of "teamwork." He taught the importance and value of hard work and perseverance. He modeled personal humility and fostered attitudes of compassion and encouragement between team members and their opponents. He believed in his students and their parents. He emphasized the importance of being and doing one's personal best each day. Growth in individuals, and not the scoreboard's totals, was his primary motivation. Therefore, all could respect him. Due to his humble and youth-centered approach to coaching, Charlevoix now proudly displays a sign at the city's entrance applauding the accomplishments of the many young men and women who over the years responded to Coach Spiele's challenge to both personal and team excellence.

Stump

I am concerned that many within the Charlevoix community have misused the "fruits" of the labors and accomplishments of hard working parents, students, teachers and coaches. The misuse has occurred as these accomplishments have been lifted up as "little gods" which some citizens now worship. In so doing, pride has been turned inward, resulting in unearned self exaltation. How much better would it be to use the past victories as motivating forces in setting and fulfilling new goals for the school district and community? I submit that many are failing to portray a humble attitude of gratitude toward the past accomplishments (there's many!) of our community and school district. False pride results in one's downfall.

School and community leadership need to renew their commitment to focusing on the priorities and programs which will be in each and all students' best interests. The attitude in the school district has too often become one of, "They don't care, why should I." The focus must shift from personal resumes and past accomplishments to the programs, facilities and needs of the present and future.

Finger pointing is widespread. As community members, we need to remember the truth, that when one points his/her finger at someone else, three fingers are pointing back towards the one doing the pointing. Education begins at home. Parents

Candidates discuss alternatives

Way, for example, broached the idea of forming two schools, grades K-6 and grades 7-12.

"Eliminate a building altogether, a different twist of things," he said. "Maybe then in another 10 or 15 years we could build a new middle school."

McKeown Jr. had said in the previous debate that cutting sports would be the wrong way to go, but backtracked Tuesday by saying that in a crisis, some of the newer programs may need to be scaled back.

Buday, MacMillan, Halverson, and Boss all said sports should not be cut.

Buday said they "round out the student and the curriculum," while Boss said the athletic field was as "a real life environment as the school could provide" and that sports teach the necessary elements of life like setting goals and working as a team.

MacMillan did say, though, that alternatives such as pay-to-play programs should be looked into to help alleviate budgetary problems through the athletic department.

On the district's budget crunch, Way suggested perhaps that slashing should occur within all departments academic, athletics and busing.

Halverson, however, said he would hesitate making any cuts in busing because it may "adversely affect those who can't afford other means."

Regarding the proposed purchase of 117 acres on M-66, both Bosses and Way are opposed while Buday, McKeown, Jr., Halverson and MacMillan favor it.

They were asked whether or not they would use general fund money to buy the land even if voters turn down the one-year .5 mill ballot proposal. Originally, the board of education was going to do just that until a 4-3 vote last month put the issue in the hands of the voters.

Obviously, that question was not an issue for those not in favor of the land. McKeown, Jr., wasn't interested in going against the grain of the voters.

MacMillan, frustrated by what he sees as a "lack of planning ahead for the students of our community," would indeed go ahead and purchase the land out of general funds.

Halverson leaned towards doing that, noting that the issue has been talked about for years and action needs to be taken.

Buday said it was the best land available, most reasonably priced, and that her support for the land was buoyed further by its ability to hold septic fields.

Ike Boss was unable to attend due to a prior commitment.

Election day is Monday, June 9.

Students from Dennis Luce's sixth-grade class from Concord Academy peer over the edge of the Beaver Islander to test the clarity of Lake Charlevoix by using the traditional Secchi test. For the most part, they discovered clear water down to about 18 feet.

Students learn about clarity, inhabitants of Lake Charlevoix

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Picturing children and lakes usually conjures up images of splash fights, inner tubes and overall merriment.

Last week, though, Charlevoix County sixth-graders got a different perspective of the lake — the ecological side.

Hopping on the Beaver Islander, students toured Lake Charlevoix while being led by members of the Lake Charlevoix Association and Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council. They learned about water concerns that might not be realized as they splash their way through each summer.

Sixth-graders from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan, and Concord Academy attended the educational boat tour over a three day period.

"We talk about the environment in class, but I wanted to put a local flavor to it," Dennis Luce, a sixth-grade teacher at Concord academy said. "This is their own backyard. It's important for them to be able to identify with the stuff they'll brush up against in the future."

Students broke up into three groups, rotating to different experiments, where they tested both the acidity and clarity of the water. Doing pH tests, the students were pleased to find the water neutral, however, testing other liquids, namely the soda pop they drink, made them think.

"Pop is all acid, we must be pretty filled with it after drinking pop all our life," sixth-grader Lee Thomas said.

The students judged the water's clarity uses the traditional Secchi test by dropping a black and white disk into the water, pulling it back to the surface foot-by-foot and counting the feet once the disk is visible.

Most counted the clarity between 18-21 feet, which students found as okay, but it could have been better.

"It was amazing to look down and see all the oil," Mark Goethals said.

Students also learned about alien invaders in the water, notably the sea lamprey, zebra mussels and purple loosestrife.

To illustrate the danger lampreys can be on the regular fish population, Norm Probert of the Lake Charlevoix Association told students that at the most recent trout tournament 812 of the trout nabbed were accompanied by lamprey scars.

Many students commented that the lamprey looked like a long snake, but Caleb Olstrom put a more contemporary spin on it when comparing it to an alien from "Independence Day."

This was the second year area sixth-graders toured the lake.

Fire victim safely set free by rescuers

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Emily Chulick thought she was going to die as she stuffed clothes into the heating vent and around the edges of her bedroom door.

The 14-year-old girl was the only one home when her house at the corner of Antrim and Grant streets caught fire May 20 in her father's downstairs workshop. She called 9-1-1.

"I saw smoke coming through the air vents," she said, as firefighters continued to poor water on the smoldering remains of a rental apartment that adjoins her home over Godwin Porcelain and Purple Moose Graphics. "The hot air vent was just pouring with smoke."

The stairway out of the house was farther back in the house, close to the fire.

"I said, 'If they don't get here, I'm going to jump. I was not afraid to break a leg," Emily said. She didn't have to.

Minutes after calling the emergency number, Charlevoix firefighters arrived at the 230 Antrim Street house, at about 5:30 p.m. Emily held her dog at the front window of the upstairs apartment as a ladder was placed for her rescue. The dog jumped from her arms and was caught by Charlevoix police sergeant Dale Meredith. Emily was helped down the ladder.

She was examined by emergency medical technicians and found to be uninjured.

"They thought she was going to dive out," fire chief Doug Carver said of the firefighters who helped get Emily down. She had already knocked out the screen. "As soon as she got out, the smoke was terrific in there."

When first entering Emily's upstairs bedroom, firefighters went looking for the family's 11-year-old son and the renter, Susan Withee, who had yet to be located. When realizing that there was nobody else inside, firefighters pushed the fire back toward the source until it was extinguished with water and foam.

The cause of the fire is still being investigated. Carver said a leaky gas can was found in the workshop, where the fire started.

"It looked like the seal at the bottom wasn't tight," Carver said. Water was put in the can and it did leak out. However, the can never exploded and the chief is still searching for how the fire ignited. A neighbor said they thought they heard fire crackers go off just before the fire, a possibility that is being investigated by the fire department.

The workshop was destroyed by the flames. A couch located in front of an air vent in Withee's apartment over the workshop was also burned. Smoke and water damage occurred through the rest of the building. Emily was grateful for her bedroom not being burned as she she stood on Antrim Street looking up at a poster that hung safely on her wall.

Firefighters were on the scene until 8 p.m. By then, the Chulicks were being taken to a friend's apartment on Mason Street where they will stay for a few weeks. Members of Barb Godwin Chulick's prayer group, which was with at Christ Episcopal Church when the fire started, collected food and clothing. Neither the Chulicks nor Withee had insurance on the building or their personal belongings.

"They prayed with me before I came to see what the damage was," Barb said.

The Rev. Gordon Cooper, residing priest at Christ Episcopal, said a fund has been established for the family to help with expenses. Checks can be sent to P.O. Box 385, Charlevoix, MI, 49720, and made out of the Christ Episcopal Church, Chulick Fund, or to Charlevoix State Bank, Barb and Dave Chulick, P.O. Box 217, 111 State St., Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

"There's been a wonderful community response and church response," Cooper said. "Before the ashes were cooled, the people had offered and put into place things to make sure the family was looked after, both materially and spiritually."

Firefighters throw parts from Susan Withee's apartment out of the windows shortly after the flames were doused above Godwin Porcelain and Purple Moose Graphics. The business owners, Dave Chulick and Barb Godwin Chulick, also lost their home in the upstairs front of the building.

Firefighters used a foam-water mixture to help douse the flames at the 230 Antrim St. fire May 20. The soapy agent is added to the water to help it attach to the burning structure.

Brea Garnee Harris

Brea Garnee Harris, infant daughter of Gary and Renee Harris of Coloma died six hours after birth on May 13, 1997, at Lakeland Medical Center, Berrien Center.

Private family services will be held at Boyd Funeral Home, Bridgman. Burial will follow in Coloma Cemetery.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by maternal grandparents, Norman and Joyce Ketchman of Stevensville, formerly of Charlevoix, and Glen and Sheila Harris of Benton Harbor, and a great-grandfather, Lyle Miles of Charlevoix, Mich.

Telemedicine benefits local family

University of Michigan physicians examine Russell Benz, of East Jordan, long distance in the presence of his parents, Don and Jane Russell, over interactive television. Connie Roland, R.N., education coordinator at Charlevoix Area Hospital, (back to camera) assists.

Charlevoix Area Hospital as a member of REMEC, an interactive television network among 11 area hospitals, is the first hospital to use the equipment as a telemedicine tool.

In response to a request from Dr. Roderic Tinney, pediatrician on the hospital staff, a teleconsultation was established between the young patient and the physicians at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Russell Benz, of East Jordan, has a rare medical condition that requires him to have a feeding tube in his abdomen. Problems had resulted with the tube and rather than send him more than 200 miles to Ann Arbor, Tinney asked Connie Roland, education coordinator at Charlevoix Area Hospital, to establish the connection.

Through this brief exam over television, whereby Dr. Daniel Titlebaum viewed the feeding tube site close-up, Russell and his parents were advised on treatment.

Roland was able to use her nursing experience to assist in the exam and help communicate the physician's message to the family. She said she was excited about this opportunity to demonstrate Charlevoix Area Hospital's commitment to provide access to health care in rural northern Michigan.

Even though the telemedicine consultation can save money and valuable time for many applications, it is not used extensively because the services provided by physicians and hospitals are not reimbursed by insurance companies and government programs.

"It is our hope that insurance companies and Medicare and Medicaid will see that this is an excellent way to improve patient access to care and save costs for everyone concerned," said Richard Krueger, Charlevoix Area Hospital president.

Following the initial consultation, the Benz family has had two further exams over the telecommunications network.

Youth choir performing musical Monday

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church will host the musical "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" at 7 p.m. Monday, June 2.

The Salt and Light Choir, a 60-member youth choir from St. Andrew's United Methodist Church in Plano, Texas, will perform the musical. This group travels each summer and performs musical productions around the country.

Prior to appearing in Charlevoix, the troop is performing the muscial in the Chicago area.

The church is located at 104 State Street in Charlevoix.

The public is welcome to attend.

For more information, call the church office at 547-2654.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Cara Hochhalter
Christian Education Director
First Congregational United Church of Christ

As a member of our church staff, I have been privileged to attend the monthly Charlevoix Ministerial Association meetings, where community issues are brought to light in terms of what the churches can do to help. It was recently suggested that the ministerial association could help in some way to bring harmony to the future of Charlevoix schools. In God all things are possible, even in Charlevoix.

There are signs of hope. We support a group that has already been formed called "Build a Better Future, Invest in Charlevoix Children." This group seeks to look for positive resolutions of issues while remembering that our children and young people are of utmost importance.

The new candidates for the school board all seem to have high ideals for the future of our schools and wish to move forward.

There are efforts to thank our teachers who devote so much time and energy to bring quality teaching to our students.

We urge the people of Charlevoix to try to stay informed about school issues, to vote in elections (the next vote is Monday, June 9) and to prayerfully consider the needs of our young people.

In faith we look to God for guidance. We remember that Christ himself stressed the importance of children. In the book of Luke, Jesus called the children to him and said, "Let the children come to me and do not stop them, because the Kingdom of God belongs to such as these."

Can our community unite in the effort of loving and caring of our children and young people, and make responsible decisions for Charlevoix schools?

These words from Ephesians 4:2-3 may speak to any conflict on this issue: "Be always humble, gentle, and patient. Show your love by being tolerant with one another. Do your best to preserve the unity which the Spirit gives by means of the peace that binds you together."

Businesswomen award scholarship

Andrea Strange received the 1997 Young Women in Public Affairs Award from the Charlevoix Area Zonta. Andrea was presented with this $500 award at the recent program at the Grey Gables in the presence of her mother and counselor.

Andrea will graduate from Ellsworth High School this June as valedictorian and already has a 4.0 in college from a biology course she took last semester at the local community college.

While pursuing this high academic standard, Andrea also was co-captain of the state semi-finalist Ellsworth girls' basketball team, class officer, participated in softball and cheerleading, assistant editor of yearbook, an active volunteer at the Good Samaritan Food Pantry, member of the National Honor Society and journalism staff.

Rosa Parks has been her role model since she was 8 years old. She admired her for her determination and leadership. One positive influence in her life has been a teacher who battled cancer while teaching and doing her very best.

Andrea's vision for women is to achieve equality by setting goals and that they would be willing to give of their time and dedication to fulfill this goal. Andrea is planning a career as a scientist, with an emphasis on testing diseases for cures.

Zonta International is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women.

Charlevoix Area Zonta was organized May 1989 with 25 women and currently has 32 members. During their seven years, service projects have included annual paint blitz, Christmas elf, Girl Scout pavilion, Charlevoix Area Hospital birthing unit, Raven Hill, Casa Materna in Nicaragua, National Young Women Leadership Camp, Amelia Earhart Fund, books donated to Charlevoix Area Library and Charlevoix Public Schools, Charlevoix Soccer, Explorer Patrol 11.

Business in brief

Chrysler Corporation announced today that Crown Motors of Charlevoix has been awarded the prestigious 1997 Chrysler Five Star Award for Excellence. Only one out of every four Chrysler Corporation dealers earns Five Star status.

Throughout 1996 Chrysler Corporation customers across the nation rated their local dealership in sales and service satisfaction. To earn the award, dealerships must consistently earn superior satisfaction ratings.

"Dealerships earn the Five Star Award for Excellence by consistently making their customers happy," said E. Thomas Pappert, Chrysler Corporation Vice President - Sales and Service. "The Five Star Award for Excellence dealerships are an elite group who strive to continually improve their sales and service processes."

Crown Motors of Charlevoix is located at 6684 U.S. 31 South and offers a complete line of Jeep and Eagle vehicles.

Rayder track and field finishes strong

The Rayder track and field teams came through with some of their best running to register strong finishes in the Lake Michigan Division championship meet May 21 in East Jordan.

The boys' squad, hampered by injuries of key seniors and overall inexperience, chugged their way to a third place finish with 84 points.

Kalkaska won the meet with 153 points with Harhor Springs second with 112.

Mike Rautio gave the Rayders their only first places with another double win in the discus and shot put.

"The kids stuck in there and rose to the occasion," coach Hal Evans said. "They had their hest meet when they were supposed to."

In Evans' words, the key was a "gutsy" performance from his makeshift mile and two mile relay teams.

The 1600 relay of Dave Manker, Hugo Jiminez, Justin Coen and Nate Martin placed second despite the race being Coen's first stab at a distant event. Martin and Jiminez combined with Marc Dohm and freshman Ben Mays to place second in the two mile run.

Other teams and individual racers finished in second through sixth places.

"We did our best which is what sports is all about. It's a good feeling," Evans said.

The girls' squad was nudged out of third place by East Jordan. Kalkaska took the crown with 122 points followed by Harbor Springs with 110. East Jordan scored 90 and Charlevoix 78.

Three firsts highlighted the day for Ken Plude's squad. However, overall placing of the team was hurt by a lack of competitors in field events.

Tricia Kelly sprinted to the top in the 100 meter dash, the 800 relay of Jessa VanGuilder, Ann Marie Terryberry, Sarah Dominic and Kelly took first, as did the 3200 relay of Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Tricia Hodge, Liza Gorkiewicz and Candice Vandergriff .

Vandergriff and Gorkiewicz were third and sixth in the mile run and third and fifth in the 800, respectively.Vandergriff placed third in the two mile.

Kelly raced to a second in the 200. The 400 relay team placed second, and the 1600 relay team placed fourth.

Girls' softball tied for second in league

Two extra inning victories paved the way for a Rayder sweep of Kalkaska, as Rick Grunch's softball team clinched at least a share of second place in the conference. Traverse City St. Francis, 10-2, won the Lake Michigan Division with Elk Rapids and Charlevoix both at 8-4.

Both games against the Blazers left the Rayders leading as they went into the final inning. However, the season-long problem of closing out the game nearly cost them again. After a series of runs by Kalkaska, the Rayders quickly picked themselves up, loading the bases with one out on singles by Lyndsay Blechel and Julie Gregory and sandwiching a walk by Jenny Eveleigh. Kelly Torgna ripped a hases-clearing double for a 11-8 Rayder lead. Eveleigh struck out 12 to earn the win.

ORDINANCE #640

AN ORDINANCE UNDER SECTION 21310a(3) OF PART 213, ACT 451 OF THE PUBLIC ACTS OF 1994, AMENDING THE CHARLEVOIX CITY CODE TO PROHIBIT PRIVATE WATER WELLS FOR ANY PURPOSE WITHIN A DEFINED IMPACT AREA WITHIN THE CITY; THIS ORDINANCE REQUIRES ALL WATER USERS WITHIN THIS IMPACT AREA TO USE THE CITY WATER SERVICE AS THEIR SOLE SOURCE OF WATER, REQUIRES THE CITY TO NOTIFY THE MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY 30 DAYS BEFORE AMENDING OR REPEALING THIS ORDINANCE, REQUIRES THE CITY TO FILE THIS ORDINANCE WITH THE COUNTY REGISTER OF DEED'S OFFICE, AND PROVIDES ENFORCEMENT MECHANISMS FOR VIOLATIONS OF THIS ORDINANCE.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. Legislative Findings.

The Charlevoix City Council hereby makes the following legislative findings:

A. A regulated substance, as defined in Section 21303(d) of Part 213, Act 451 of the Public Acts of 1994, is currently located at the City's Department of Public Works and neighboring properties. These lands are called the impact area.

B. The water used at the City's Department of Public Works and at the neighboring properties is supplied by city water service. As a result, there is no need to install private water wells on those properties.

C. The consulting firm of McNamee, Porter & Seeley, Inc. retained by the City has determined that human exposure to the regulated substance in ground water may be reliably restricted by a means other than restrictive covenants and negotiations between the City and private land owners have shown that land use restrictions through restrictive covenants is impractical when dealing with land not owned by the City.

Section 2. Amendment of City Code.

The Charlevoix City Code is hereby amended to add a Chapter 22A, which shall read in its entirety as follows:

CHAPTER 22A CITY WATER SERVICE – EXCLUSIVE WATER SOURCE

2.71 Definitions. As used in this Chapter:

(1) "City" means the City of Charlevoix.

(2) "City water service" means the water supplied by the City under Chapter 22 of this Code.

(3) "Impact area" means the property located within the City of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and described as follows:

In the City and Township of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan.

Commencing at the North ¼ corner of Section 35, Town 34 North, Range 8 West; thence South on North and South ¼ line of said section 1138.50 feet; thence South 89°39'00" East 303.00 feet, more or less, to the Westerly line of the former C. & O. Railroad right-of-way, being the POINT OF BEGINNING of this description; thence continuing South 89°39'00" East 350 feet, more or less, to the shore of Lake Charlevoix; thence Southerly along said shore to the thread of Stover Creek; thence Southerly along the thread of Stover Creek to the Easterly line of former Highway M-66; thence Northerly along said highway 469.20 feet, more or less, to the centerline of Stover Road; thence West along said centerline of Stover Road to a point which is 1162.26 feet East of the centerline of May Street; thence North 330.00 feet; thence East 62.44 feet; thence North 165.00 feet; thence East 260.75 feet to the Northwesterly line of the former C. & O. Railroad right-of-way; thence Northeasterly along said railroad right-of-way to the point of beginning; being a part of Government Lot 1, Section 35, town 34 North, Range 8 West. The above described property extends to the water's edge of Lake Charlevoix.

Subject to the rights of the public and of any governmental unit in any part thereof taken, used or deeded for street, road or highway purposes.

2.72. Private water wells prohibited. No person, firm association, corporation, or any other entity shall install, construct, develop, maintain or use a water well within the impact area for any residential, commercial, industrial, or other type uses.

2.73. Connection to City water service required. The owner or occupant of any property or structure within the impact area that is currently serviced by a private water well shall remove or otherwise disable the water well and connect to the City water service pursuant to Chapter 22 of this Code within thirty (30) days of the effective date of this Chapter. The owner or occupant of any property or structure within the impact area that desires water service at the property or structure shall connect to the City water service pursuant to Chapter 22 of this Code.

2.74. Notification to Department of Environmental Quality. If the City ever intends to amend or repeal this Chapter, it shall notify the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, or its successors, of its intentions no less than thirty (30) days before such amendment or repeal is enacted.

2.75. Nuisance Per Se. A violation of this Chapter is hereby declared to be a public nuisance or nuisance per se and is declared to be offensive to the public health, safety and welfare.

2.76. Court Action for Abatement of Nuisance. The city may take civil action requesting injunctive relief against any person, firm, association, corporation or other entity found to be in violation of this Chapter. This abatement action shall be in addition to any penalty imposed by Section 2.77 below.

2.77. Civil Infraction. A[illegible]rson, firm, association, corporation or other entity who violates any provision of this Chapter shall be responsible for a municipal civil infraction as defined in Public Act 12 of 1994, amending Public Acts 236 of 1961, being Sections 600.101-600.9939 of Michigan Compiled Laws, and shall be subject to a fine of not more than One Hundred and 00/100 ($100.00) Dollars. Each day this Ordinance is violated shall be considered as a separate violation. Any action taken under this Section shall not prevent civil proceedings for abatement or termination of the prohibited activity permitted under Section 2.76 above.

Section 3. Filing of Ordinance with Register of Deeds Required.

The City shall file a certified copy of this ordinance with the county Register of Deeds as an ordinance affecting multiple properties no more than thirty (30) days after it becomes effective.

Section 4. Severability

If any section, provision or clause of this ordinance or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, such invalidity shall not effect any remaining portion or application of this ordinance which can be given effect without the invalid portion or application.

Section 5. Effective Date.

This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its first publication.

Rayder soccer team falls hard in district semifinals

Kipke Field may never have seen a more depressing climax to a game and a season than what the soccer fans witnessed when Charlevoix was downed 2-1 in overtime by Elk Rapids in the district semifinal game Wednesday.

The Rayders held a 1-0 lead through most of the second half. As the clock fell to within five minutes of the final whistle it appeared as if Charlevoix would prevail. However, a hands penalty gave Elk Rapids an indirect kick just outside the offensive box, which they pushed in the net knotting the score. The play sent the game into a sudden death overtime.

When the Elks converted on a 2 on 1 halfway through the first overtime, the Rayders collapsed onto the ground in despair burying their faces into their hands. They had played in one of the most competitive and physical matches of the year.

"We played aggressive and as good as any girls' soccer team had ever played," coach Hagen Manker said. "They can hold their heads up high."

The game was highlighted by collisions, take downs and tumbling bodies as players sprinted for loose balls. Each goaltender collided on more than one occasion with oncoming attackers. Twice the game was delayed as injured players took time to get back on their feet.

Neither team ever held much of a territorial advantage as defense kept much of the action toward the center of the field.

Late in the first half, a ball headed hy Meg Spang bounced behind the Elks defensive line. Speedy Taya Drost raced to the ball before anyone else and skipped a shot in the bottom left corner of the net for a one goal Rayder lead at intermission.

The second half of the game resemhled a Times Square countdown, with a spot in the finals at stake.

"At 20 minutes I thought we needed another goal to win, but when it got below five it was 'let's just hold on and we'll take it,'" Manker said.

The Elks, though, saved their most inspired soccer for when it counted most. They pressured the Rayders by keeping the ball in their offensive zone for the final 10 minutes. Still, until the whistle blew a foul, the Elks were unable to get a clean shot on goal keeper Kristy Shindorf.

"It would have been a moment in their lifetime had they beaten them," Manker said, of his team who had lost twice before to the Elks. "It was great to watch. I've never been prouder. They played as hard as they could and that is all I can ask."

The tournament began with the Rayders winning their opener by thumping Grayling 10-0. Nikki Sheldon scored just 18 seconds into the match and added two more before the game was 15 minutes old.

Spang, Sheldon, Emily Murray, Jodi Bingham and Anne Campbell saw their soccer careers end with the overtime loss.

Bingham and Sheldon, though, will play on a soccer scholarship next fall for Northern Michigan University.

Adult volunteers earn free golf fees through youth program

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association has launched a new program in hopes of attracting more adult volunteers to monitor junior golfers as they play during their lessons at local courses.

"With the large number of youngsters attending our golf academy now, we have an increased need for more adult assistance," said director, Dean Davenport. "Adults are needed to walk along with our various age groups as they play a few holes to conclude their lesson. We've had an excellent core of adults who have been with the program since our beginning in 1995, but our growth dictates that we need to recruit more help and we more clearly have defined their role in assisting the program."

The Corp of Mentors will have new incentives to encourage them to volunteer their help, which includes a staff hat and free rounds of golf at the Belvedere, Dunmaglas, Charlevoix Country Club, Municipal, and Antrim Dells courses.

Junior Golf board member Holly Russell explained that "Management of these local courses has seen the value of our summer program and was anxious to reward the adult volunteers in this manner.

"All the courses in our area rank among the finest for beauty and upkeep," Russell continued. "We are so grateful that we can share this free golf opportunity with our adult mentors who are willing to make the commitment to help youngsters learn the etiquette and playing rules of golf."

> "We are so grateful that we can share this free golf opportunity with our adult mentors who are willing to make the commitment to help youngsters learn the etiquette and playing rules of golf."
> — Holly Russell, board member

There are 12 lesson dates. Each lesson begins with an instructional time that is followed by actual play. Golfers, depending on their age, will play anywhere from one to nine holes. The Mentor Corp is needed to walk with foursomes and emphasize golf safety, good etiquette, and make suggestions when necessary as to the rules and golf procedures.

Dates for the sessions are; June 16, 17, 24, 26, 30, July 1, 8, 10, 14, 16, and 22.

Nancy LaCroix, a board member who has spearheaded the organization of the volunteer program in the past, said, "It's been a gratifying experience for our adult helpers in the past as they've observed youngsters grasp all the components of becoming a good golfer," LaCroix said. "Now that we can reward them with the free round of golf, it will, hopefully, increase our numbers. It's great to be able to give something back to our adult volunteers."

Interested volunteers or those wishing to volunteer or to learn more details about the mentoring program may call Nancy at 547-6418, Holly Russell at 347-5934 or Dean Davenport at 547-6433.

"We really got our bats to come alive," assistant coach Bob Eveleigh said, noting in particular the play of Torgna who ended with six RBIs over the two games. "She has been just phenomenal for us over the last couple of weeks."

The Rayders ended their regular season with a sweep of Central Lake 14-1, 9-6 to close with a 17-10 record.

Baseball team loses twice to Kalkaska

Quick starts prompted hy sloppy Rayder fielding gave Kalkaska two wins over the basehall team 7-0, 7-5 last week. The Rayders end league play with a 4-7-1 mark.

Steve Carland pitched well in the opener, scattering six hits while fanning as many Blazers, but six errors from the defense made sure runners were on base.

The Rayders were limited to just two hits, a singles from Joe Grundman and Carland.

In the second game, the Blazers had pushed Charlevoix into a 5-0 hole after two innings. But two hits apiece from Carland, Zac Bakker and Adam Dohrowlski clawed the Rayders hack into the game. Pitchers Dan Pardee and Keith Grunch also helped by coming in to relieve Carland in the fifth. However, Charlevoix fell two runs short.

They ended their season with a split at Central Lake. Central Lake took the opener with a three-run two out rally in the fifth. Just like that, the Rayders found their deficit go from one run to four. They lost 8-5.

It looked like more bad news in the nightcap as Central Lake tagged Grunch for six runs after just two innings, but the Rayders' bats woke up to the tune of 22 hits to take game two 17-7.

Pardee, Justin Thorp, Bob Anzell and Steve Speigl each had three hits. Pardee, who relived Grunch in the third, pitched the victory.

The Rayders, who are 10-11-1 overall, go into district play at East Jordan. They played Mancelona in a qualifying game Tuesday. If victorious, the district tournament will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 31, in East Jordan.

AT A TIME WHEN AMERICA NEEDS LINCOLNESQUE LEADERSHIP ON IMMIGRATION...

MICHIGAN'S ABRAHAM IS OUT OF TOUCH.

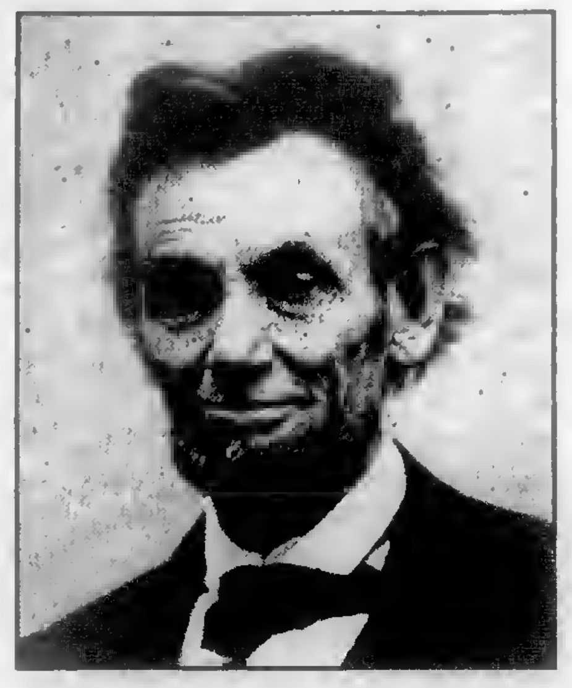
SEN. SPENCER ABRAHAM SAYS:



BUT THE REAL FACTS ARE:

"Those who wish wholesale reductions (in legal immigration) are on the wrong course."
JAN. 15, 1997

"It seems clear to me that legal immigration is a boon to our nation's economy and society."
DEC. 19, 1995

"Companies still do not have enough highly-skilled engineers, scientists and computer specialists."
JAN. 11, 1996

Immigrants "should be able to bring their elderly parents to this country[.]"
JAN. 11, 1996

"Without immigration ... U.S. real living standards would be at least 40 percent lower."
JAN. 11, 1996

83 percent of Americans want significant reductions in the annual level of immigration.
ROPER POLL, JAN. 1996

The five states with the most immigration have an unemployment rate 52 percent higher than the five states with the least immigration.
BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS, DEC. 1996

U.S. colleges and universities produce about 22 percent more science Ph.D.s than are in demand.
SCIENCE MAGAZINE, OCT. 1995

The number of elderly immigrants on SSI grew 580 percent between 1983 and 1993.
GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE, JUL. 1995

Immigration is responsible for 50 percent of wage depression among low-skilled American workers.
BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS, DEC. 1995

ABRAHAM LINCOLN DEDICATED HIS LIFE TO GOVERNMENT "OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE."

SPENCER ABRAHAM'S MASS IMMIGRATION POLICY JUST IGNORES THE PEOPLE.

have the responsibility of getting their children started on the right path during the preschool years. Parents must continue to fulfill that priority role throughout their children's school years.

When it comes to drug/alcohol use and testing, we are quick to condemn the student who too often has learned by example. Drug/alcohol education should begin with a process of self examination in our homes, and in our school and community offices and meeting rooms. In life, much more of that which is learned is "caught" rather than taught. We cannot continue the double standard towards drug/alcohol abuse if we are serious about a drug-free future.

This also applies in dealing with the topic of sex education. In our society, and sadly too often in our community, our actions speak much louder than our words. Daily we each teach sex, moral ed by the way we live. We need less sex ed talk in the classroom, and more moral and values' based living examples — less talk and more walk:

Rather than everyone flaunting their sexual preferences and loose living arrangements in front of our impressionable children, we should be setting an example of high moral conduct after which youth can model their lives. A code of moral excellency should be expected and adhered to by each member of the school staff and community. Then, when the basics of sex ed are taught in the classroom, students will see the principles being practiced in daily life.

> I encourage citizens to avoid voting for a candidate simply because he or she is a friend, family member or a "name."
> — Rosalyn Stump

All adults need to commit to living controlled and disciplined lives if we are to see the same revealed in our children.

Children are precious gifts. Along with the gift comes our responsibility to teach, train, nurture and lovingly guide them as they grow and develop into morally mature and educated adults.

Again, self-pride does come before a fall. The fall of community pride is harsh and hardening. Look where all this pride has gotten Charlevoix.

We are today a community that is torn apart with everyone wanting what they think is best for themselves or their group. To often the broader needs of the Charlevoix community are ignored. The school system appears to many to be so out of control that those in authority fail to listen to the voice of the people. Unfortunately, the only way the voters have been able to get the leadership's attention was to vote "NO" on anything that has to do with money. This affects the education of our children.

So before voters go to the polls to vote on Monday, June 9, please take time to learn about each candidate. Learn about and evaluate his/her beliefs, abilities, and accomplishments in their personal and professional lives. Examine the total person. Know the whole story. Consider what motivates them to run for office. Learn where they stand on the issues and needs of the school district.

Will the candidates look out for the educational well being of all the students, rather than the Rayder pride mentality for the few who fit into that mold. The "we must win no matter the cost..." attitudes must be set aside. Rather, in all competitive activities, I encourage that the emphasis shift from the numbers on the scoreboard to lessons of self-respect, teamwork, honesty and individual integrity. Let's put in some humility, compassion, and oh yes, respect for self, others, the school and our community. Such emphases will add up to winning scores for participating youth, the school district and the total community.

I urge each citizen to cast an informed vote. I encourage citizens to avoid voting for a candidate simply because he or she is a friend, family member or a "name." Vote for the ones who are willing to give of themselves for the betterment of our students, school district and community. Vote for the ones who will be willing to make sound choices and stand their ground in accomplishing them. Vote for the ones who will not bend which ever way the political wind is blowing. Vote for the ones who are mature enough to agree to disagree, and make decisions based on knowledge and facts, rather than feelings and desires. Last, but most important, vote for the ones who are self-disciplined leaders, capable of making sound, well-thought-out decisions based on their complete knowledge of each situation and issue.

Young poets

High schoolers given awards

The Charlevoix High School Library Media Center sponsored their second annual poetry contest to celebrate National Poetry Month in May.

The selection committee composed of five faculty members: Betty Henne, Mercedes Mathers, Anne Marie Statsick, Patrick Conway and Tom Shelton awarded first place to Shaun MacMillan, second to Chris Meredith, third to Tim Tebeau and honorable mention to Chelsea Gorkiewicz.

A celebration and award ceremony was held in the library May 7 to honor all participants. At the celebration, students read their poetry.

A booklet of all the entries is on display and will become a permanent part of the library collection.

Old Noble Hotel destroyed by fire

When this picture was taken on July 4, 1888, the Noble Hotel was Charlevoix's most modern lodging house. The hotel was located on the southwest corner of Bridge and Clinton streets, where Central Drug Store is currently.

It was in the heart of the fast growing business district. Because of its central location, the Noble was preferred by the traveling men of that time over the older and somewhat isolated Fountain City House north of the channel. About 1892, the name was changed to the Ingleside Hotel. In 1895 it caught fire and was partially burned.

In 1897 F.N. Chapel, using the undamaged part of the building, remodeled the hotel into a drug store, with offices and rooms in the two top floors. Chapel sold it to B.A. Herman, who called his pharmacy Central Drug Store. He sold out to Harley Ochs. In 1958, Ochs and his son, Frank, replaced the old building, which was in a sad state, with the present modern structure.

Photographer recording Charlevoix in upcoming book

For seven months, award-winning photographer Ken Scott, of Suttons Bay, has been shooting pictures for a four season, full-color photographic book of Charlevoix and the surrounding communities, including Beaver Island.

Ken will continue to shoot photography for this project through the end of this year. His previously published photographic books include Michigan's Leelanau County (1988) and Still, Mich., (1990). Ken's photography can be seen in galleries throughout the state and will be on exhibit at Bridge Street Book Shop and in the lobby of Charlevoix State Bank this summer.

Dianne Foster, co-owner of Bridge Street Book Shop, is coordinating production and writing text for the book. Tim Nielsen, of Nielsen Design Group in Traverse City, is designer for the project. The book, yet to be titled, will be published by Petunia Press, Inc., in the spring of 1998. A portion of the proceeds from book sales will be donated to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"For over four years we have been listening to requests in the Book Shop. This is the book people have been asking for," said Dianne Foster. "Finally, there will be a beautiful book to place on the coffee table or to give as a gift. People will be able to say, 'This is where I live' or 'This is where we vacation.' Although the book will include some history and information about the area, the focus of this book is a pictorial of the Charlevoix region as we see it today."

The public is invited to share ideas and information, and view the photo exhibits as the book evolves.

"This is an enormous undertaking," Foster said. "The support, interest and participation of the community is welcomed and appreciated. This book will reflect the beauty of our region and capture the spirit of the people who live and vacation here."

Pressure increases to shut down Big Rock Point

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Steward Sandstrom gets enough calls from long distance companies that claim to have great deals.

With deregulation of the electric industry, the executive director of the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce is afraid that the calls will double.

"So now when we sit down to dinner with our families, we'll get one call from AT&T and one call from Consumers (Power Co.)," he said, during a Citizens Advisory Board meeting May 28 at Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. The board, which was formed in 1994, is comprised of community leaders and residents from throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties. It serves as a liaison between the plant and the public.

Big Rock Point's general manager, Ken Powers, explained to the board how deregulation of the industry is forcing change — change that could cause the local plant to shut down before Labor Day. The plant is licensed by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commis-

Three millage proposals on ballot

In addition to electing three school board members Monday, June 9, Charlevoix area voters will decide the fate of three millage proposals: one for the Charlevoix Public Library and school regarding Charlevoix schools.

The following are the proposals and brief explanations of what they involve. The election at the Charlevoix Elementary School from 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

— Charlevoix Public Library - A 0.5 millage renewal is being sought to support the current level of operations for the Charlevoix Public Library. If passed, the millage will raise about $205,000 the first year. The library has been collecting 0.5 mills since the 1960s. The millage is not related to the school proposals. Since Jan. 1, the

Loaded ballots await voters for school election

To better inform voters of the school board candidates' views on local issues, the Charlevoix Courier distributed a questionnaire. All seven candidates, running for three separate seats, responded. The answers are printed in the order they arrived at the Courier. The election is from 7 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday, June 9, at the elementary school. In addition to electing three board members, three millage issues will be decided (see related information on page 11.)

Dwight "Ike" Boss and Michael MacMillan are running against each other for a one-year term, while Scott Boss, Joan Buday, Dennis Halverson, Pat McKeown, Jr., and Mark Alan "Barnie" Way are running for two available four-year terms.

What sparked your desire to run for this particular public office?

Dennis Halverson: I have always had an interest in education. I believe my background, education and experience would be a positive influence on our board.

Ike Boss: Some friends asked me to run and they circulated my petitions. I didn't like the direction the schools were taking in the last eight years.

Joan Buday: I have always had interest in education and have wanted to be a part of the process, especially seeing educational changes through my lifetime. Now I have time to commit to this office this second term, as I have made arrangements to have time off work to devote more time to the school board. Learning is exciting to me. The school board needs experience, as the board is not as effective when there is a majority of first-term members.

Pat McKeown, Jr.: I want to be part of the team that will bring about change for Charlevoix schools. I've seen too much indecision in the past, and I think we need someone on the board that can make things happen.

Barnie Way: Concern for our educational system and willingness to give of my time to make a difference.

Scott Boss: I moved my family back home because of the positive experience Charlevoix and Charlevoix public schools gave to me. I've seen a little lack of leadership and hope that I would be able to help out in this area.

Michael MacMillan: 'Coffee break' talk. I sensed displeasure, even distrust, with many aspects of the schools. I believe that I have the knowledge, skills, and ability to have a positive impact on the education of Charlevoix's children.

What experience do you have that would be beneficial towards being a member of a public school board?

Halverson: I have a great deal of experience operating in and around the school setting. I have acted as a management consultant in other school systems. I have experience in participating on other boards on local, state and national levels.

Ike Boss: I've been a teacher for 29 years and recreation director for 21 years. I have worked with budgets and have always been involved with children.

Buday: My experience is in having children in school since 1962 and now having grandchildren in school; assisting schools in any way needed, such as room mother, fund-raising, chaperoning, treats, coaching during the

Charter school wraps up first year

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Northwest Academy, Charlevoix's foray into the nationally taken charter school experiment, is still just that. An experiment.

On Saturday, the academy graduated its first two seniors into college and 12 eighth-graders into high school, proving the school's seriousness in completing the experiment.

Sprouting in 76 locations throughout the state, third most in the nation, charter schools have been promoted as more than just pure alternatives to traditional public schools, but also as places where innovation and flexibility in curriculum and teaching techniques can flourish.

> "We're still trying to figure out how to deal with a group of students with a range of abilities. It's necessary to experiment with different learning styles."
> — Pascal Asbury, principal

Behind the walls of the warehouse-like school building on West Hurlbut Street, the experiments are all still in progress.

"We're still trying to figure out how to deal with a group of students with a range of abilities," principal Pascal Asbury said. "It's necessary to experiment with different learning styles."

The academy has tinkered with a variety of classroom styles, from splitting up boys and girls into separate math and science classes, to mixing grades in the classroom and team teaching.

"Students became more self-reliant," said Ken Bartley, who teaches math, physics, and computers part-time at Northwest. "It's up to them to figure out what they need, which really prepares them for what college is all about."

The atmosphere is more relaxed as a result, and Bartley said it fosters an environment less focused on lectures and more focused on more interactive, one-on-one sessions.

With an enrollment of 89 students spread in grades 6-12, small classrooms are not an option. They are a reality. While the rage in education is attaining small teacher-to-student ratios, it's what is done with those small class sizes that attracted Ellsworth residents Cass and Brenda Toton to send their sixth-grade son, C.J., to Northwest Academy.

"They were so preset in their ideas," Cass Toton said of the teaching philosophy he saw at the public school. "'This is how I'm going to do it,' and bang that was it, end of story."

At the charter school, Brenda Toton raved that they were more receptive to change. Students have a freedom with how they go about completing assignments and there is more student-teacher respect.

Yet, the Toton's still search for a more perfect learning environment. Next fall they will begin to home school their two youngest children.

"Variety is the spice of life," Brenda said.

The tone of Northwest's year began perhaps with its most challenging experiment. Because their building was not ready, school began outdoors with camping and survival skills training.

Asbury said the experience was critical in fostering a team atmosphere among a group of teachers and students who were new to each other.

Community pool dedicated Saturday

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Tears were shed in Charlevoix Saturday.

However, they weren't tears of sadness. They represented the victory and relief of Bruce and Barbara MacArthur, and all the Charlevoix Friends of the Pool, as they dedicated the long-awaited community swimming pool.

"We've got a lot of bullheaded people in this town," Bruce MacArthur said, noting the determination that it took to make the pool move beyond Ralph Hamilton's 50-year dream.

A gold ribbon was cut by Hamilton, 93, and Bruce MacArthur to officially dedicate the building to the community's use. The Rev. Duane Nelson, of neighboring church of the Nazarene, prayed for the safety that the pool offers through training novice swimmers.

About 150 people attended the ceremony. They were joined by national, state and locally elected officials. All those in attendance looked to the American flag as retired Coast Guard commander David Smith sang his rendition of The Star Spangled Banner during the raising of the flag.

A surprise part of the ceremony included the presentation of two elm trees to be planted near the pool building. They were donated by the MacArthur's four daughters. Edith Gilbert made the presentation, noting that the girls were not strangers to the MacArthurs' life-long passion for community improvements.

"... There was the Grand Blanc Beautification League and Community Pride Day, as well as the acquisition of some farm land for a local park," Edith read from the girls' prepared statement. "The MacArthur girls grew up picking up litter, planting trees and passing out flower seed packets.

"One of their favorite stories is of the time Barbara confiscated the key to a truck that was attempting to put up a large, brightly colored sign," Edith said. "It clearly defied the sign ordinance she and Bruce had worked so hard to pass. Barbara's civil disobedience eventually led to a smaller, less objectionable sign."

After the ceremony, guests were given a tour of the pool, which is equipped with a reception area in the lobby, a barrier-free special use room that enables adults to change with young children of the opposite sex, the natatorium where the pool and spa are located and the mechanical room.

"You may not be an Olympic swimmer, but you're swimming in Olympic water," said Bern Cannan as he gave people tours of the mechanical room that is equipped with the same type of commercial water system as was used in the summer games in Atlanta. A huge dehumidifier draws in moisture and uses the energy to help heat the pool.

The community part of the pool began as visitors helped fill the pool one ladle at a time. Before accepting the first swimmers, the pool will finish being filled and the water tested by the health department. Exterior painting and the paving of the driveway are also left.

The pool should be open this month. Rates will be $3 for a single adult pass, $2 daily for students and $275 for an annual family pass.

City allows installment payments for new pool

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

The Charlevoix Community Pool is getting a break. The passage of Monday's ordinance revision allows Charlevoix Friends of the Pool to make installment payments to hook into the city's sewer system.

Otherwise, $40,000 would have been due before the pool could open its doors to swimmers.

The revised ordinance allows recreational facilities with connection fees that exceed $25,000 to have the payments split in fifths, with the first pay-

Review millage proposals carefully before voting

EDITORIAL

Amid the action of the Charlevoix school election, the Charlevoix Public Library millage has been overshadowed. We strongly support the passage of this millage, which is a request for 0.5 mills annually. The tax money is not a new request. The library has been collecting the same mill amount since the 1960s. However, until the passage of Proposal A, the money was administered by the school.

In compliance with state law, a new board has been formed of city, township and school leaders. They will oversee the finances and ongoing operation of the library. The board is made up of Rick Brandi, president, City of Charlevoix; Anne Hansen, vice president, Eveline Township; Linny Arnold, secretary, Marion Township; Betty Henne, treasurer, Hayes Township; Mary Ann Chew, trustee, Charlevoix School District; Ethel Coeling, trustee, Norwood Township; and Gordon Van Wieren, trustee, Charlevoix Township.

Vote yes on the library millage. It will ensure that the current standard of service now found at the library continues. Tell friends about this issue. The library is an avenue through which anyone — of any income level — can access to books, newspapers, encyclopedias and various research materials.

We also strongly support the passage of the school's request for 1 mill for six years to collect $2.4 million for major school repairs. It won't help to continue to complain about how some of these issues haven't been fixed on an as-needed basis. The fact is, the elementary and high schools need rewiring. Ongoing support of roofs is being questioned by professionals and asbestos must be removed from the floors and ceilings.

This proposal, known as Proposal II, will cost a family with a home assessed at $50,000 about $2.08 a month, or $25 per year. None of the money will be used at the middle school.

Take action to bring Charlevoix schools up to par — both in safety and technological capability.

The one millage proposal we can't support is the purchase of the M-66 land. The 1 mill request for one year would raise about $198,000 to buy the land and cover miscellaneous costs.

We are not opposed to the future building of schools at the location. However, we don't believe we have enough information to make an educated decision on whether that 117 acres is the best choice for our children.

Timing hasn't been a friend to the school board. While the election closes in, the board is still awaiting the release of an official report that will discuss how much of the land can be used for building and septic needs. This echoes the last election when the board asked for millions of dollars without giving the voters an option on where the new high school would be built.

Now the question of where is being presented, but we want to know more about the land before we say yes. We are not ready to support this millage, and we don't think the public is either.

In the next year, the board should make it a priority to offer public tours of the property, discuss the soil tests and develop a plan for the land. When asking for voters' money, more information is better.

Letters to the editor

Voter shares thoughts of upcoming school election

Editor:

The voter/taxpayers have a very good list of candidates running for the Charlevoix School Board. The three who seem to express view points similar to my own are Barney Way, Ike Boss and Pat McKeown, Jr.

We are going to need to pass the millage for school repairs, since the board is applying cash-on-hand to balance the budget for about three years.

The M-66 property purchase of 117 acres for $170,000 is a good buy in its location in this area for anyone who wants it, even the school board, which has the option. However, realize the fact no money for repairs of the middle school is in the millage is proof that the board's intent is to purchase the property to build a new middle school on it and abandon the existing site.

I am not convinced that the board needs the M-66 property. A knowledgeable source has stated that the middle school's life can be extended another 25 years with repairs, modernization and modest expansion. When a new middle school is needed, certainly there is room enough at either the current high school or on the 17 acres at the elementary school.

I will vote yes on the repairs millage, but no on the M-66 property acquisition millage.

Sincerely,
Charlie Butcher

Superintendent spells out millage proposals

Editor:

Two proposals will be on the ballot in the Charlevoix school election on Monday, June 9.

Ballot proposal #1 - Sinking Fund for M-66 property purchase. Twelve sites were considered for purchase by the Charlevoix Public Schools as possible future building sites. Visits to these sites were made by the architect, construction manager, superintendent and a realtor. The site information was reviewed by the superintendent, architect and the board of education building and site committee. The M-66 site was selected from the 12 possible sites and a recommendation for securing an option was approved unanimously by the board of education. Several engineers, architects and other officials have stated that the M-66 property is a good site for future schools. The soil tests completed several weeks ago indicated an extensive area that would support an on-site septic system. Preliminary estimates of an on-site system to support a school are less than $100,000. The long range sewer plan extends past this property.

The M-66 property could be utilized for a new middle school in the near future, for a new high school down the road, or for other purposes such as athletic fields. The cost is $1,500 an acre for the 117 acres. The board of education has not determined the specific use for this property.

Proposal #2 - Sinking Fund for Major Repairs. Building maintenance and repair has been done on an ongoing basis over the years in Charlevoix schools. However, major repairs have not been done due to their high cost. The high school heating system in the old section must be replaced both to improve air quality to current standards and to ensure it is operational for another heating season. The high school gym arches need to be replaced. The high school and K-5 roofs have lived their life expectancy of 20 years. They are constructed of trocal and are brittle and cracking. The high school has extensive asbestos in the ceilings and some floor tile. In order to meet the increased demand for electricity created by technology and instructional equipment, both the high school building and the elementary school need additional electric service brought to the building and rewiring of all classrooms within the building. Providing handicapped accessible classrooms and bathrooms is a priority. No sinking fund dollars are included for work at the middle school.

Charlevoix citizens are encouraged to call the superintendent or board members with any questions.

Sincerely,
Roberta Jackson
Superintendent of Schools

Petunia volunteers thanked

Editor:

A big thank you to the following people for all their help in making this year's petunia planting and picnic a great success: All of the wonderful workers who wrapped and served the food and pop, the block captains and the planters, Patti Sitzema, Charlevoix Rotary Club, Knights of Columbus, U.S. Coast Guard Station, Stafford's, Kmart, Glen's, Oleson's, Holiday Station Store, McDonald's of Charlevoix, Burger King, Subway, Don's IGA, Central Drugs, Community Church of God, LLJ Graphics, Dairy Queen, Kilwin's, the Boss family, Currier Lawn Maintenance and Louiselle's Evergreen Professional Landscaping.

We also want to say a special thank you to the following people who "went the extra mile" and planted until 6:45 p.m., when the last petunia went into the ground: Tansley Stewart, Karen Joy, Dave Smith, Dianne and Brad Long, Carolyn and Jack MacKenzie, Dan Ulrich, Bonnie Withrow and daughters, and Steve and Ann Hansen. Thank you, thank you, thank you.

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Remember when you went on vacation and bought post cards of river scenes, mountains views and romantic castles? If one was in a foreign country, it was frequently difficult to find the right stamp. Innocents abroad would sometimes hand their cards and money to the concierge at their hotel, hoping he would mail the cards, which he seldom did.

Even if one was well organized, if one carefully chose the right card for the right person, if one found the proper stamp, and if one mailed the card from a bona fide post office — even then the cards would often arrive long after one returned home.

It was not unusual for travelers to become involved in a friendly controversy, "Did you receive my post card?" or "You didn't send me a post card!" or worse yet, "Aunt Mary got your card, but we never heard from you!"

Many sentimental people treasure post cards for years. They may be carefully arranged in albums, or one may find them filed alphabetically at flea markets. One may buy them from collectors or in antique shops.

Sad to say, but all this is history! Post cards are "passé." Instead, today's post card is sent by computer. E stands for electronic mail.

My friends, Nancy and Jeff Porter, are cruising in the Mediterranean on Dick Georgi's boat. Only today I received an E-mail message via Vacation Properties Network. Dated May 29, they write of their Turkey trip. "Having a terrific time in this fascinating country. Everything so clean and the countryside beautiful. We love being aboard Dick's boat. We are now cruising up the Turkish coast and have moored in several coves which are so peaceful and quiet. We are now in Lesvos, Greece, and instead of hearing the call to prayer from a mosque, we hear church bells. What a change in culture. How is everything in Charlevoix and who won the ticket for the Five Million Dollar Dinner? The food here is delicious, so be prepared for a Turkish/Greek dinner when we return. See you soon. Love, Nancy."

I have to tell you, the plus side for using E-mail is, of course, that it is fast and reliable. No more undelivered post cards. No more delayed post cards. Airborne E-mail messages will save tons of paper as well as trees. But the trade-off is there will be far fewer nostalgic post cards in the future to treasure, collect, share and reread. Are we better off today than we were before? That's a good question. We are all being subjected to enormous changes that are happening very quickly around us, and we have to adjust to these changes, whether we like it or not.

By Dianne Foster
Bridge Street Book Shop

If you read only one book in 1997 make it Winona's Web by Priscilla Cogan (hardcover, $21).

I realize I'm stealing Oprah's line here, but I promise not to take you on a dark, depressing, and dysfunctional journey which seems to have become the hallmark of Oprah's Book Club selections. A little dose of darkness in a novel is fine, but I don't like to be pushed into a big, black hole. C'mon Oprah, let's encourage your audience to read for pleasure not pain. Hold up "Winona's Web" and tell everyone, "You must read this book!"

I first picked up "Winona's Web" because the setting is close to home — the Leelanau Peninsula. I glanced through the book and some fine print caught my eye. "This is a work of fiction ... But, of course, all good stories are true." I liked the author's honesty in that acknowledgement. While the book is classified as fiction, it could just as honestly be inspiration, spirituality, or Native American.

As a skilled writer and gifted storyteller, Priscilla Cogan does what we rarely see in today's novels. She opens each chapter with an epigraph — a quotation, scripture, or poetic verse — to suggest where the chapter may take us. The epigraph adds a style, a literary eloquence, to the story.

There are authors and there are writers. Priscilla Cogan is a fine writer. Her words flow like poetry, her characters come to life, she carries us into country kitchens, for rides in pickup trucks, on walks down winding, snow-covered driveways, out into meadows, and seats us beneath tall oak trees. This novel is 274 pages of pure sensory satisfaction in the seasons of northern Michigan.

Winona Pathfinder is an elderly Lakota Sioux medicine woman. She is wise, witty, feisty and prepared to die in two months despite her good health. Dr. Meggie O'Connor is engaged, by Winona's daughter, to counsel Winona out of her plans to "cross over." The tables turn and Meggie's professional methods slowly crumble as she learns to listen to the web of the world through Winona's teachings.

"Winona's Web" is rich in grace, power, humor, friendship, romance and life. It's the first book in a trilogy, and I don't mind waiting for the sequel, due out in the spring of 1998.

I never tire of picking up "Winona's Web" to peruse the lines one more time. The characters have become a part of my fictional family. Our reunion next spring will be a wonderful, eagerly anticipated event.

Garden club chooses poster contest winners

Charlevoix Area Garden Club's 1997 Smokey Bear & Woodsy Owl's Poster contest winners have been announced.

Five first place winners are: Elizabeth Hasseld, first-grade at St. Mary's, and Justine Karnicki, second-grade, Amber Smith, third grade, Amanda Bajos, fourth-grade, and Nick Tripplehorn, fifth-grade all from Charlevoix Elementary School.

Special recognition was given to Tiffany Potter, fifth-grade and Andrew Tillotson, fourth-grade, from Charlevoix elementary.

All around winner Amber Smith will be given a $50 savings bond from the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

Certificates of achievement for runners up were given to: first-grade, Autumn Atkins, R.J. Moore, Heather Ward and Candice Way. # Beaver Island grads to be honored Friday

Commencement for Beaver Island Community School is 8 p.m. Friday, June 6.

Weather permitting, the ceremony will be held on the lawn overlooking the harbor for the four graduates.

Holly Burris, daughter of Sherry Burris, plans to attend North Central Michigan College with her sights set on majoring in occupational therapy.

Dustin Crandall will remain on the island for the summer with his parents, Steve and Yvonne, before deciding what his plans are.

Brandon Maudrie, the son of Kathy, will work a year on Beaver Island before training in mechanics.

Darryl Mooney, son of LaDonis and Eleanor, will remain on Beaver Island and work with his father, a resident electrician.

Two special guests will be honored at this year's commencement: Mary Bert McDonough, Class of 1921, and Lucille Gillespie Osborne, Class of 1922. Lucille Gillespie Osborne, great-aunt of graduate Brandon Maudrie, will share a few words of wisdom with the graduates.

The seniors have chosen 1992 Beaver Island Community School graduate Chad Crandall as their guest speaker. Chad is expected to speak on the challenges facing the graduates as they move into the workforce and adult responsibilities.

Luella Wlodowski

Luella Wlodowski, 82, of Miles City, Mont., died Tuesday, May 27, 1997, in the Holy Rosary Health Center in Miles City, Mont.

Luella was born on Jan. 4, 1915, in Manistee, Mich., the daughter of Rasmus and Olga Camillo Hendricksen.

She attended school in Charlevoix. Following graduation, she worked many jobs, including being a clerk at Grossman Department Store and spending 15 years as a bookkeeper at Hackley Hospital in Muskegon, Mich.

At one time, Luella owned and operated the Carousel Shop in Montague, Mich. She lived in Pine River Place prior to coming to Miles City to be near her daughter. She loved to make Afghans, sweaters and needle craft pictures. She enjoyed bowling and playing bingo. Luella was a member of the Methodist Church in Charlevoix and the Eagles in Whitehall, Mich.

Luella is survived by her son, Mike Wlodhowski of Malta, Mont., two daughters, Barbara Loumer of Miles City, Mont., and Judy Dennison of Grand Rapids, Mich.; 14 grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; one great great-grandchild; and niece, Sally Balcer of Grand Rapids. She was preceded in death by two sons, Robert and David, and sister Lucille Robbins.

Memorial services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 30, 1997, in the chapel of Stevenson & Sons Funeral Home in Miles City. The Rev. Charles Damron will officiate. Interment will be at a later date in the Charlevoix Cemetery.

Stevenson & Sons Funeral Home of Miles City is in charge of arrangements.

Esther Miles

Esther Miles, 84, of Charlevoix, died May 27, 1997, at home. The funeral was 11 a.m. Saturday, May 31, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Philip Schairbaum officiated, and burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Miles was born July 28, 1912, in Springfield, Mass., the daughter of Edward and Gertrude (Kramer) Goldstick. She moved to Charlevoix as an infant, and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1930. She then graduated from Eastern Michigan Normal College in Ypsilanti.

On Dec. 21, 1935, she married Robert C. Miles in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death on May 8, 1986.

Mrs. Miles attended the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix and was a member of the Mary Burns Circle of the church. She also attended Temple B'Nai Israel in Petoskey.

She was a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild, and served on the board of directors of the Charlevoix Historical Society. She also belonged to the Dickens Club and enjoyed playing bridge. She was a Rainbow Shoppe volunteer.

Mrs. Miles worked as a bookkeeper for Charlevoix County State Bank for several years.

Survivors include two sons, Robert C. and David L., both of Charlevoix; one brother, Harry Goldstick, of Albany, N.Y.; a sister, Helen Goldstick, of Silver Springs, Fla.; and a sister-in-law, Rosalyn Goldstick, of Charlevoix. She was preceded in death by her brother, Clarence Goldstick.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix Historical Society or to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation was held from 7-9 p.m., May 30.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Presiding at a wedding over the weekend reminded me of a story. It seems these two young women were best friends. One was married. One was engaged. Talking to her friend's husband, the bride-to-be heard him rave over his wife's baked hams. So she asked her how she fixed a ham that it always seemed to turn out so good.

"I always split the ham in half before I cook it," came the reply. When our bride asked why, the wife really couldn't tell her. She just said, "My mother always did it that way."

One of the nice things about small towns is that many times you can find more than one generation living there. Well it just happened that the wife's mother did live in the same town, and since the way to a man's heart is supposedly through his stomach, our bride-to-be decided to track her friend's mom down.

After telling her she was going to get married soon and was looking for advice, she popped the question concerning the secret ham recipe. To her surprise, the mom said, "I really don't know. My mother always did it that way."

Like I said, one of the nice things about small towns is that sometimes more than one generation is together. Our undaunted bride-to-be went looking for grandma. As she sat in grandma's parlor and told her tale, you could see the mischief twinkle in the older woman's eyes. When the question about splitting baked hams finally came out, grandma almost rolled on the floor in laughter. "Why dearie, when I first got married my oven was too small to hold a whole ham. Splitting a ham and putting it in two pans was the only way it would fit!" Out of the small things in life, legends are born.

Have you ever thought about why you do some of the things you do? It always fascinates me to hear about different family traditions. Some of them do indeed have an intriguing heritage behind them, but I wonder how many were born out of practicality like grandma's ham.

And while we're talking about being practical, nothing is more practical or needful in our lives than an active and vibrant faith. Too many folks think of faith as being a complicated and even mysterious thing. In fact, it is quite basic and really not difficult to grasp at all. The secret is in your being willing to believe.

Just the fact that some thing worked for your mother and her mother's mother is enough to have some ladies carry on a family tradition forever. Just the fact that your dad and his dad built their deer blinds in such a way, baited them with just the right combination of apples and carrots or arrived on scene at the same time on opening day is enough for some fellows to follow a pattern religiously.

What do you know about prayer? Prayer doesn't just change things. It changes people. What do you know about God's word? How many of us learned the Twenty-third Psalm or John 3:16 when we were little kids? Where do you turn when your world seems in danger of collapsing or your heart really aches? For generations, people have known that nothing is more practical or effective than having faith.

The nice thing about faith is that it is not dependent on what your mother did or her mother before her did. Your faith is up to you.

Why not really apply the strength of your beliefs to everything you do this week.

Peter (Doney) Gallagher

Peter (Doney) Gallagher, 76, of Clifford, Mich., died Friday, May 23, 1997, at St. Lukes Hospital in Saginaw. He was born August 7, 1920, on Beaver Island to the late Daniel and Mary (Gallagher) Gallagher.

Doney served in the Army during World War II, from 1942-1945, receiving the Victory Medal, American Theater Ribbon, the European African Middle Eastern Theater Ribbon, Silver Battle Star, four overseas service bars and one service stripe.

He married Dolores Gallagher on April 23, 1949, on Beaver Island.

Doney moved to Clifford in 1955 when he left Beaver Island. He was a welder for General Coach and Active Homes. He was a life member of the Marlette VFW and a member of St. Patricks Catholic Church, Clifford. He was also the caretaker for Holy Cross Cemetery on Beaver Island.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m., Tuesday, May 27, 1997, at the St. Patricks Catholic Church, Clifford, with Father Jude Ellinghausen officiating.

Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery on Beaver Island. Visitation was held from 1-9 p.m. Sunday and Monday, June 1 and 2, at the Marsh Funeral Chapel, Marlette.

He is survived by his wife, Dolores; daughters Sharon Gallagher, of Clifford, and Vickie (Alan) Gould, of Marlette; son-in-law David Fox, of Kingston; brother Daniel Gallagher, of Marlette; sister Anne Williams, of Texas; five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

He was preceded in death by a daughter, Dorothy Fox, and brothers, Patrick and Hubert.

Arrangements were made by the Marsh Funeral Chapel, Marlette, and Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Summer church schedule begins at Bethany Lutheran

The summer worship schedule at Bethany Lutheran Church started Sunday, June 1. The Sunday School hour will begin at 9:30 a.m., followed by fellowship time at 10:30 a.m. The new worship time will be at 11 a.m. The new schedule was adopted at a Sunday night congregational meeting.

Other upcoming events are a constitutional meeting and a co-congregational potluck picnic with the Mt. Hope Church of Bellaire.

Plans are going forward for Vacation Bible School, which will be held from 9:30-11:30 a.m. June 23-26. This year's theme is "God's Champions."

Millage proposals explained

library has been under the direction of a newly appointed board of area city, township and school district officials, which in compliance to a new state law that prohibits district library funding to be funneled through schools.

Voters who live in Hayes Township, in the Boyne City School District, can vote on this issue in Charlevoix or by absentee voter ballot. The Library Services Contract between Charlevoix and Boyne City assures that residents may use both libraries and that funding in the forms of millage, penal fines and state aid will be paid to the Boyne City Library by the Charlevoix Library.

School proposals

— Proposal I - A 0.5 millage proposal for one year is being sought to establish a sinking fund for the purchase of real estate for school purposes. About $198,000 will be raised. If passed, this money will be used to pay for 117 acres on M-66 for future school sites. The ballot does not specifically mention the M-66 land as the directed purchase.

— Proposal II - A 1 mill proposal for six years, from 1997-2002, is being sought to establish a sinking fund for major repairs at the district's school buildings. In 1997, it is estimated that $397,000 will be collected for the fund. Over the six-year period, about $2.4 million will be collected. The school board has stipulated that this money will be used for repairs at the high and elementary schools. Board members are not including the middle school because of its plans to build a school to replace the current building. The money in this proposal cannot be used to pay routine custodial services or salaries for teachers or administrators.

School board candidates address issues prior to the Monday, June 9, election summer, budgeting with a large family; an employer, accountant and secretary-treasurer for our business, and experiencing the changing culture from being one of the majority of stay-at-home mothers to being one of the majority of working mothers. Also, I have taught religion. I took classes in teaching methodology and curriculum development. I have attended school board classes, conferences, state and national conventions, and seminars during my four years as a board member. Also, I served on at least three board committees each year.

Buday

Age: 62

Occupation: Owner of Buday's Sound Advice

Educational Background: Traverse City High School, 1952; Accounting at North Central Michigan College

McKeown: I have a strong financial background. I can bring that experience to the board to solve critical areas of concern, such as budget constraints and facilities projects. Additionally, I am serving in the temporary position on the school board until June 30, 1997.

Way: I am a local business owner and have also worked for a large company. I have five children that all attend this school district, and I am willing to commit my time to make our school district better for all our children.

Scott Boss: I am a local business owner, have served on two corporate boards since 1988, have two children actively involved in Charlevoix Public Schools and have been actively involved on both corporate and school board committees.

MacMillan: Two important skills that I use daily in anesthetic practice, are critical thinking (analysis) and decision making. These skills will serve me well on the school board. I have had experience on a board of directors for a non-profit organization as representative and secretary/treasurer. I can work effectively within this setting having experienced board dynamics.

Everybody has their idea of a facilities plan for the Charlevoix school district. What is yours?

Halverson: I believe our top priority should be to bring our elementary and high school up to where they should be with regard to their heating, electrical and structural problems. I support the building of a new middle school and needed land purchase to fill our current and future land needs.

Ike Boss: 1) I would eventually like to see a new middle school built on the property on May street that is for sale, or 2) Expand the present high school into a 7-12 school and expand the elementary to K-6. If this was done then a new gym could be built on the middle school site with a combination stage/auditorium on one end.

Buday: The "dream" would be to convert the present high school into a middle school, build a new high school on a large area of land that would support athletic facilities, but not a football field as Kipke field is very special, and renovate the K-4 school to meet the 21st Century, benefiting every student in the system. But we have learned the voters do not desire this investment. I would still prefer the high school be remodeled to a middle school and a new high school; however, I will support a new middle school if that is the investment the voters choose.

McKeown: I support a long range facilities plan where a new middle school is built now, a new high school is built in 5-10 years, and a new elementary school within 15 years. All three facilities will be at a central location decided upon by the voters. I would also support a sports complex, similar to East Jordan's, be located on the M-66 site.

Way: I am in favor of the sinking fund for the major repairs that are long over due. Also, there has been a number of proposals on new facilities, but I don't think the right plan has come out yet. There are more facts and ideas that need to be looked into before I could make a recommendation.

Scott Boss: First, I trust that the sinking fund for repairs will pass, as we have many long overdue repairs that need to be taken care of. Second, I believe there has been a lot of community and professional input in regards to this facilities issue, but I don't think we have seen the right one yet. There is a lot of additional information and facts that I 'd like to research before I could support a specific proposal.

MacMillan: The first priority is to repair the existing facilities. Unfortunately, we are in a crisis management mode. Once this is completed we need to determine what should be done about the middle school. It certainly has served well for nearly 70 years but needs to be replaced. It does not meet the demands placed on it with evolving technology that our students must have. Looking ahead further, we must consider whether the overcrowding at the elementary school is transient or the trend to determine if additions to this facility are necessary or is there a need for a second elementary school.

What is your opinion of the school buying the land off of M-66? Should that option be totally avoided, should it be purchased and developed as soon as possible, or should it be purchased as a long-term investment to be used sometime down the road?

Halverson: Recent information would indicate that this land would be suitable for school construction. I would support the purchase of this property because of the size and price. The other land options in and around the city are substantially more money and still don't provide the size to support long-term needs. I would support building a new middle school on this property.

Ike Boss: Totally avoid it. The land couldn't even be resold for 30 years. Too far out of town. Too wet. Too expensive for utilities.

Buday: I support the purchase of M-66 property. I support it as a good investment, a reasonable price, a good location, a large area for future needs and a safe place for students. The present high school is off a busy highway, U.S. 31, which we currently receive comments of hazardous behavior. M-66 could be posted as a school zone and the traffic slowed for the school area.

Ike Boss

Age: 51

Occupation: Teacher at Ellsworth school

Educational Background: Charlevoix High School, 1963; bachelor's from Spring Arbor College

McKeown: I think the voters need to decide if the M-66 property is the right location for our schools. If the millage is passed, I feel the site will suit our future facilities, pending the final report from the environmental engineers. If the voters turn the M-66 site down, I support finding a different parcel immediately.

Way: I am not in favor of the purchase of the land. I don't think the community wants it or is ready to have its school out of town.

Scott Boss: As in previously stated at local forums, I cannot support this purchase. I don't believe that it is an efficient site on which to build schools. We know it's wet. There is supposedly a site for septic, but we shouldn't spend dollars for tons of fill dirt that could, as I've been told, build as many as 2-3 additional classrooms. I just don't think it makes good sense. There is also the issue of proximity to town vs. county schools that many local voters are very concerned with.

MacMillan: Land isn't getting any cheaper and it isn't getting any closer to town. The purchase of this property is an investment into the future of education in Charlevoix. There is little doubt that we need to replace the middle school. We eventually will also have to address over crowding at the elementary school. This property may not be ideal but, no property will be perfect. This property gives Charlevoix schools options for the future that a site for a single school will not.

Balancing the budget is a top district priority. If elected, what ideas would you bring up that would help save the district money?

Halverson: New and updated facilities, although costly in the short term, will require less maintenance money than we are currently having to spend. This would also reduce energy needs through the use of current technology. Early retirements will also help.

Scott Boss

Age: 38

Occupation: Sales

Educational Background: Charlevoix High School, 1977; bachelor's in business administration from Ferris State University

Ike Boss: Teacher buy-outs and not replace ones that we don't have to. Single bus runs, although you're going to be told by the administration that it's cheaper to run two runs. Staff outs where possible. We pay top dollar for all staff and we should hire the best, not someone's friends.

Buday: As a board member, I supported the plan to address the budget crunch by offering the early retirement incentive; and to not replace the retiring support staff. Also, retiring teachers will not be replaced except as needed according to the enrollment. Since 80 percent of the budget is contractual, we have to make adjustments across the board on other items, endeavoring to not affect the education of the students.

McKeown: I would continue to support the early retirement incentive for teachers with over 20 years service. This saves the district the most money over five years by replacing the highest paid teachers with entry-level salaries.

Way: I think that all facets of spending need to be looked into, from buying paper to salaries, bussing, etc. If a little can save in all areas, then no one area gets picked on or feels it alone.

Scott Boss: I've been for the early retirement plan and think it will go a long way towards fiscal soundness. I also think a district-wide tightening of the belt is in order, and I think that if every department is expected to tighten just a notch this could be relatively painless.

MacMillan: What I would not consider is cutting teaching staff and increasing class sizes. Everything else is up for review. We have not reached 'crisis' mode yet. This should be a high priority for the board. A systematic review of all expenditures should be undertaken, perhaps with outside consultants. Determining our options now can help us look toward the future.

What direction would you like to see curriculum go as Charlevoix heads into the next century and why?

Halverson: Curriculum needs to be somewhat fluid. We must allow our teachers and administrators to participate in training so that our classrooms reflect up-to-date educational directions. We need to interact with colleges to see if we are preparing our students for the next level. I would also like to survey students who have graduated to see if the curriculum has met their needs and then with all of this input, we can adjust and modify accordingly.

Halverson

Age: 41

Occupation: Charlevoix chief of police

Educational Background: Okemos High School, 1973; bachelor's Michigan State University; graduate credits

Ike Boss: We need to address vocational-education. Not all students are college material. There are a lot of trade schools that our students can attend and be very successful. We are taking care of our college-bound students. I feel the majority of our teachers are doing a fine job.

Buday: As a member of the board, I voted to continue to revise the curriculum and utilize the computer technology. Students write in all areas of the curriculum; not just classes normally considered writing, and to revise all the technology curriculum realizing that the future requires skilled craftsmen as well as college graduates. Also, as a board member, I listened to Charlevoix employers and encouraged incorporating their basic requirements to ensure Charlevoix graduates have learned the basic skills which employers require.

McKeown: I would like to see a greater emphasis on vocational and computer education. I feel computer education should begin in first-grade. Also, we need better skills training for the kids who don't go to college. Today's workplace is evolving into a service economy, and workers need the appropriate technical training.

Way: Naturally I want it to get better, because our kids, our students need the best education we can give them.

Scott Boss: I'm no curriculum expert. I do, however, know that we have worked hard to align our curriculum and continue to improve it every year as our high school test scores show. I would trust professional staff and administration to present the best possible choices so I could make an educated decision.

MacMillan: I am not a professional educator. I would look toward the guidance of professionals for this answer. A school board cannot micromanage aspects they are untrained in. I see my job as researching the issues, reviewing pertinent facts, asking questions of administrators and community members, and trying to understand the global impact curriculum changes will have. After this is done, I will be able to make an informed decision on whether to approve or deny curriculum changes.

If you could change one thing about the district with the snap of your fingers, what would that be and why?

Since it takes more than a snap what would you do to actually affect change?

Halverson: I would like to see the majority of this community on the same page with regard to our educational efforts. As a board we need to establish a reputation for financial responsibility in our "community" efforts to provide quality education and lead the way into the next century.

Ike Boss: Get everyone on the same boat going in the same direction: Parents, students, administration, teachers, staff and the school board. Right now we are on the titanic and we need to get on a different ship.

Buday: I would want all administration, parents, teachers, support staff and the community to work for what is best for each student by being trustful, respectful, and being able to work together so we could model working together even while having diverse opinions for their future. What you do says more than what you say.

McKeown: I would like to see everyone in the community support Charlevoix schools, not just voters with school-aged kids. To do this, I feel voters need to see an effective, decisive school board that can make proactive changes in our children's best interests.

Way: I think we have suffered from a lack of leadership over the pass few years, and if I could snap my fingers I would be sitting on the board actively involved in serving this up.

Scott Boss: Information flow - that shapes public opinion. I believe there are a lot of positive things going on here at Charlevoix public schools. I'd like to help do a better job of informing the community on these positives rather than just receiving the negatives all the time.

MacMillan: That all students graduate as self-fulfilled individuals, ready to accept the rights and responsibilities of society. That these students are prepared to go on to careers or college and achieve their dreams and goals. To achieve this we must continue to evaluate our curriculum as well as monitor outcomes. We must ask what can we do for the students that "don't get it." What can we improve throughout the whole system.

What direction, as a whole, have you seen the district go during the last five years and what changes, if any, should be made to better steer the direction?

Halverson: I sense a lot of anxiety and frustration. We have been discussing the facility issue for years, which has lead to confusion and fragmentation of the community. There is no perfect solution to this issue. We need to put this behind us by choosing a direction based on current facts and future needs and move on.

MacMillan

Age: 42

Occupation: Certified registered nurse anesthetist

Educational Background: Ainsworth High School in Flint; bachelor's in anesthesia- health care from University of Michigan

Ike Boss: We have been drifting at sea on a sinking ship. New board leadership can provide us with people not afraid to make tough decisions in matters that the school must deal with. New leadership can make the district strong and able to survive in the future.

Buday: The last five years have seen strategic planning, action groups and other committees formed to work on curriculum, facilities, quality schools, school improvement, etc. This has brought together parents, teachers, students, administrators and community, all working for the benefit of Charlevoix public schools. All are talking and learning, bringing ideas for discussions and solutions. I was involved in these changes during the past four years.

McKeown: I haven't seen any clear direction over the last five years. I feel that the community is very frustrated with the lack of progress in certain areas. Our school board members all need to be on the same page, and all need to work together with the community to improve our children's learning environment.

Way: As it has been said in the earlier forums, I think there has been a lack of direction from the top down, and the community has a chance to change that now by bringing in three new board members: Boss-Way-Boss.

Scott Boss: I believe that we have suffered at times from a lack of direction. I believe that the board has seen this and I would continue to support these latest changes and remind people that change is on the way on Monday, June 9. We have a chance to elect three new board members to your local school board. Help us make that change.

MacMillan: My sense, right or wrong, has been a lack of direction. I believe that a cohesive, proactive board can change this sense in the community. This will encourage dialogue and community support for Charlevoix schools.

A committee has been formed to reconstruct the school's drug policy. What would be your input towards that?

Halverson: I think any policy needs to be reviewed to make sure that it is current with current standards and organizational objectives. I would hope to involve appropriate personnel to create a document which encourages a proper teaching environment.

Ike Boss: I'm not familiar with the present policy but I'm for zero tolerance for students, athletes and staff.

Buday: I am on the committee and understand the frustration when students are involved at any level with substance abuse as I also consider alcohol to be a drug.

McKeown: I support a zero-tolerance drug policy for Charlevoix public schools. I feel there is a drug problem in our schools that needs to be addressed in light of two crack houses being shut down in the last two years, in addition to the high school student being convicted for selling pot. Although I don't support random testing of students for drug use, I feel testing should occur when strong evidence warrants an investigation.

Way: I feel that the school needs a tougher drug policy, not only for the athletic program but for the school in general.

Scott Boss: First I've attended two of these committee meetings and agree that we need tougher drug policies in our schools. I know that we have people on these committees that deal with these situations every day, and believe that we aren't far from new policies that are tougher on both students and student athletes.

MacMillan: I am in favor of a zero-tolerance policy. Strict guidelines (policies) that are enforced uniformly will be accepted by students, parents, and staff. I would support "for cause' drug and alcohol testing. Let's prepare our students for the real world where, police stop erratic drivers, and companies administer random drug testing to employees. This does not infringe on the student's rights, it protects them by eliminating drugs and alcohol from our schools.

Does the district need a change in leadership especially in regard to its administrative positions?

Halverson: The board has already voted not to renew Dr. (Roberta) Jackson's (superintendent) contract. This replacement will be an important task for the board and community to complete. I would hope, when the time comes, the board hires the best person we can find to lead our school system into the next century.

Ike Boss: We have not moved forward under the present leadership. Not all the fault lies with the superintendent. The board has not provided a strong leadership role. We need a change on the board to provide that strong leadership.

McKeown, Jr.

Age: 30

Occupation: Comptroller, safety coordinator for Pat McKeown Ford

Educational Background: Charlevoix High School, 1985; bachelors' in marketing and management from Central Michigan University; master's in finance from Michigan State University

Buday: We now have an evaluation process in place which is annually updated. Through this process changes are and were made. This process improves leadership, provides history for future evaluations and determines change. Administrative positions are contractual and are renewed one year at a time, but in reality are three years out for the end of the contract.

McKeown: In regards to administration positions, I feel that all three principals are doing a fine job. However, I believe the district should start searching for a new superintendent as soon as possible, in light of Dr. Jackson's contract not being extended and by the fact that she has begun interviewing for other positions. By acting quickly, we can increase our chances of attracting qualified candidates with enough vision to lead this district into the 21st century.

Way: Yes I do believe it does, and I agree with the steps that the current board has taken to change the direction it was heading.

Scott Boss: Yes, and I believe we have seen that the current board has taken this stand also, and I would continue to support this change of direction.

MacMillan: This decision has been made by the existing board. The decision not to renew Dr. Jackson's contract and her search for a new position made it clear that we will be hiring a new superintendent in the future. I see no need to review this decision. The task of the board, with community members and teaching staff, will be to select a new, dynamic administrator.

Charlevoix has a passion for Rayder sports. Assess the strength of Charlevoix's athletic department. Do any changes need to be made in regard to the number of sports offered, and if so, what should those changes be? What should be the board of education's role toward athletics?

Halverson: I support allowing as many kids as possible the opportunity to participate in organized sports. But if certain sports can't get enough participation to field a team, the board should get a recommendation from the athletic department as to the future of that sport. The board has to resist the temptation to get involved in the day-to-day, or game-to-game operation of our sports teams. Every effort should be made to work through the superintendent and staff in the hiring of coaches with the skills and leadership ability to develop our athletes, both personally and in a team setting.

Ike Boss: When it comes to sports you have one of two things. Quality or quantity. We now have quantity. We are not going to attract quality coaches when there are not enough students to fill out 17 varsity sports. I believe we need teachers doing the coaching because they are trained to work with children. Teachers don't want to coach when they feel the parents are running the programs. I feel that is what is happening in Charlevoix. If the people want quality, we need to cut back on sport offerings and encourage teachers to coach and then back them from the board and administration standpoint.

Buday: The strengths of the Rayders are the athletes and good coaches. Sports that cannot carry a full squad need to be reconsidered. Some seniors are not remaining on the teams and this should be investigated. I would like evaluations of a sport to include a written evaluation from the athletes and their parents or even personal interviews by the athletic director of athletes and their parents, especially when a student drops a sport.

McKeown: I hate our current program. It is mediocre at best. To improve this we need to have our established veteran coaches mentor the younger, newer coaches and try to impart upon them some of the tools of the trade and various recipes for success. I feel we need to recruit homegrown talent for our coaches (and teachers too), instead of letting Boyne City and East Jordan take the people that can bring community pride back to the Charlevoix sport program. Additionally, discipline needs to be reintroduced to athletics. If you don't practice you don't play. If you use or sell drugs you're off the team.

Way

Age: 36

Occupation: Owner of Trademark Clothiers

Educational Background: Charlevoix High School, 1979

Way: I believe the sports programs are spread too thin. There are not enough kids to fill teams. We need quality not quantity. The school board needs to back the coaches 100 percent and support their decisions and let the coaches run their programs.

Scott Boss: I believe that Charlevoix athletics are bathed in tradition and have been respected as well as encouraged for years. Lately, we have probably lost a little of this focus for many reasons. I believe we are guilty of not supporting our coaches both publicly as well as administratively. I agree that since I was an athlete here, we have watered down our student pool by so many offerings and think we have created an environment conducive to coaching turnovers. As a board, I think we need to back our coaches and make sure that they are evaluated fairly and consistently to make sure that we always promote Rayder pride, while still maintaining high coaching expectations.

MacMillan: The strength of Charlevoix's athletics is the enthusiasm of the athletes, coaches, and parents. Athletics teaches lessons not learned in the classroom. I wish that every student could/would participate in athletics. I am in favor of as many sports as we can afford. The school board's job is to assure a quality education for the children. Sports are part of that education. However, we must keep in mind that the classroom is the first priority. Beyond determining what athletic programs the district can afford, the only role the board should have is cheering on the sidelines.

Florida business moves to town

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

A formula that has been working for 14 years in Florida is being depended on for success as Bridge Street Bazaar opened this past Memorial Day weekend in the building the old Charlevoix County State Bank used to call home.

Mike Balas, owner and operator of Beach Bazaar, a store in Sarasota, also specializes in the same T-shirt, trinket, and souvenir items which dot the interior of Bridge Street Bazaar.

"We liked the area, saw it did good business and decided 'let's give it a try,'" Balas said of the decision to open a store in northern Michigan.

The store is true to its name, whether it's bizarre or bazaar. Inventory varies from jewelry to swimsuits to foam lizards on a leash.

One entire wall of the store is devoted to beach accessories and water toys. And for those who rushed to the beach without their games, most of those found in Bazaar are inexpensive.

"Items start at 29 cents," Balas said. "These are inexpensive toys so kids can afford to come in and shop."

Despite the potpourri of knickknacks, it's the store's clothing that Balas said brings Bridge Street Bazaar an identity, as well as a profit.

Hangars display traditional sweatshirts and hats that bear Charlevoix's name. But they also show off short-sleeve shirts with hot sauce and tobassco bottles to offer a clothing style for all tastes.

T-shirts with one liners, exaggerated designs, and song lyrics seem to elicit amusement from all who browse and buy, which Balas said is all part of the store's atmosphere.

"This is a light-hearted, fun store," he said. "People come in here and they laugh."

When making sure that these shirts of statement fit, customers enter the bank's vault, which has been turned into dressing rooms. However, the old proprietors failed to leave any of their inventory behind.

The Bazaar is open seven days a week from 9 a.m.-10 p.m. As of now, Balas said he is unsure whether he'll stay open into the winter.

Among the variety of items in one of Charlevoix's newest stores, Bridge Street Bazaar, are the potpourri of stones and "gems," which customers can fill up a small bag of for $2.95 or a larger one for $5.

Decision on pending shutdown due in weeks

sion to operate until May 31, 2000.

Powers said that deregulation forces each company that provides power to cut costs in order to offer competitive rates to customers. Deregulation will up competition and lower electrical rates, a plan being pushed by Gov. John Engler, the Michigan Jobs Commission and the Michigan Public Service Commission. Lower electrical rates are hoped to draw more businesses to Michigan to give the economy a boost.

> Deregulation forces each company that provides power to cut costs in order to offer competitive rates to customers.
> — Ken Powers, Big Rock Point nuclear power plant general manager

Big Rock Point is caught in the crossfire. It is a small plant, the oldest operating nuclear power plant in the nation. It costs Consumers between 10-15 cents to produce each kilowatt hour locally, compared to the company's larger plant, Palisades, which produces at 4-5 cents per kilowatt hour, said Tim Petrosky, Big Rock Point public affairs director. A kilowatt hour is the equivalent of burning 10, 100-watt light bulbs for one hour.

Even Palisades' rate is not guaranteed to be competitive with other electrical rates after deregulation, an inevitable legislative act that is being defined in Lansing now. This puts Big Rock Point well above economical standards.

Electric companies currently base production costs on an average of all their plants, whether they use coal, natural gas or nuclear fuel. That will change.

"In the future, plants are going to have to stand alone," Petrosky said. "That will make operation problematic."

Wolverine Power Supply in Advance shut down recently for economic reasons.

In paralleling deregulation of the airline industry, Powers said that many of the companies disappeared because they could not offer competitive rates.

"We plan to stay in business," he said of Consumers.

Natural gas is the fuel of choice since it became legal to use in power generation. Years ago, it was prohibited because of a feared shortage. And since then, more efficient burners have been designed.

"With those two things combined," Powers said, "a plant like ours doesn't make sense anymore."

Big Rock Point will be coasting down for a refueling outage that is scheduled to begin Aug. 30. However, a decision by the Consumers board of directors on whether that date will shut down the plant for refueling or decommissioning will not be long in coming.

About 220 employees at the plant and the community are awaiting the decision. Currently, three options are being reviewed: Shut down Aug. 30, go through another refueling and shut down after that cycle, late in 1998 or early in 1999, or try to continue to operate Big Rock Point to the end of its license.

> "Sitting in limbo doesn't work well with me,and I don't think the company would do that."
> — Ken Powers, Big Rock Point nuclear power plant general manager

"Sitting in limbo doesn't work well with me," Powers said, "and I don't think the company would do that. We will know in the next couple of weeks."

Steps to be taken upon soon-coming shutdown

Big Rock Point nuclear power plant

The following changes will occur if Consumers Power Co. decides to shut down Big Rock Point nuclear power plant permanently on Aug. 30 rather than refuel:

— About 50 employees, who are members of Utility Workers Union of America, will either be retained at Big Rock Point to help with decommissioning or they will be transferred to sites in Traverse City or Boyne City for work. Their most recent contract, signed in 1995, assures them employment with Consumers for five years within a 60 mile radius of their current job.

— Of the remaining 170 employees, 17 are close to retirement. Any of the nonunion people could stay at the plant to help with decommissioning, be transferred within the company or lose their jobs. "You would hope that when the plant shuts down that there would be no layoffs," plant public affairs director Tim Petrosky said. "But you can't guarantee that."

— Consumers' payroll for Big Rock Point would increase since more people would be needed to dismantle the plant than to run it. However, they may not be the same workers.

— Roughly $5 million worth of fresh nuclear fuel will be returned to the manufacturer for about 50 cents on the dollar for it to be refit for use at Consumers Palisades plant in Covert, Mich.

— The plant would be immediately dismantled, with all the low level nuclear waste being shipped to a repository in Barnwell, S.C. Other parts of the plant would be sold for scrap.

— The nuclear fuel now in the reactor would be moved to the pool of water that contains all the rods that have been used since the plant began producing electricity in 1962. The fuel would remain in the pool until $750,000 transportable, concrete and steel casks are made available, hopefully by 2000.

— The fuel would be moved from the pool to six or seven air-cooled casks and stored on a concrete pad at the site until a federal repository is built. The United States government is supposed to take over the responsibility of storing the nation's nuclear energy waste by 1998. However, slow progress on research and construction — along with opposition from Nevada residents — is making shipping of the highly radioactive waste impossible by next year.

— Contracted workers would be brought in to help with the dismantling of the plant, which will take about five years. "This isn't much more exotic than a very long refueling outage," said Ken Powers, Big Rock Point general manager. "You just don't put it back together ... You're almost in the junk scrap business at this point."

— Consumers expects to retain the 400-plus acres of lakefront land, according to Powers. He said that a decision on whether to put a natural gas plant on the property is not expected to come until the turn of the century.

— The emergency signal that sounds on the first Saturday of every month will continue to be heard by nearby residents for about five months after shutdown.

— Consumers will continue to collect decommissioning money from a surcharge on customers bills. As of April 30, $170 million has been collected. About $290 million is needed to cover decommissioning, according to Jim Rang, decommissioning and business manager.

On the record

District Court

The following cases were heard recently in the 90th District Court:

Walter Louis Goldsmith, III, 28, Petoskey. Drunk and disorderly conduct. $190 in fines and costs.

Theodore Stettler Felter, II, 20, Charlevoix. Minor in possession of alcohol, second offense. Driver's license suspended 180 days and $220 in fines and costs.

Hope Marie Cutter, 20, Boyne City. Minor in possession of alcohol. Sixty hours of community service and $60 in fines and costs.

Michael Joseph Lutz, 36, Charlevoix. Driving while under the influence of liquor. ### Registration for fall, soccer set

Registration for the fall middle school soccer program will be held from 7-8 p.m. Friday, June 6, in the Charlevoix Middle School Home Economics classroom.

Fall travel soccer is for all boys and girls who are entering sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grades in September.

Registrants should bring a copy of their birth certificate, health information and $25 for to cover the registration fee.

4-H soccer begins summer games

Charlevoix 4-H Soccer invites all players, eighth-grade through adult, to participate in Tuesday and Thursday night pickup games at Charlevoix Township's Shanahan Fields, commencing at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 17.

Games will be every Tuesday and Thursday through Thursday, Aug. 7. Players of all skill levels are welcome.

Rayder softball team downed at tourney

This past weekend's Class C district softball tournament was a wide-open affair with no clear cut favorite.

The Rayders, however, fell to Boyne City in a tightly fought semi-final game, 5-4.

Charlevoix held an early 2-0 lead; but the Ramblers plated a four run fourth to take control. Later, the Ramblers bested East Jordan 3-1 to advance to regional play.

Jenny Eveleigh pitched a strong game allowing just eight hits and belting a triple while at the plate. Amanda Eaton led the offense with three base hits.

Rayder track, field athletes place at state

It may have been a small Rayder contingent at the state track and field in Grand Rapids Saturday, but they made the most of their opportunity.

Mike Rautio placed eighth in the shot put, tossing 52-3/4 and the girls 3200 relay of Chelsea Gorkiewicz, Jessa VanGuilder, Tricia Hodge, and Candice Vandergriff placed sixth while setting a school record with a time of 9:56.1.

Pool pays $8,000 down for city sewer service

ment being considered a downpayment and the remaining money to be paid over four years.

According to Bruce MacArthur, president of the friends group, the $8,000 downpayment has already been paid. The connection fee is $40,000. The pool is being funded without taxpayers' money. In 10 years, $1.5 million has been raised from donations to cover its construction.

The ordinance requires facilities that take advantage of the payments to offer Charlevoix residents their cheapest use rate. MacArthur said that since the pool will not have resident and nonresident rates, local residents will automatically be getting the lowest rate.

The ordinance passed by council with one dissenting vote. Councilmember Bruce Reid said no.

"I am not anti-pool," he said, when explaining his position. "I am just not supportive of the city being in the finance business."

Reid said that this type of ordinance puts the city in a tough situation.

"For a worthy cause like this, we should go along with this," said councilmember Bob Timms.

Once an ordinance is passed, it applies to all situations that fit its description. In the future, any recreational facility with a connection cost greater than $25,000 can make payments.

Reid said that a 50 percent downpayment is more realistic and shows more of a commitment to pay the balance. A similar payment plan was reached for a local business because it was bringing jobs to town and it has failed to make any payments since connecting.

Banks Township residents win fight to not join Norwood

By Nancy Ritsema
Courier columnist

Petitions were being circulated. It seemed in the best interest of settlers in Norwood, old Antrim City and Atwood to sign them. These communities were closely dependent upon one another for farm and timber products, shipping, schools and community events. Why not simply annex the northwestern part of Antrim County's Banks Township to Norwood Township in Charlevoix County?

How was it decided where township lines should fall in the first place? This question was raised as the debate over whether to annex Banks Township to Norwood Township grew heated. Township lines were first laid out by surveyors. Steps taken to divide up the land were quite simple.

Native American title to all lands within the state of Michigan boundaries had been relinquished by the year 1842. The next step was for the state to survey the land so that settlers coming to Michigan — and Norwood or Banks Townships — could obtain it.

Surveys were done by individuals using a compass set on a tripod. They were under contract with the United States Surveyor General. The surveyor's task was to run a line exactly straight in a given direction and to measure that line in units of one mile.

The surveyor hired two chainmen to measure the line and an axeman to clear the line of brush and mark corners with a hardwood stake driven into the ground. For their work they were paid $2 to $6.50 for each mile surveyed.

Surveyors laid out the state into townships that were six miles square, giving each township 36 square miles. The whole state was surveyed into a gigantic grid, and each grid defined as a township. By the time the surveyors had completed their work, any 40-acre parcel of land in the remote woods could, theoretically, be precisely located.

In reality; however, earliest settlers in the 1850s to Antrim County and to the Grand Traverse Bay region found survey lines were unreliable and incomplete, with lines running only a few rods and sometimes a few miles into the county. Antrim County had to be completely resurveyed. The United States government hired the earliest settlers as surveyors to redo erroneous surveys.

When the pioneer population increased in any one part of a county, the Michigan Legislature organized the previously surveyed area into an officially recognized township. These legislative acts provided for the population to elect supervisors and other officials.

The settlers in a newly organized township chose the name. Norwood Township was named after a New England town from the book, "Norwood, or Village Life in New England" by Henry Ward Beecher. Norwood pioneer William Harris, who helped organize Charlevoix County and Norwood and Marion townships, named Marion Township as some men name boats, after his wife Marion.

Norwood Township, increasing in population due to an influx of settlers and workers at the new sawmill, organized in 1869. It split from Marion Township when Norwood's increasing population appeared to warrant it. Banks Township in Antrim County officially organized several years earlier in 1863.

The movement in 1873 to annex the township of Banks to Charlevoix County was grassroots government at work. It took fewer than 15 days for the citizens of Antrim County to respond to get a petition circulated and signed by 164 settlers. The petition was in strong opposition to detaching Banks Township from Antrim County and attaching it to Charlevoix County. The petition quickly ended the annexation movement initiated by folks from Norwood, Atwood and old Antrim City.

This picture of George Van Pelt's birch grove in Norwood marks the once disputed boundary between Banks and Norwood townships on Lake Shore Drive. The area was enjoyed by young skiers a century ago. The grove was later photographed at sunset by the Detroit Free Press for a travel section feature on northern Michigan.

Over a century has passed since 1873. And with it has passed the sense of commitment to self-government that was often heated, but always very real to the early pioneers. They experienced the earliest days of government in northern Michigan and used it effectively to shape the communities we live in today.

Charlevoix's historic bathing pool kept visitors, locals cool

Not so unlike the Charlevoix Community Pool that was dedicated Saturday, Charlevoix once had a bathing pool, called the The Inn Bathing Pavilion. It was located between the railroad tracks and Pine Lake, just south of the railroad station. The pool was 30 by 100 feet and from 3- to 8-feet deep. The building was two stories high with 60 dressing rooms along the gallery on the second floor. There was a heating plant for tempering water. The pool was open to the public and quite popular with the locals. People even came by train from Petoskey to use it.

Veteran's auxiliary meets

The Women's Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 1153, held its regular business meeting recently.

The meeting opened with the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag and a prayer for peace by the Chaplain Rosalyn Goldstick. Minutes, correspondence, general orders and the Michigan Messenger were read by secretary Marabeth Belinski and treasurer's report given by Ruth Anne Marley.

It was noted that 42 regular members and 10 life members have paid 1997 dues thus far. Janet Louiselle was recently installed as a new member.

Angelina Borths, Marabeth Belinski and Lynn Marquardt were chosen as delegates and Arlene Staley and Betty White as alternate delegates to the state convention in Dearborn June 26-29.

Committee reports showed that members have volunteered 370 hours for rehabilitation this month, 100 hours for hospital, 600 hours for community activities.

The auxiliary still has a few of the cancer pins left, which sell annually for $2 each, with all funds used for national program of cancer aid and research. They may be purchased from any auxiliary member.

Thank you's were read for contributions which had been made to the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Camp Trotter, and to the V.F.W. National Children's Home at Eaton Rapids in memory of Rose Mann. Contributions were made this meeting to the National Home in memory of Hilma Hull and Beatrice Miller, both of whom died recently.

Past president Betty White installed the following officers for the 1997-98 term: President Angelina Borths; senior vice president Pat Butcher; junior vice president Lynn Marquardt; secretary Marabeth Belinski; treasurer Ruth Anne Marley; trustees: 3 year - Arlene Staley, 2 year - Betty White, 1 year - Betty Hodgkinson; conductress Arlene Staley; chaplain Rosalyn Goldstick; guard Marge Plum; and patriotic instructor Betty Hodgkinson.

"It developed the thought that they belonged to this school as a group," she said.

Board Chairman Gerald Chase said that his summer as well as the rest of the board's will be spent assessing what has worked and what has not. Also, they will try to balance their budget.

The school's revenue is based totally on the $5,808 per student stipend received from the state. With revenues of about half a million, Chase said this year they spent $10,000 more than they had.

"The dust hasn't settled yet, but we did underestimate some of the start-up costs," Chase said, noting that earlier in the year the school was forced to eliminate two teaching positions as a result.

Still, for him year one of the experiment was a success.

"We started with a group that did not know each other and have moved to an attitude of belonging," he said. "We had the typical chaos at the start, but we've moved beyond that by light years."

Three new board members elected, no to M-66 land

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The elementary and high schools will get their makeovers, but any plans for a new school were forced back to the drawing board with a revamped school board holding the chalk.

Voters resoundingly said no to the purchase of the M-66 land by more than a 2 to 1 margin, and in doing so also sent K. Scott Boss, Barney Way, and Dwight "Ike" Boss to the school board.

Two bond issues did pass, however. The sinking fund for repairs at two schools passed 930 to 753, as did the millage renewal for the public library 1175 to 484.

Scott Boss tallied 950 votes, and Way 740 to earn the two four-year seats on the board. Behind them, Dennis Halverson scored 701 votes, Joan Buday 467, and Patrick McKeown, Jr., 298.

Dwight "Ike" Boss took 875 votes to win the one-year term left from Sulane Hamilton's resignation. Michael MacMillan contested him, finishing with 641 votes.

"It's a clear message from the public that they are looking for a change," Way said of the election that produced three new board members.

Way, Scott Boss, and Ike Boss ran as a trio. They were adamant in their opposition against buying the M-66 land.

"We need to back up a bit," Way said. "We built in a lot of want, but we need to reassess what we really need."

Ike Boss said the community needs

Charlevoix's Trout Tournament ready to hook anglers

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Sunrise Friday, June 13, fishermen will begin the search for the area's largest fish. Charlevoix's annual trout tournament will begin.

Contestants have until noon Sunday, June 15, to reel in the big one in four categories: lake trout, brown trout, steelhead and salmon. Whomever does snag the biggest fish in each division will take home a $1,000 prize, and there will be a $100 prize for the largest catch each day, regardless of category.

Despite the large cash prizes, tournament president Dave Juillcret said the weekend is not meant for cutthroat competition.

"Bring the family. If you win $1,000 that's great, but having a good time is what we want," he said. "Go for one nice fish and

Old-fashioned courtship a cornerstone to 67-year marriage

The following article was written before Jack Boss' recent death. Charlevoix resident Leslie Cunningham conducted the interview for a sociology research project while she was a student at Grand Valley State University. The story is being run as a tribute to the Boss' life together.

By Leslie Cunningham
Special to the Courier

When the "cow-tester" came to Jack Boss' Marion township family farm in the summer of 1928 to check the animals for productivity, he had a picture of a pretty 17-year-old girl who lived on a neighboring farm in northwestern Banks township, about three miles from the Boss homestead.

The "cow-tester" told Jack, then 21 years old, that he should ask Frances Carpenter for a date. Jack went to the Carpenter home to invite Frances to go to a stock show with him. Frances did not know Jack, so she asked her brothers if Jack was a suitable escort. They heartily approved. Frances went.

Today, she remembers with a coy smile, "Gosh, I thought he was a good lookin' guy."

Jack and Frances dated for almost two years, attending stock shows, movies and Sunday night church services. They do not report any epiphanic moment in their romance, but just that they moved toward marriage in a steady fashion.

They were in love, but they explain that young farm couples in their circle waited until they could afford the necessities before getting married. Jack asked Frances to marry him during Christmas of 1929.

Frances says that "I wasn't surprised that he asked me, just glad!" And then, as was the custom, he asked Frances' widowed mother's permission.

On May 10, 1930, at seven in the evening, Jack and Frances got married in her mother's house. Both families were there, and a small group of friends. Frances wore a dress that her mother had made. After the minister performed the ceremony, Frances says that "My mother had cooked the dinner, and we had a cake." Everyone ate and then went home.

There were no bouquets. There was no music.

"There were just a few gifts," Frances says. "My mother gave us a cow."

Jack adds, "Our folks also gave us a

News AIDS test out

A new, free test for the HIV virus, which involves placing a small pad between the gum and cheek, is now available locally.

Orasure, a test that does not require drawing blood, is offered at all offices of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, formerly District Health Department No. 3.

The test is conducted by placing a specially treated pad between a person's gum and cheek for two minutes. The pad contains salts and proteins which draw anti-body rich material from the gum and cheek into the pad. The pad is then placed in a vial containing a solution to reserve the sample during transport to the lab.

At the lab an "ELISA" test, the same test used to detect antibodies in the blood, is performed. Orasure is 99.8 percent accurate in detecting the presence of HIV antibodies.

If the ELISA test is positive, a Western Blot Test is run on the same sample to confirm it. In order for a person to be classified as HIV positive he or she must have positive results on both tests.

Availability of the test is being promoted by the Regional Community Planning Group, a group of health professionals and civic leaders. The Orasure is not a saliva test. It is another test that determines the presence of HIV antibodies.

Laboratory results are available in 7 to 10 days. Trained counselors provide confidential, anonymous antibody tests at all health agency locations.

For more information, or to arrange for the test, call 547-0295.

Correction

The May 28 edition of the Courier, an age in the "On the Record" section was incorrect. Under the marriages, it should have read: Kenneth M. Liskie, 43, East Jordan, and Carolyn F. Lee, 42, Boyne Falls.

Events in brief

Sheriff's department seeks information

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is still seeking information about a white van that hit an Atwood man June 3 and left the scene.

The accident occurred at about 3:05 p.m. on U.S. 31, just north of Mercer Street in Charlevoix Township.

Richard A. Peterson, 43, of Atwood, was walking north on U.S. 31 when the van illegally passed another vehicle on the right shoulder of the road, striking the man. The van fled the scene north bound on U.S. 31, leaving the man on the side of the road.

Peterson was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix City Ambulance. He was treated for cuts and scrapes.

The accident remains under investigation at this time. Anyone having information on the white van, please contact the sheriff's department at 547-4461.

Ice cream social at local hospital

An old-fashioned ice cream social will be held from 2-4 p.m. Sunday, June 22, in the Charlevoix Area Hospital cafeteria.

The event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild with proceeds to benefit the campaign to purchase a CT scanner for the hospital's radiology department.

Schwann's ice cream and homemade cookies will be featured. The Snow Belt barbershop quartet will entertain and there will be an appearance by a "cat."

Rollover accident injures two from East Jordan

A rollover accident near Charlevoix June 3 left two East Jordan residents with minor injuries.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department responded to the accident on M-66, near Loeb Road in Marion Township, at 2:09 p.m.

A 1993 Ford Probe, driven by Alexander Salinas, 21, of East Jordan, was traveling southeast on M-66 when it left the road and struck a driveway embankment and flipped over. The passenger in the vehicle, Jennifer Radford, 21, of East Jordan, was removed from the vehicle by a citizen. She was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Charlevoix City Ambulance.

Radford was treated for minor injuries and released. Salinas refused treatment for his minor injuries.

Both occupants reported that they were wearing seatbelts, which significantly reduced their injuries..

Salinas was cited for speeding and no insurance.

Today's DDA meeting canceled

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority will not meet tonight, June 11, in the city hall conference room as originally scheduled.

The next meeting is 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 9. A complete agenda will be posted at city hall prior to the meeting.

Food supplements available through health department

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, formerly District Health Dept. No. 3, has appointments available for WIC, a food supplement and nutrition education program for pregnant and postpartum women, infants and children up to the age five years.

For information and an appointment, call 547-0295 or (800) 432-4121.

The Carriage House has been an ongoing point of controversy for residents along Cherry and Elm streets. They are demanding action by city officials and landowners.

Carriage House continues to cause outrage by neighbors

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Jon Hisey and Richard Lobenherz want out of a land deal that has caused plenty of trouble.

The neighbors are outraged that the Carriage House has been left to fall down. Letters of complaint and ongoing visits to city council meetings have failed to solve the problem. City officials are being hounded to force the developers to either fix up the building or tear it down.

Mayor Josh Barnes said that the city's power to force change is hindered by the city's lack of having a blight ordinance.

City attorney, Jim Young, said that the council's best direction "if they find it intolerable" is to condemn the building.

As neighbors insisted on immediate action, Barnes told people at the June 2 council meeting to calm down.

"Right now he (Hisey) has said that he will tear it down providing he has a reasonable use for the property," Barnes said.

One reasonable use, according to Hisey and Lobenherz, is getting side, front and rear-yard variances that will enable them to sell the land that borders Elm and Cherry streets as eight separate lots for single family homes.

With the current setbacks in place, only a 20-foot width on each of eight lots is buildable, enough for a small modular home.

"I just don't think that's what the neighbors or the town would want," Hisey said Wednesday of a modular park.

The neighbors don't want the dilapidated Carriage House turned into condos or apartments. And they don't want crowded housing going up across the street from their 100-foot lots.

Norma Teague, a neighbor on Cherry Street who has headed a petition drive to get council to force the partners to either fix up the building or tear it down, said she doesn't mind if homes go in across the street. She just doesn't want eight being built on a piece of land that she thinks will comfortably fit four.

The lots are 50-feet wide and 125-feet deep. There are four facing Cherry and four facing Elm Street. In November, Hisey presented the city council with four options for the land: the city could buy it, the Carriage House could be fixed up and continue to be used for storage, the building could be converted to condominiums or the land sold for single family homes.

The request for the variances will go before the zoning board of

Police department hires four for summer

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Responding to the swelling summer population, Charlevoix city police are beefing up the force by nearly 50 percent with the addition of four seasonal officers.

According to chief Dennis Halverson, the increase in patrol is a necessity. The only way to have effective police coverage during the summer, it to add staff.

"We could not carry on business without them," he said.

Rachel Niswander and Rob Rowe will assume familiar roles of monitoring Ferry Beach. Niswander will be in her eighth summer of police work while Rowe begins his third. They will assist with boat launches, collect launch fees, direct sea traffic, and help maintain and clean the area.

Michael Peters will be on foot patrol during the evening hours starting Monday, June 16. Halverson said this position has helped put a decrease in substance use, vandalism, and rowdiness during the summer evening hours. Peters will be in his first summer on the Charlevoix force and is a fresh graduate from Northwest Michigan College's police academy.

The toughest job of the summer may well just belong to Steve Wiltfong, who will be watching to see if people adhere to the summer's parking rules. After installing parking meters earlier in the week, Wiltfong will take to the street to keep the parking flow steady.

"Parking turnover is the lifeblood for our downtown businesses," Halverson said. "His is one of the toughest jobs in the city."

Halverson estimated that last summer Wiltfong wrote out 4,000 parking tickets, between 80 to 125 on a daily basis. Parking fines range from $2 to $10 dollars.

New HIV test available, take advantage of it

EDITORIAL

Get tested. Not knowing is not better.

AIDS is no longer an acronym that means certain death. There are new medications that give new hope.

Medical research is paying off. And with it comes a new test for the HIV virus that doesn't involve having your blood drawn. It's as simple as putting a swab between your cheek and gum. This test is available at the health department in Charlevoix and other locations.

Many people can honestly attest that they have been involved in some kind of high risk behavior during their lifetime. Being a homosexual and using IV drugs are not the only ways the virus that causes AIDS is contracted. Having multiple partners and unprotected sex are also dangerous.

There are people living in our small community who have AIDS. We don't believe that all of them contracted the disease while living elsewhere.

We urge people to be tested because ignorance in the 90s can be deadly. There is no excuse for "unknowingly" spreading a serious virus when testing is as easy as it's become. In recent years, countless dollars have been used to educate people about how the HIV virus is and is not contracted.

Knowing how the disease is contracted isn't enough. Get tested and commit to a safe lifestyle. Your life isn't the only one depending on it. This will never happen if people hold tight to the 'it can't happen to me' attitude.

AIDS tests are given in confidence. Before each test at any health department, counseling on prevention and risk factors, and an explanation of the test, is given. The person being tested can choose between two methods: The traditional blood test or the new Orasure test. They are both 99.8 percent accurate. Depending on the clinic, test results could be available the same day or in a few weeks.

When the samples are sent to the lab, they are only identified by number. If you're worried about inquisitive minds wondering why you're being tested, go to an unfamiliar area and give an assumed named. According to health department officials, they test anyone, even if they are identified as John Doe.

People can be tested for free and don't have to live in the area that certain clinics cover.

Here is a list of area clinics and telephone numbers where testing is available: Community Health Center, (616) 929-4448, Traverse City, (same day results are available); Grand Traverse County Health Department, (616) 922-4831, Traverse City; Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood, (616) 929-1844, Traverse City; Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, 1 (800) 432-4121, Bellaire, Mancelona, Charlevoix and Petoskey; District Health Department No. 1, (616) 627-8850, Cheboygan; and Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood, 347-1003, Petoskey.

For more information on AIDS testing, call 1 (800) 432-4121.

Remember, not knowing isn't better. Take control of your life.

Drivers beware, summer's here

Editor:

Permit me to give caution to, 'Downstaters' new to our local driving customs.

That good golden rush,
Of touristers flush,
Driving lawfully we trust,
In our summertime crush,

Behooves me to warn,
Our drivers here born,
Hark to laws you'll find foreign;
So don't honk your horn.

Tourists visiting our fair city for the first time should realize that we drive by a different set of rules here than you'll find in the Michigan driving code booklet. Here, it's "My way on my highway;" so to speak. Not for all of us. To be fair, many of us drive in a way you'd expect, but there are those free-spirited ones among us who follow local customs handed down, parent to child, for as long as roads and drivers have existed.

First, forget that state law requires a complete stop before exiting a driveway, private or public. Up here, except for tourist season, we've been, "The few, the forlorn, the free." This means, if you're approaching Kmart at a legal 45 mph and you see a car rolling from their lot toward M-66, you'd assume they'll halt before entering the flow of speeding traffic. Wrong, wrong, wrong! If anything, they'll speed up and pull right in front of you. (Same applies to Glen's Market driveway.) Also, if you stop and look both ways before pulling out from either place expect dirty looks and horn blowing.

Second, turning left. If on foot, or bike, never, never occupy the shoulders of our roads, especially M-66 and U.S. 31 north of town. What you foolishly think of as shoulders, are in reality our passing lanes any time a car ahead is turning left or just going so slow we think he is. So with a cloud of gravel and a hearty, Heigh Ho, Silver, we'll blast past the left turner using the so-called shoulder. Use that shoulder when we do this — and die.

More on turns. If you enjoy feeling your neck hairs tingle, watch how we old timers execute a left turn. My dad called it, "The Farmer's Turn." When we approach a corner we begin our left turn by easing into the approaching traffic lane while cutting as close to the near curb as circumstance will allow. This way we don't square our turn, instead making as wide a curve as possible. If you're headed toward us you'll think we've decided to ram you head-on until we cross left past you. Even more exciting, if you're approaching the road or drive we're entering, you'll get the thrill of your life as we slash through the right lane of the road you thought belonged to you as we complete the classic farmer's turn.

One last thing on turning, Charlevoix style. Say you've dutifully (read foolishly) slowed on the road behind a paused left turner who's waiting for traffic to clear and a "local" swings right to pass you as

Acacia commander thanks participants for backing races

Editor:

On Saturday, May 31, 1997, Coast Guard Acacia sponsored the 3rd Annual "Charlevoix Coast Guard Race" fundraiser for the Charlevoix Community Pool.

Blessed with nice weather, a great turnout, strong local business sponsorship, and an energetic host of Acacia volunteers, the event was a great success, raising $1,250 for the pool project. This year's event was moved from the streets of the North Point area to the scenic Charlevoix Country Club grounds. A 10K race was added to the format, and the races attracted nearly 100 runners/walkers, with more than a third coming from outside of Charlevoix.

As the event's organizer, I'd like to thank the many individuals and businesses making this year's event a success. The event's corporate sponsors were the LexaLite International Corp., Pat McKeown Ford-Lincoln-Mercury and Crown Motors. Other businesses donating either post-race drawing prizes and/or goods and services to help promote the race are as follows: Dunmaglas Golf Course, the Acorn Cafe, Glen's Market, Oleson's, Michigan Officeways, Main Street Pizza, McDonald's, Village Inn Pizza, Subway, Murdick's, Top Rank Disposal, Walmart and Burger King. Special thanks go to Ron Braniecki of the Charlevoix Country Club, Don Voisin (course layout) and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and EMS.

Sincerely,
K.L. Schultz

Visitors ask for garbage recepticals

Editor:

My son and I have visited Northpoint Nature Preserve frequently. Each time we collect hand fulls of plastic, paper, old cans, etc. We were wondering if it would be possible to provide small plastic bags and/or a waste container at the entrance? This might encourage others to pick up litter. Both of our families contributed to the formation of this nature preserve and we want to keep it beautiful.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Pool director looks to end of fund-raising

Editor:

Although a gala dedication of the new Charlevoix Community Pool was held recently and the pool soon will be ready to enjoy, we, Friends of the Pool, still must raise approximately $40,000 to cover construction costs.

Sale of inscribed bricks for the pool patio have been brisk and has raised $16,000 to date. The bricks, at $120 each, are etched in honor or in memory of someone. Order blanks may be picked up in stores around town. Call the pool office at 547-0982 for more information.

We appreciate the help the Courier has given by keeping the public informed about the progress of the indoor pool project.

Sincerely,
Joanne Curtis
Treasurer, Charlevoix Friends of the Pool

Pool an example of volunteer power

Editor:

The Charlevoix Community Pool is a shining example of voluntarism, a topic much in the news these days. Literally dozens of committed, talented people freely gave thousands of hours of their time over the years to make the dream of an indoor swimming pool a reality.

Charlevoix Friends of the Pool board of directors met countless times to give progress reports and accept new responsibilities. Their dedication was vital to the morale of the organization.

Hundreds gave as generously as they could to the construction, operation and endowment funds. Professionals, industry and individuals provided in-kind services which kept construction costs to a minimum — below $1 million.

Such a facility is far more complex to build than most public facilities, thus much more challenging. We have renewed respect and admiration for the skills of the workers who put in long hours to meet the dedication deadline.

Already, one of our goals is being met. "Graduation" at the pool was held Monday for 650 elementary school students who had completed the "Whales Tales" water safety course.

All these wonderful people can never be thanked enough. But, as every volunteer knows, the true reward is the satisfaction of giving of oneself for a deserving purpose.

Bruce MacArthur
President, Charlevoix Friends of the Pool

The Perez Family builds a human pyramid on the high wire during a past performance of the Kelly-Miller Circus.

Expanded circus comes to town

From the newly designed Italian circus tent to the lighting and acts, the 1997 edition of the Kelly-Miller Circus will be like none that has ever performed in Charlevoix.

Feature acts this year include the Perez Family from Mexico. Now, with the additional height of the new tent, Kelly-Miller Circus is able to present the popular and dangerous flying trapeze. Spectators will watch the Perez brothers build human pyramids on the high-wire and be amazed at the speed at which they perform atop the revolving wheel.

The Vital family will shoot into spectators' hearts as they perform feats of archery skill. They will shoot an apple off a head, an act so daring, that the slightest misstep, the slightest miscalculation, could end in disaster.

Animals are always a favorite with children of all ages. Miss Cindi will delight audiences with the Kelly-Miller 6-horse liberty act, as well as assisting Mr. Roy Wells in the presentation of the Kelly-Miller Circus elephants.

Advance Tickets are $7 for adults and $5 for children under 12. The circus will be held on Saturday, July 5, and Sunday, July 6, with shows on Saturday at 7 p.m. and on Sunday at 2 p.m. & 4:30 p.m. and will be located on Carpenter Avenue, across from the ballfield, under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Lions Club.

Fair prepares for annual show

The animal grooming, baking and harvesting of flowers and vegetables are weeks away, but the time for fair exhibitors to start planning (and planting in some cases) is now.

Despite recent snowfall in northwestern Michigan, those who regularly participate in the horticultural and crafts competitions have already begun preparation. And fair manager Agnes Shaw said newcomers better get busy preparing to show.

"We're going to have many of the events we've had through the years, but we also would like more participation in the market livestock competition as well as all of the other exhibits and now is the time to start," she said.

Annually northwest Michigan's finest baked and canned goods, domestic arts, arts and crafts (including quilts), flowers and plants are on display at the fair. This year the exhibits have been expanded to include antiques and additional horticulture categories.

The fair runs from Saturday, Aug. 16, to Sunday, Aug. 24. And the Gold Ribbon Program is back. In order to place entries into competition at the Michigan State Fair, they must be awarded a Gold Ribbon at a county fair. In recent years the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fair was not qualified to award these ribbons.

Gold ribbons will be given for quilts, crafts, baked goods, horticulture and youth categories (14 and under.)

The Skerbeck Brothers carnival will again line the midway.

New additions include two nights of grandstand entertainment. At 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 19, the live country music of the Kikker band will prepare the audience for country-music singer, Teresa Langworthy. For the first time Visa and Mastercard will be accepted at the grandstand.

Wednesday night the grandstand will come alive again, with a country/western benefit concert.

The fair manager said details are falling into place to present the best fair ever. Anyone wishing to exhibit at the fair should register now. For additional information call 347-1010.

Summertime poetry reading begins

Stone Circle Gatherings begin this year on Friday, June 13, and continue every Friday and Saturday evening at 9 p.m. through Labor Day weekend.

Around a flickering campfire, under a canopy of stars, listeners perch on boulders or spread out on blankets and lawn chairs as an ever-changing variety of poetry, storytelling and music are woven throughout the evening at this unique outdoor amphitheater.

On any night you might hear the poetry of Burns, Chaucer, Service, Whitman or the original work of a visiting poet.

Beowulf may come to life or the hum of an aboriginal didjeridoo may echo up the slope. Michigan folklore, American classics, Cowboy or contemporary poetry may be interspersed with Native American tales and children's selections. Listeners and families are welcome.

You need not perform to attend.

The Stone Circle is located five miles south of Eastport off U.S. 31. Turn left on Stone Circle Drive and follow it to the end. A $3 donation for adults and $1 for children 12 and under is asked. Call 264-9467 for further information.

Bricks hoped to cover remaining pool expenses

Sales of inscribed bricks by Charlevoix Friends of the Pool have reached a total to date of $16,000, according to Mary Frame, chairman of the project. Proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Community Pool.

A major gift and other donations in the past week amounted to more than $21,000, according to Treasurer, Joanne Curtis. However, The Friends of the Pool still need to raise about $40,000 to cover final construction bills.

The $120 bricks, many inscribed in honor or in memory of someone, will be placed on the patio outside the spa area. Order blanks have been placed in many stores around Charlevoix for the convenience of brick buyers.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Unto the Charlevoix Class of 1997,
My Boss and I say thank you.
We are honored you sought to include us
In what you're about to go through.
For though you may not realize it,
We have been with you all along,
From your very first steps in kindergarten
To today's "Pomp and Circumstance" song.

To parents and grandparents watching
We share in your happiness today.
Let's go back and reflect together
On what happened along the way.
This class initiated the proficiency tests.
They even took their MEAPS twice.
No group has retired more teachers
And still been so very nice.

They got Mrs. Schaperkotter to let down her hair
And even eat ice cream.
They were conference champs in volleyball,
And their inaugural fire in D.C. was certainly no dream.
What about the phone pole that jumped out at Stacey Urban
And don't forget Sean hitting the middle school wall.
How many times did Miss Haversham burn
Till Mrs. Seamen said, "That's all!"

So many said Joe Grundman was late
And always forgetting his stuff,
But the fact he's here on time today
To us is proof enough.
Becky Blissett on piano, Josh Skeel and all his tackles,
Let's not forget Chelsea and her fabulous cross country run.
With three valedictorians is there any wonder
Why this class is so much fun?

Did block "A" ever finish its English filmstrip?
Did you know this is a class of successful engineers?
With honored teachers like Mrs. Ford and Roger Gowell,
Their faculty deserves some cheers.
Ian and Crystal - the Siamese twins,
What is it about Jessica's laugh?
Somehow I missed Nick's double "Ro-bear-ta"
Mr. Bogart, are you referring to someone on staff?

Oh this rhyme could last a while longer yet
You've shared so many wonderful things.
I've tried my best to include them all.
But I'd better go on before the bell rings.
You know all the hats I wear
Rotary, college teacher, sometimes sub.
It's the hat I wear most of all
That I want you now to be thinking of.

My Boss and I are proud of you
We wish you nothing but the best.
Remember, He's only a heartbeat away
If life truly puts you to the test.
So enjoy the glow of the moment
You've earned it — each one of you.
Congratulations to the Class of '97
From me and You Know Who!

School looks at deficit budget for 1997-98 school year

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

During their next meeting, the Charlevoix Board of Education will be approving a budget for the 1997-98 school year that is nearly half a million in the red.

Next year, the district plans to spend $10,353,670, an increase of more than $40,000. Incoming revenue is projected to be $9,894,290, a decrease of more than $225,000.

The result: A budget that is $459,380 overdrafted, forcing the district again to dip into their general funds to cover the costs. The budget forecasts an account of $1.356 million when the fiscal year ends June 30,1998, down from $2 million just a year ago.

At the present rate of spending, the district will exhaust their general fund balance early in 2001. Over the summer, school officials will be attempting to put forth a long-range balanced budget in hopes of avoiding the major squeeze.

"We need to pull back in on the reigns in order to be a physically solvent enterprise," high school principal Gary Grundman said. "It's difficult when your income has been limited."

The school district's revenue is generated mostly from per-student allowances set and paid for by the state. The school's budget projects that stipend to be $6,832 per student, an increase of $137 over last year. Rumblings from Lansing indicated that the increase may be as high as $155 per student, but superintendent Roberta Jackson said that the district will continue using the most conservative figure until told otherwise.

While the state's funding increases, though, Charlevoix's enrollment decreases. As students look elsewhere for education, so goes the money. The district predicts a K-12 enrollment of 1,325 this September, down 35 from last year and down 95 from September 1995.

Districts throughout the state have been left scrambling to become more cost efficient within the new funding schemes, but have been pinched further through schools of choice legislation.

In an effort to reel in some costs involved with staffing faculty, the district announced last month an early retirement incentive. A three-year offer, it allows faculty with 20 years experience to step away and earn monthly stipends for the next 10 years that total up to $50,000.

However, the costs to set up this incentive are high during the deal's first few years. For example, for each teacher who takes the offer this year, the district must pay Design Underwriting Inc., the Grand Rapids firm administering this policy, $10,000 over the next five years to cover the 10-year, monthly payments.

So far five teachers have opted for the plan. Combined with the salary of those hired to replace them, a 2 percent across the board increase in faculty pay plus payments to the retirement provider are being budgeted Jackson is recommending that the school board not replace three of the teachers who are leaving.

"With low student count, and looking at the numbers, I can not justify replacing three teachers," she said.

The plan's short-term effect is a change over in staff, allowing younger teachers into the classroom while older teachers can step aside and still earn income. Any financial savings won't be seen for a few years.

Complicating the budget more so is the future of the district's athletic department.

Barry Anderson, who has been with the district for more than 25 years, the last four as athletic director, has opted for the plan. However, his shoes will not be filled with someone drawing an entry level salary. The district hopes to staff his vacancy with a new administrator who will wear the hat of athletic director/associate principal. Anderson's pay for next fall was to be just over $60,000, however, if found, a new administrator's pay is projected to be at least $63,000.

All three building principals explained to the board why the position is warranted. The board questioned the vagueness of the job description, which includes assisting with discipline, supervision, and staff evaluation, in addition to overseeing high school athletics.

Perhaps proving the necessity of another administrator, the board then approved the hiring of Mary Plude as an assistant track coach a few days after the season ended. A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 16, in the high school study hall.

Charlevoix students rate high on state proficiency tests

Area test scores in summary

A quick look at some of Charlevoix County schools and their results in the Statewide High School Proficiency Test follow. The test was taken in January and results were released last week. The numbers are the percent of those who took the test that passed as proficient. Boyne City tested 88 students, Charlevoix 86, East Jordan 77 and Northwest Academy 3. The number of students tested is important to the percentages used to measure success.

| | Math | Science | Reading | Writing |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Charlevoix | 64 | 54.7 | 57 | 67.1 |
| Boyne City | 61.1 | 44.9 | 45.5 | 29.1 |
| East Jordan | 51.3 | 34.2 | 40.5 | 22.1 |
| Northwest Acad. | 66.7 | 33.3 | 66.7 | 0.0 |
| State average | 52.9 | 38.5 | 41.1 | 30.3 |

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

As Charlevoix students faced final examinations, expectations were boosted by the release of the Statewide High School Proficiency Test results last week, which showed Charlevoix eleventh-graders at or near the top in each academic category.

"It was really neat to see," high school principal Gary Grundman said. "I'm extremely proud of our kids and faculty."

Results were divided into four categories: science, math, reading and writing. Charlevoix was above the state average by large margins, notably in writing.

While most of the area students did well, scores in the writing sections were generally down. Charlevoix, however, scored its highest mark in the writing section with two-thirds of the 86 students who took the test qualifying as proficient.

To compare with other area schools, only Beaver Island, with a 50 percent proficient rating, registered at least half its students proficient in writing. The state average was less than one-third of students qualifying as proficient in writing, and overall writing scores declined by four percent.

"It's a form of expression," Grundman said. "There aren't many other ways to see how a kid is thinking and using reason. The best way to see that is in their writing."

Writing has been a major factor in the school's curriculum. So much so that students in gym class are expected to complete a variety of five papers throughout the term.

"Even in math," Grundman said. "We want them to write their answers, show us the logic they used on paper to determine the solution."

BUSINESS

T-shirt shop custom names business after downtown bridge

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Unable to find a location for their clothing business in Traverse City, David Michael and his fiancee, Audrie Jabkowski, headed north in hopes of starting up in Mackinaw.

Charlevoix, though, got in the way.

"It was so pretty that we got out of the car and stayed," Michael said. "Everything was really spur-of-the-moment."

The result is Bridge Street Troll, a casual wear sweatshirt and T-shirt store adjacent to the bridge. Open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to "whenever it dies," the name of the store was invented by Michael on the spot because bridges and trolls go together.

Inventory in the store is varied.

"We've got a little bit of everything — kids' stuff, golf stuff, and a lot of jokes," Michael said.

Sweatshirts, windbreakers, and pullovers stock the stores' first floor, with mostly children's clothes in the downstairs level. The walls are plastered with a variety of silkscreen designs.

The store will be seasonal, as Michael plans on closing toward the end of September to return to Florida where he attends Florida International University and studies finance.

Jabkowski attends Miami of Florida on a fine arts scholarship. Michael also manages a clothing store in Florida.

This is the couple's first experience in northern Michigan, and it has more than matched their expectations.

"All the kids come in here which is always fun," Michael said. "It's nice to be in a small area. We feel like we know everybody already."

Business in brief

Area businessman named to Who's Who

Robert Mardigian, president and chief executive officer of Mardigian Investments, has been selected as an honored member of Kaléo Publication's Who's Who Among Top Executives. He was chosen in recognition of his many accomplishments and the contributions he has made to the construction industry.

Mardigian Investments focuses on commercial and residential land improvement and development, but the company is also part of the tool and die industry. Mardigian has been president of company since 1980, and president of Mountain Development since 1990.

He earned his master's from the University of Michigan in 1973, and attended Oakland University of Economics and Finance.

Local doctor speaks on Liposculpture

Liposuction, a method of removing fat from specific areas of the body, will be discussed by Dennis Hammond, M.D., plastic surgeon, at Charlevoix Area Hospital from 7-8 p.m. Monday, June 30.

Titled "Ultrasonic Assisted Liposculpture," the talk will describe the new procedure using ultrasound which is less invasive to the body, requires a shorter recovery period, and gives a smoother result than previous techniques.

The lecture is free; however, reservations are requested by calling Nancy Ellison, or the operator, at Charlevoix Area Hospital, 547-4024.

Big Rock Point's construction remembered

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Eugene Dziedzic's hands were some of the first to load fuel into the reactor core at Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

The 68-year-old retired Charlevoix man remembers the moment the plant went critical, a phrase used to describe when fission begins.

Before the plant could begin producing electricity in 1962, it had to be built. The ground breaking for Consumers Power Co.'s first nuclear plant occurred on July 20, 1960. It took 27 months and $27 million to build the technical demonstration plant that was designed by General Electric.

"When you come down to it, the first group of people who came up here with Big Rock were pioneers in the industry," Dziedzic said. "It was a thrill for us.

"When we came up here we thought we could do anything in the world."

Railroad tracks were built right up to the site to haul in some of the plant's largest parts. The reactor was brought in by boat, Dziedzic said. The railroad, access to major roads and available cooling from Lake Michigan were three components that drew Consumers to Charlevoix.

Change was occurring in Charlevoix, just as it continues to today. The early 1960s were bringing more industry to northern Michigan. Big Rock Point was being built on the northside and Medusa Cement Plant was coming to the south.

> "When you come down to it, the first group of people who came up here with Big Rock were pioneers in the industry."
> — Eugene Dziedzic, former plant employee

"We used to say that they were bracketing Charlevoix," said Ralph Hamilton, who once had a chance to buy the property on which Big Rock Point sits. But $25,000 was more than he could afford.

Dziedzic said that when he came to help open the plant, some of the community was leery of Consumers' plan.

"There were some good reactions from the community," he said. "But there were a few people wondering what we were doing up here what we were doing bringing up all these high-paying jobs.

"They didn't have good-paying jobs here in 1962," Dziedzic said. "The highest paid man around here was probably paid $4 per hour."

The Consumer jobs easily doubled the highest paying jobs in the area. Just as those high-paying jobs came, they will be leaving. And along with them, between $35-$45,000 given to nonprofit organizations each year. That money includes donations to United Way, Boy and Girl Scouts, Women's Resource Center, Charlevoix Community Pool, Salvation Army, American Red Cross, 4-H, and others.

The fear of nuclear power was also a concern. Anti-nuclear activists played watchdog over the plant. Hamilton thinks the outbursts were blown way out of proportion.

"I believe the government had adequate control of atomic energy," he said. "The plant has been good for Charlevoix."

Esther Bleha has lived near the plant since it was built. She, too, remembers the controversy and questions that surrounded nuclear power 15 years after the United States dropped the H-bombs on Japan. But she was personally not concerned.

"It was a source of power and in those days, we needed more power around here," she said.

Another source of comfort for Bleha was the government involvement.

"They gave us all kinds of assurances," she said. "We didn't fight it because the government was watching it closely."

For the first five years that the plant was open, it was available to the Atomic Energy Commission, which is now called the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, for research and development.

Consumers also was watching the plant's performance closely. In 1967 the company built its second, and larger, nuclear power plant in Covert, Mich. Both plants are nearing the end of license.

Throughout the years, Big Rock Point has undergone some changes, like the construction of the alternate shutdown building that allowed the plant to be shut down from outside the control room. However, most of the plant remains as originally designed.

The only other major changes occurred in 1970 and 1976 when backup systems like the spray core and containment valves, generators and reactor depressurization were installed for increased safety.

Now the plant is the oldest operating nuclear power plant in the nation. It has less than three years until its operating license expires. However, an announcement is expected later today, June 11, on whether the plant will be refueled or shut down Saturday, Aug. 30.

Not everyone is waiting for an announcement.

"I feel bad that they're going to shut it down," Dziedzic said. "But I understand the economics. It's like having a good friend and when that friend goes away, you lose something."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Charlevoix Board of Commissioners will hold a Public Hearing to review a grant application to the Michigan State Housing Development Authority for funding under the 1997 Michigan CDBG Housing Program. The hearing will be held June 11, 1997, at 9:45 A.M. in the Commissioner's Room of the Charlevoix County Building on Antrim Street.

The purpose of the hearing is to gain citizen input prior to the submission of the application to continue the county-wide Home Improvement Program. The grant application is in the amount of $250,000. These funds will be utilized to make housing rehabilitation loans and deferred loans available to low and very low income households in Charlevoix County.

Zoning board decision awaited by many

appeals at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 18.

Barnes advised that the city wait to see what the board decided before taking further action.

"Staying out of court is always cheaper and a lot better," he said.

The partners bought the land in 1988. And since before that time, the building was tagged as an eyesore. Some neighbors have claimed that they have smelled marijuana from the building, that kids slip inside to drink and do drugs, and that someone is going to get raped there if it isn't secured.

Charlevoix Police Chief, Dennis Halverson, was called in to check the building. He said that when he visited the site, the building was secure with the exception of being able to see over a sheet of plywood that covers a doorway.

"We could see no evidence that the place was being frequented," he said. "There was no graffiti, broken glass or evidence of fires."

While looking in from the outside, Halverson spotted two cans of beer. But he said there is no way of knowing where they came from.

"There's a chance those were left there by workmen or someone polishing their boat," he said.

The city has received at least 10 letters of complaint from neighbors, Halverson said. Most of the letter-writers are upset with the building's appearance and unmowed grass. However, some did elude to illegal acts occurring on the property.

"I don't believe the number of people that complained are seeing things," said city councilman Gabe Campbell, addressing the police chief's inspection. Halverson had called Hisey to get permission to check the property. "If I knew you were coming to check my yard, it would be pretty darn clean."

City council is looking into drafting a blight ordinance to deal with similar situations in the future.

The zoning board of appeals is now left to decide the future of the property.

Either the variances will be given and the partners will sell the lots to eight future homeowners or the request will be denied. If that happens, the Carriage House battle will continue.

"I will lose faith if he is allowed to do something to make more money," Teague said.

Hospital guild gives

A gift of $805 from the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild to the hospital's CPR education program will purchase 10 baby and 10 pediatric Resusci-Annies for infant and pediatric CPR instruction.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is the designated CPR Community Training Center for this area and holds training sessions throughout the year for community members, EMT personnel, employees, and instructors.

Ed McGee, guild president, said the funds from a recent bake sale at the hospital were used to purchase the Annies, and the guild hopes that their addition will encourage more people to learn pediatric CPR.

ORDINANCE #641

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX BY DELETING SECTION 2.142 OF CHAPTER 24 - CITY UTILITY RATES OF TITLE II OF SAID CODE AND REPLACING IT WITH A NEW SECTION 2.142.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

That Section 2.142. Installment Payments (Chapter 24 of the City Code) be amended by deleting the current Section 2.142 and replacing it with a new Section 2.142 which shall read as follows:

2.142. Installment payments.

If connection fees to a commercial or industrial facility exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) and if in the determination of the city council the construction or expansion of the facility will create jobs and provide significant economic benefit to the city, then the council may permit by resolution the installment payment of connection fees as follows: one third (1/3) shall be paid upon execution of the written agreement which is required by this ordinance and the written agreement which is required by this ordinance and the balance shall be paid periodically as determined by the council as long as all connection fees plus interest are fully paid on or before two (2) years from the date of the water and/or sewer connection. If connection fees to a community recreational facility exceed twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), then the council may permit by resolution the installment payment of connection fees as follows: one-fifth (1/5) shall be paid upon execution of the written agreement which is required by this ordinance and the balance shall be paid periodically as determined by the council as long as all connection fees plus interest are fully paid on or before four (4) years from the date of the water and/or sewer connection. The resolution regarding either facility shall describe the conditions under which the council is willing to accept installment payments and shall include, but is not limited to, the number of installments, the due date of each installment, the interest rate to be charged, and the amount of each installment payment. The interest rate shall be the bank prime loan rate which is applicable to the week in which the resolution authorizing installment payments has been adopted as published in the Federal Reserve Statistical Release for Selected Interest Rates. A written agreement regarding either facility shall be executed between the city and the owner of the land to which the water and/or sewer service will be connected which contains the terms of the resolution, and which grants to the city the right to accelerate unpaid connection fees. For a commercial or industrial facility the agreement shall also include a provision which grants to the city a lien on the benefited real property for the unpaid connection fees and which also grants to the city the power of sale to foreclose on the lien by advertisement. In addition, the agreement regarding either facility shall provide that the rights granted to the city in the written agreement may be exercised if there is a default in the terms of the agreement by the owner or assignee of the owner. The agreement shall be in a form approved by the city attorney. The city shall adopt by resolution criteria similar to those criteria used in the city's industrial tax abatement policy which will be used to determine when a commercial or industrial facility construction or expansion will create jobs and provide significant economic benefit to the city. The term "connection fees" as used in this ordinance [Ordinance N. 621] shall mean tap-in fees, privilege fees, or any other fee or charge which arises by virtue of the mere connection to city water and/or sewer services. The term "community recreation facility" as used in this ordinance shall mean a swimming pool, ice rink, gymnasium or similar facility as determined by the city council which is open to the residents of the city at the lowest user fees, if any, even if the facility is located outside the city and which is owned by a municipal corporation or a nonprofit corporation.

davenport and chairs. Things weren't so elaborate then." They both echo, "Everything now is way out of proportion!"

The young couple had no honeymoon trip. They stayed at the Carpenter house for two nights. The second night horrifying vibrations outside the bedroom window awakened the newlyweds. Jack can still describe the racket of the circular saw blade on their window. Frances says that the night visitors even threw live chickens through the upstairs bedroom windows. Jack had to go out on the porch and pay the men to get them to leave.

"I tried to bargain for $5, but they wanted ten, and they wouldn't leave," Jack says. "I had to give them $10. That was a lot of money in those days."

The next week, Jack and Frances moved into a rented house. They had bought land to farm but there was no home on it. It would take them five years to build one for their growing family. Their first child (they would have five) was born exactly one year after they were married. They both remember that "no one ever thought about whether or not you would have kids; you just took it for granted that you would. And we wouldn't give a one of 'em back!"

Jack and Frances grew potatoes and raised turkeys. They recall that the Great Depression of the 1930s as scary.

"We had food — chickens and a garden," Jack says. "We were never hungry, but there was no money to spend."

Jack remembers taking turkeys to market in Chicago. When he and some other northern Michigan farmers arrived in the city, the broker told them that their turkeys were tainted, and he offered a low price for them. The men traveled on to Detroit, hoping to do better. But they ended up selling at a huge loss.

"I was pretty worried," Jack says. "I barely got enough to pay for the feed. Those were some of the bad times."

Every marriage sees some sort of bad times, but Jack and Frances have learned some secrets to a long and comfortable marriage. They are basic truths.

"You wouldn't want to dominate — that'd be one thing," Jack says, "and tolerance for one another's tastes." They say that they waited to get married because folks had to first afford it and get to know each other.

The couple credits part of their success to the fact that they both grew up on farms. They were accustomed to similar routines. Living together brought few surprises. They shared a common church tradition and faith, which they believe has helped them through the tough times. They are emphatic about the fact that they have disagreements but that they never fight.

"I've never been chased out of the house!" Jack says with a gleam in his eye.

Frances adds that each of them has always had a clear role in the relationship.

"The man is the head of the house, and that's just it," she says. As for marital success, Frances says softly, "I always have it in the back of my mind, 'Til death do us part.' I meant it. Divorce has never been an option, and of course, when we got married, it just wasn't thought about."

Frances is 86 and Jack is 90. They still live in that first house they built together. They relish the fact that their family is close — three sons are nearby — and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren pop in and out of the farmhouse on a daily basis.

Frances still plays the organ for her church (she has been playing since she was 14) and Jack still plants a few potatoes. And they clearly enjoy each other's company. The spirit that has kept this marriage vibrant and safe for 67 years is evident, as Frances brings out an old, faded photographic portrait of a young man in a stiff white collar and suit, standing rigidly while posing for the camera. "See? See how handsome he is!" she says.

Jack, resting in a nearby easy chair, tilts his head to one side and grins.

Local Coast Guard officials offer boating safety tips

More than 800 people die in boating-related accidents each year, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

The latest reports estimated a yearly total of more than 6,900 recreational boating accidents — the most ever reported.

"Nearly nine out of 10 of the drowning victims were not wearing their life jacket," said Captain Tony Stimatz of the U.S. Coast Guard in Charlevoix. "It's simple, life jackets save lives."

Jeanie Kilgour, Flotilla Commander of U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 16-2, noted that life jackets are essential because contrary to popular belief, most boating accidents are not fiery collisions.

Most accidents occur when someone falls overboard or capsizes their boat. Even experienced swimmers lose coordination and drown. Heavy clothing, boating under the influence of alcohol or cold water can also be factors in drownings.

The U.S. Coast Guard, National Safety Council and Flotilla 16-2 offer these tips for using a life jacket:

— Buy your own personal life jacket and use it. One size does not fit all. There may not be one available that fits to rent or borrow.

— Look at the label. It will provide weight, size and use information.

— Try it on to check the fit. Once the straps and buckles are secured, it should not slop over your head or come above your ears.

— Never use water toys in place of a U.S. Coast Guard approved life jacket.

— Throw away a life jacket if you find air leakage, mildew or rot.

— Never alter a life jacket. It could lose its effectiveness.

— Check your life jackets yearly for flotation and fit.

— Wear a life jacket to set an example for younger children while you increase your chances of survival.

For more tips on using life jackets contact Flotilla Commander Jeanie S. Kilgour at 547-0983 or call the U.S. Coast Guard Infoline at (800) 368-5647.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Charlevoix City Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on Monday, July 14, 1997, at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI, to discuss a proposed amendment to Chapter 51, Zoning and Planning of the City Code, to create a C-2, MIXED USE DEVELOPMENT DISTRICT. The amendment will recognize the traditional residential use character of the area along Bridge Street approximately from Hurlbut St. to Carpenter Ave., and the importance of maintaining and protecting that character as it relates to maintaining the attractiveness and vitality of Charlevoix as a community in which to live, visit or conduct business. A copy of the draft ordinance is available at the City Planning Office during office hours.

The text of the proposed ordinance is as follows:

C-2, MIXED USE DEVELOPMENT DISTRICT

PURPOSE: This district is established to recognize the traditional residential use character of the area along Bridge Street approximately from Hurlbut St. to Carpenter Ave., and the importance of maintaining and protecting that character as it relates to maintaining the attractiveness and vitality of Charlevoix as a community in which to live, visit or conduct business.

USE REGULATIONS
The permitted uses shall be the same as those allowed in the C-1 District, Section 5.82

In addition residential uses both single family and multiple shall be allowed.

A mix of the allowed uses is encouraged.

AREA REGULATIONS
No building or structure or the enlargement of any building or structure shall be hereafter erected unless the following yards and building coverage are provided and maintained in connection with such building, structure or enlargement.

(1) FRONT YARD
There shall be a minimum front yard of not less than fifteen (15) feet nor shall the principal building set back be greater than twenty-five (25) feet.

(2) SIDE YARD
There shall be a minimum side yard of at least ten (10) feet on each side of any building excepting the street side of a corner lot, where a twenty-five (25) foot side yard shall be required.

(3) REAR YARD
There shall be a minimum rear yard of not less than fifteen (15) feet or the required landscape buffer required by Section 5.205.

(4) LOT WIDTH
The minimum lot width shall be as existed at the enactment date of this ordinance.

OUTSIDE SALES AND STORAGE
Sales, storage or warehousing of materials, goods, display cases and related items shall not be allowed outside of buildings.

LOCATION OF PARKING
No parking shall be allowed within the first fifteen (15) feet of a required front yard nor shall any parking occupy more than fifty percent of the lot width for the first fifty (50) feet of the lot measured from the front lot line. Parking forward of the first fifty (50) feet of the lot measured from the front lot line must be beside the principal building occupying the property.

CHARACTER OF PRINCIPAL USE
To achieve the objectives of this district, structures shall have a residential appearance which is in keeping, and is found by the Planning Commission, to be in keeping with existing residential structures or other structures designed for residential purposes which have been converted to commercial or mixed uses.

A family affair

Noel Smodenyak, of Norwood, helps his daughter, Karianne, make the big catch at the youth fish pond in East Park during last year's Trout Tournament.This year, Susan Dobson, owners of Michelle's will be coordinating a children's story/music hour beginning at noon on Saturday.

bring it in."

The weekend will take more of a festival look this year as events and entertainment are slated for Saturday afternoon in East Park.

At noon in front of the band shell, there will be a story/music hour geared toward young children. The first 200 children will be receiving free prizes.

"I used to teach school, so I have a repertoire of little kids songs," said Susan Dobson, owner of Michelle's, who is coordinating the day.

At 1 p.m. Bill Bellinger will give a fly fishing exhibition and at 2 p.m. the Snow Belt Chorus, a choral of 20 people, will be singing and performing skits in barbershop quartet style. Dave Wassenaar conducts the group.

Food will be available, children may fish in the trout pond, and coupon books that offer discounts at area shops can be picked up to begin another part of the voyage.

The tournament brings about 800 anglers each year. Registering for the tournament also makes contestants eligible for the bevy of prizes that will be raffled off Sunday afternoon. Fishing gear, a six-horsepower motor, a canoe, and shopping spree coupons will be among the prizes. Juilleret joked that even if you're not planning on fishing because you don't think you can win, register anyway because the prizes are all up for grabs.

This year, the tournament will also be handing out a $500 scholarship to an area student. The scholarship will be presented Sunday afternoon.

Willing contestants have until 6 p.m. Thursday, June 12, to register for the tournament at area stores where the tournament's pink flyers are displayed.

Pine Lake Regatta sailed on Round Lake

Charlevoix Yacht Club's first weekend event was held Saturday and Sunday, two days with superb racing weather and wind for the Pine Lake Regatta.

Saturday saw a rare east wind building to 12-17 knots, with sunny skies. Sunday had a more typical westward lake breeze that filled in at about 11 a.m., as the race started.

The J-24, Major Woody with John Schumacker at the helm, from Traverse City, was named the outstanding boat for the weekend. She gathered two firsts and one second. Charlevoix's Kamikaze, with Pete Funck and gang, took the Sunday race to keep Major Woody from sweeping the weekend races.

In the jib and main division, three boats tied for first after the first two races. When it was all said and done, Cheemaun came out on top, followed by Caberet and Flash.

Overall results are as follows:

Division A - Major Woody, Gotcha and Kamikaze.

Division B-J22s - H.S. Moisture Missile, Gecko and Swine Flew.

Division C - Cheemaun, Caberet and Flash.

Spinacker Overall - Major Woody, H.S. Moisture Missile and Gecko, which won in a tie breaker over Swine Flew.

Wednesday results

The Charlevoix Yacht Club finished its third race of the spring series June 4. A total of 27 boats raced in five divisions. The order finishing is as follows:

Fleet A: Gotcha!, Kamikaze, Mint Julep and Hoo-ahh.

Fleet B: Bandit, Newsense, Our Thyme II and J Hawk.

Fleet C: Original Sin, Lost Vermonter, Cygnus and Stalworth.

Fleet D: Cheemaun, Sandpiper, Cabaret, Sarah Belle, Flash, Bald Eagle, Mi Joy and Apothecary.

Fleet E: Hussy, Gecko, Swine Flew, H. S. Moisture, Paleface Lite, Reckless and Cathach.

The yacht club races each Wednesday throughout the summer.

Registration for junior golf program scheduled for June

Registration for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Summer Golf Academy is 10 a.m. Monday, June 16, at the Municipal Golf Course in Charlevoix.

Youngsters must be at least 7 years old and no older than 17. Registration procedures requires a parent or guardian be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form. There is also a registration fee of $5, which covers the first lesson and includes a golf cap. There is a per-lesson fee of $3, which covers both the instructional portion and playing section of each session.

Pros from local courses will make up the teaching staff. They include Steve Braun from the Belvedere, Marc Wilson of the Charlevoix Country Club and Joan Waha from Dunmaglas Golf Course. The emphasis again will be on teaching golf fundamentals, proper etiquette and golf procedures. There will be two sessions each week with a couple tournaments spaced throughout the 12-lesson program.

Director Dean Davenport has announced that lessons will be held on five local courses this year. This is new to this year's program, with one session each at courses Dunmaglas and Antrim Dells. Several lessons will be held at each of the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club and Municipal courses.

"We will again have scholarships available based on need and also golf potential," Davenport said. "Youngsters need not have their own clubs as some will be available at each site."

There is still a need for additional adult volunteers to serve as golf mentors. Call Davenport at 547-6433 or Nancy LaCroix at 547-6418.

Students visit local natural areas

Charlevoix Middle School sixth-grade science classes boarded buses and bounced 13 miles to the 155-acre St. Clair Lake-Six Mile Lake Natural Area recently.

Students followed the dear trails to enter the upland hardwoods where they identified leaks, wild flowers and trees. Students then descended to the transitional fields, where they sat on boulders left 10,000 years ago by receding glaciers.

In the cedar swamp, they learned about forest succession and the critical role of dead and decaying matter in the regeneration of the habitat.

Boarding the buses again, students rode to the South Arm Preserve. Led by staff of the Grand Traverse Regional Land Conservancy, students followed the boardwalk to the viewing platform and observed birds and listened to the sound of frogs, a vanishing indication of environmental health.

The students learned of how man has upset the natural balance of nature and why it's important to protect and manage natural areas.

Healing time needed

a "healing process" before plans move forward for new schools, and that there are "too many other things that need to be cleared up."

Notably, a reduction in spending, which put the district nearly half a million in the hole during the last fiscal year, a new superintendent contract, and renovations at both the high school and elementary school.

Superintendent Roberta Jackson, while disappointed the land purchase failed, was upbeat Tuesday that the district can now move forward with fixing up some long-time maintenance problems. She said the first project, replacing the high school's heating system and piping, has begun. Other repairs include asbestos removal, electrical rewiring and roof maintenance.

The one mill over six years should raise $2.4 million over the duration and nearly $400,000 in 1997.

Joy from the ability to move forward with the repairs overshadowed people's disappointment with the land failure.

"I'm really happy. It's priority No. 1," board member. Alan Telgenhof said. "I'm glad the community saw it that way."

Something the community could not see, though, were schools four miles out of the city limits. With a tally of 1,160 against to 521 for the M-66 purchase, residents were heard loud and clear about schools remaining in the heart of the city.

"That is what the board wanted to find out," board member Larry Levengood said. "The decision has been made."

Telgenhof, who supported the land purchase with voters' approval, is relieved to know what the community wants.

"A turnout like this is a positive, we now know the direction of the community," he said. "For me, I supported this site, but without community support, why buy it?"

While plans for a new facility plan appear to be taking a back seat, all facility discussions will not stop. The middle school still needs attention that isn't budgeted into the repair millage.

Other building possibilities could include buying an assortment of lots on May Street, adjacent to the bus garage for a new middle school. Access to athletic fields and other high school facilities would be next door and both new and present board members have mentioned it.

A second consideration is whether the district needs a new school location. The board will take a harder look at what can be done on the present middle school site in terms of renovation or even constructing anew on the corners of Grant and Mason.

Way, in candidate forums and after the election, even suggested eliminating a building while expanding both elementary and high schools to accommodate a K-6 and a 7-12 building.

"This will be an exciting time for the board," Telgenhof said. "These guys come in with fresh ideas and that perspective should be a positive for the board."

Bill Parton (center) was recently presented the Martin Green Memorial Scholarship for $1,000 by Terry Roeth (left), president of the American Radio Relay League. High School principal, Gary Grundman,(right) was also present. Bill was chosen based on his grades, community service and ham radio operating level.

Historic resort era differs from today's town of tourism

By Marilyn Boss
Courier columnist

Hometown Chronicles

The summer of '48 was a busy and prosperous one in Charlevoix. The war was over, and people came to town by the thousands and stayed all summer.

There used to be a sign on the side of the Parkside Dining Room that read: "Welcome to Charlevoix the beautiful, Michigan's resort city of three lakes."

My husband, Dale, was a wholesale and retail milk delivery man for Maxbauer's Dairy. The company was unable to buy any new vehicles during the war years, so he got his first new truck in 1948, which was a stand up drive Divco. It cost $4,000, the price of two Fords. It held 52 twelve-quart cases of milk.

Dale would start on the corner of Park and Bridge streets, where Vacation Properties is today, with a full load clear to the roof. When he got to the top of the beach hill, at the corner of Grant and Park, the truck would be completely empty. This is a distance of two blocks.

He would then go back to the dairy at 206 West Lincoln, and reload. Can you imagine trying to sell this much product in the entire valley today? Ed Heise's mother, Laura, ran the concession stand at the beach, where it is today. When he delivered the second load, she would take 250 half pints of white and chocolate milk in small glass bottles to get her started for the day.

The beach would literally be solid with people, from the pier to the water plant. It was usually necessary to make at least two more deliveries there to get her through the day. One of the prewar trucks had 16 flat tires one day, due to the fact that new tires couldn't be bought during the war. People put all their ashes from furnaces and wood stoves out in the alleys, and there were a lot of nails in the alleys on the north. We kept Don Meggison busy repairing tires. Instead of coming down Michigan Avenue between 10 and 11 a.m., Dale didn't make it that day until evening.

Every home on Michigan Avenue had maids, butlers and chauffeurs. There were big rooming houses on the 15-mile-per-hour corner, where they served meals, and lodging to dozens of people. The Chicago Club had the big kitchen going seven days a week, and every cottage was filled. The Belvedere Club had the big hotel on the grassy corner of Belvedere and Ferry Avenue. All the cottages were filled to capacity by their owners all summer long.

Many local kids worked as babysitters, lifeguards and wait people. It was really a different era. Many of the local townspeople rented their homes for the summer to the resorters, and they would stay in a little garage or cottage out behind, next to the alley. This was a true resort town. Every grocery store had delivery service that included ice, coal, baked goods and produce. Back in those days, it was sink or swim. If the locals didn't make it during the summer, the winter would be a long, hard one.

Thursday afternoons were the maids' days off. They would congregate under the trees in Veteran's Park, at the corner of Bridge Street and Belvedere. All the chauffeurs had use of the families' limousines for that day. Dale remembers Grady and Woody, chauffeurs from the Belvedere, playing golf on the city golf course at 4 a.m. because they had to work the rest of the day. Today, Charlevoix is a tourist town, and the resort-type town is probably just a fond memory.

Big Rock transition in process as employees trickle out of town

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Fate — not the closing of Big Rock Point nuclear power plant — will decide whether Robyn Blosh and her family stay in Charlevoix.

Robyn's husband, Wayne, is a maintenance supervisor at the plant where he's worked for 17 years.

Consumer Power Co. officials announced that the plant will not run to the end of its operating license on June 11. Big Rock Point will shut down Saturday, Aug. 30, on the 35th anniversary of its producing electricity outside Charlevoix.

> "It's official now. We were always hoping that it would go to the end, that we would get the most out of it."
> — Robyn Blosh, worker's wife

The official announcement was a reality check for the plant's 220 employees, their families and the entire community. However, people have been preparing to make career moves, accept transfers within the company and retire for years.

Like many of the employees, Blosh hopes to stay in Charlevoix. Unsure of the days ahead, her family has saved money and prepared for a move.

"It's official now," Blosh said. "We were always hoping that it would go to the end, that we would get the most out of it."

Big Rock Point's "end" was scheduled for May 31, 2000. But pending deregulation of the electrical industry and high costs at the plant have taken its life early.

Charlevoix will be effected the most by the retirement of the plant. About 85 of the plant's employees live in town. They have about 118 children who are under 18 years old who attend school here. That represents about $700,000 of state funding.

Also, the plant, surrounding 600 acres and nuclear fuel have a taxable value of about $20 million, which generates nearly $692,000 in taxes that are paid to Charlevoix schools, the library, county, intermediate school district, transit, Grandvue Medical Care Facility and Hayes Township.

During a press conference, Consumers officials stated that the work force needed to decommission the plant will grow. It is estimated that up to 300 workers

School board ignores voters

Decides to buy M-66 land

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

A week after voters refused to pay for the M-66 land by over a 2 to 1 margin, the Charlevoix school board held a private recall Monday, voting 4-3 to purchase the land by midnight June 30.

Mary Lee Campbell, Jerry Owens, Joan Buday, and Patrick McKcown, Jr., voted in favor; Allen Telgenhof, Larry Levengood and Ardeth Wieland opposed.

The vote not only came on the heels of a resounding defeat at the polls, but also during Campbell, Buday, and McKeown, Jr.'s, final meeting as board members. Campbell's term expired. Buday and McKeown, Jr., lost in their re-election bid.

Voters replaced them with Ike Boss, Scott Boss, and Barney Way, who campaigned with strong opposition toward buying the land.

Ike Boss said Tuesday that a court injunction is being sought in hopes of preventing the purchase of the land until after they take office July 1.

During the meeting, a report was given on the land that stated that a septic system there could support one school. To have greater demand would require applying for a special permit or alternative sewer system.

Monday evening Ike Boss was glaring at the board during the debate and vote, standing with arms crossed

Superintendent finalist for new job

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Charlevoix could be looking for a new superintendent as soon as Monday.

Superintendent, Roberta Jackson, is one of three finalists being considered by Carman-Ainsworth Public Schools for as superintendent. A decision from the Flint area school board could come down Monday, June 23.

Jackson has visited the district for interviews, met with district administrators, school board members and some teachers, she said.

> "If she found something else and wanted to move, she's free to do so."
> — Allen Telgenhof, board vice president

"It's an exciting opportunity," Jackson said Monday, the day representatives from Flint Township came to Charlevoix for a "home visit."

Jackson's contract was not extended by the school board this spring. However, if she chooses, she has two years left at the helm of Charlevoix's schools.

"We're obligated to her, but she's not obligated to us," said Allen Telgenhof, board vice president. "If she found something else and wanted to move, she's free to do so."

To further investigate Jackson's qualifications for the job downstate, representatives from the suburb school visited Charlevoix Monday. They met with school board members, teachers, students and community members.

Bob Kvasnica, a guidance counselor from the school of 6,500 students, was among the visitors. He said the Carman-Ainsworth superintendent has moved to the

Charlevoix teacher gives up Africa for 'his kids'

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Tom Shelton is giving up the chance to go to North Africa for "his kids."

"Charlevoix schools and the community of Charlevoix have been really good to me," he said. "I didn't want to stick them with a less than ideal situation."

The high school's French teacher was recently awarded Fulbright Fellowship for the 1997-98 academic year. The annual U.S. government award is for research, teaching or graduate study in other lands. More than 100 countries participate in the program.

However, the original exchange was to happen with a teacher from France. When that teacher canceled for personal reasons, Shelton was offered a chance to travel to Senegal, Africa.

Shelton

He spent two weeks considering the offer. He called the five past recipients of an exchange with Senegal teachers.

"They all had a great experience in Africa," Shelton said. However, they all returned to difficult situations at their home schools. The African teachers who replaced them were not used to teaching as many hours a week, were less strict on discipline and were accustomed to class sizes of 100 students or more.

Shelton has been in Charlevoix for two years. During that time, he has worked to establish a strong French program. He taught six classes during the 1996-97 school year.

"It was a tough decision," he said about not leaving for the coming school year. "The best thing for Charlevoix was to turn down the exchange and stay here. I didn't want to put them (his students) in a bad position for a year with a teacher they were not happy with."

Going through a competitive field to be awarded the Fulbright wasn't Shelton's only obstacle to heading to foreign lands. Because of a state law that prohibits teachers to accept exchange offers until they have been with a district three years, legislators had to fight for change in Lansing.

They did, and they won.

Legislation was passed June 11 to allow Shelton to go. It eliminates the three-year seniority restriction.

Even though he isn't taking advantage of the opportunity, Shelton continues to support the passage of the bill. This change allows exchange decisions to be made by the local school boards.

The bill was backed by the Michigan Education Association, the Michigan Department of Education, and area state representatives and senators.

"Hopefully, it will benefit someone else in a similar situation," Shelton said of the bill's passage. I felt that law as it was was kind of pointless. A decision like that should be left to the individual school board."

Shelton still considers himself honored to have been chosen for the Fulbright, which took five letters of recommendation and hours of personal interviews in French and German. And he isn't sorry that he'll be staying in the city of three lakes.

For him, this wasn't a now-or-never chance. He will pursue other opportunities to travel and further his education.

"My mother always says that everything happens for a reason," he said. "So I'm sure I was meant to be in Charlevoix next year."

Events in brief

Survival show to be held

A Water Survival Show will be given at Charlevoix Community Pool from 6:30-10 p.m. Friday, June 27.

Information presented will include facts not generally known about the lakes which surround Charlevoix and tips on safe water recreation.

David Smith, retired from the U.S. Coast Guard, will conduct demonstrations and answer questions about saving lives and enjoying the local water wonderland. He has developed a special educational program for water and boating safety.

The show is sponsored by Charlevoix Kiwanis, U.S. Coast Guard and auxiliary, Charlevoix Mariners, Irish Boat Shop, Charlevoix Yacht Club and others.

Admission is $2 for adults, $1 per child or $5 per family.

Students sought for early head start

Northwest Michigan Human Services is recruiting families for its new Early Head Start program. The program will serve prenatal mothers and families with children from birth to 3 years old through home visits. The program stresses early childhood development and family development through education, resources and support services.

For more information or to register, call 1 (800) 632-7334.

Fund to help fire victim

A fund has been set up at Charlevoix State Bank for Susan Withee, the renter who lost her apartment and belongings during the Godwin/Chulick fire on Antrim Street in May. Susan has been employed at the Weathervane Restaurant for several years.

Donations to help her re-establish herself can be made at the bank.

Beach program educates kids

Kids at Ferry Beach is a program by the Charlevoix Recreation Department for children ages 2 through 12 beginning Monday, June 30. For $5 an hour, with a two hour minimum from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Mondays-Fridays, kids can gather at Ferry Beach for classes with "Miss Liz."

Supplies are included as the children endeavor to learn painting, candle making, tie dying, candy pinatas, tile mosaics and more.

Girl Scouts, day cares and birthday parties are welcome. For reservations, call 547-9766.

Items wanted for benefit yard sale

New Hope Support Group would like donations of clean, good-working items for a fund-raising yard sale Friday, July 25.

Items may be dropped off at Bergmann Activity Center, 08855 Martin Road, from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, or call 549-2336 or 549-3750 for weekend drop off by Monday, July 21.

The sale will take place at the Bergmann center.

Concert to benefit Camp Quality

A benefit concert starring Jeff Carson will be held for Camp Quality from 7-9 p.m. Friday, June 20, in the Gaylord Intermediate School gym.

The doors open at 6 p.m.

Advance tickets are $8. They can be purchased at Record World in Petoskey and Michelle's in Charlevoix. Tickets at the door are $10.

Camp Quality is an annual camp held at Camp Daggett for children with cancer and their siblings.

Future problem solvers 25th in world

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

In the ultimate battle of the brains, the future problem solvers' world championship was held over the weekend in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan.

While the Charlevoix quartet of Shaun MacMillan, Laurel English, Tyler Lieberman, and Joel Trubilowicz — who won the Michigan State Championship — could not duplicate their feat, they still placed 25th out of 57 teams. They placed in the top half of all the 50 states that sent their champions, as well as foreign countries who sent teams. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and New South Wales sent contingents. A team from Australia took first place.

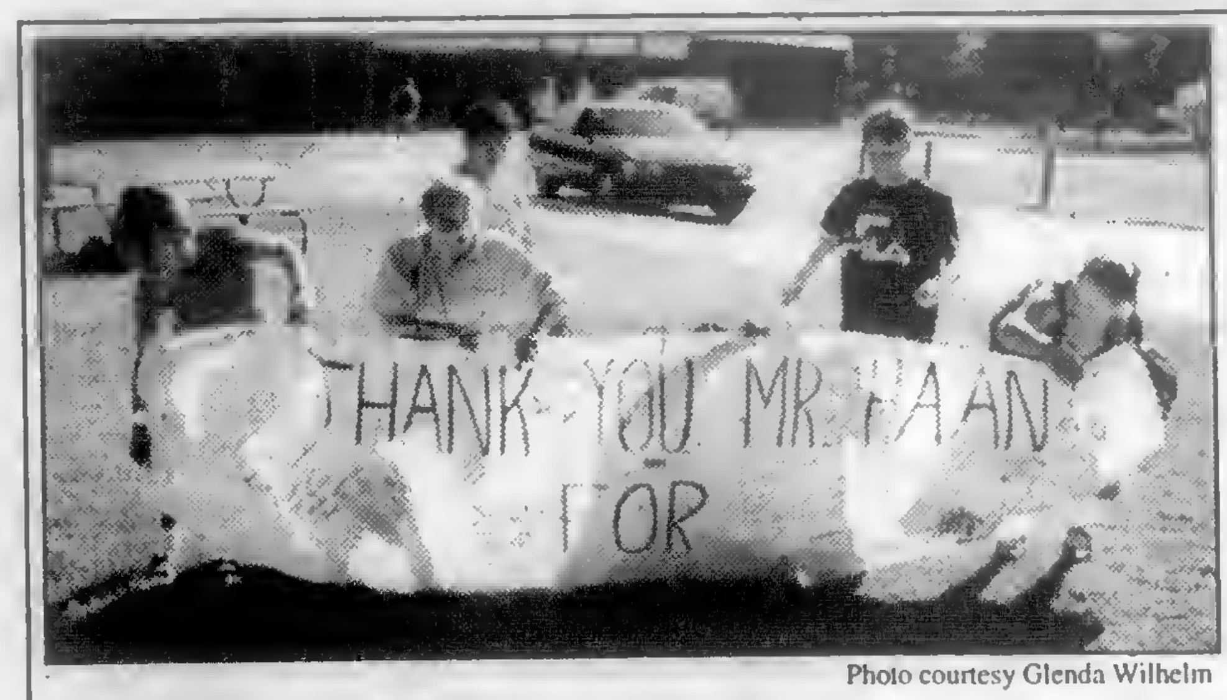
"It was a monster event," coach Tom Sothard said. "There were over 2,000 people from all over the place. It was a great time."

The topic for this world title was the extension of the lifespan and the problems it would pose.

Sothard explained that the team's solution was to establish a bridge between the community and those residents of the nursing home whose lifespan has been extended. They proposed setting up a database where the elders could promote all the skills and knowledge they have acquired during a lifetime. Anyone who wants to tap into that knowledge as the years go by could do so through virtual reality, holographic projections or a website.

While the weekend was spent in intense deliberations, fun did find a way of sneaking in. The crew from Charlevoix spent Sunday afternoon at Greenfield village, and Saturday night there was a mixer for those in attendance. Teams traded pins, pennants, and pens to commemorate the event. Charlevoix handed out visors and yo-yos which next to the cheesehead hats from Wisconsin, were the most desired items.

"It was a neat experience, university atmospheres are always stimulating," Sothard said.



THANK YOU MR. HAAN FOR

Like many classes at the elementary school, John Haan's fifth-grade class honored him at year-end. They made him a banner, gave gift certificates and wrote letters of thanks. "Thanks for making my last year in the elementary school so special. You're cool, great and good in b-ball," Shayna Drost wrote.

Fifth-graders honored at graduation

The fifth-grades were honored Friday during a ceremony to recognize their stepping beyond elementary school.

During graduation, the students were given diplomas and advice on how to be successful in middle school and beyond, presented awards and sang to their teachers and parents.

The following awards were some of those given during the ceremony: Excellence in prop crew for the 1997 musical - Marie Elliott, Nick Tripplehorn, Mike Curiel and Brian Christensen.

Visual arts - Justin Mosley, Brian Eggers, Joshua Mosley, Linda Smith and Brooke Blanchard.

Library murals - Bryce Daly, Derek Wilson and Keith Warner.

Achievements in art - Marie Elliott, Kelly Hand, Tom Wilhelm and Mike Curiel.

Calculators were given to Tyler Hoffman, Cody Priess, Michael Lemond, Marie Elliott, Anna Kate Trubilowicz, Libby Campbell, Denise Barta, Dustin Dutcher, Amanda Boss and Will Granath for scoring high on the math portion of the MEAP tests.

Josh Carter, John Wilkenson and Nick Tripplehorn were recognized for perfect attendance. Achievement awards were also given out by the teachers to their specific students.

In turn, students spent the final day of school thanking fifth-grade teachers for all their hard work.

New county commissioners axe administrator idea

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The search for a county administrator has taken the county down many rocky and winding roads, but its latest turn has lead smack into a dead end.

During a committee of the whole meeting June 9, board members interviewed Russell Martin for the position. Martin, who had worked for the city of Toledo as a finance director from 1994-96, was appearing before the board and other county employees for the first time, but he had previous interviews with the county's personnel committee.

In an informal straw vote after the interview, three board members — Phil Johnson, Carl Price, and James Behling — said yes they would hire him. Shirley Roloff, Joan Blanchard and Vic Patrick voted no.

The deadlock vote, said the naysayers, had more to do with the position than the actual applicant.

Blanchard said her constituents didn't want the county to hire an administrator and that she wasn't convinced of its necessity.

"We have a lot of money, we could hire an expert along the way whenever we need one," she said. "It would cost a lot less, I think, in the long run."

Patrick said that while most of the county's department heads didn't want another boss, his disagreement with the position was an aesthetic one.

"We're a bit more grass roots and closer to the people," he said. "We don't need an organizer or a go-between between us and them."

Patrick did say in the future he might support a comptroller-type position.

Roloff had been against an administrator since before taking office in January. She pointed out that of the 13 department heads, eight are elected officials.

"How can an administrator tell elected people what to do," she asked her fellow board members in a March meeting discussing of the position's job description.

She said by the time benefits and salary were paid, the position would cost more than $100,000, a high expense for a position of questionable need.

As Patrick said, "There are other things we need a lot worse than an administrative position."

Commission chairman Johnson has long supported the position and said it would have been nice to at least try to work with an administrator.

The plan was to hire Russell to an "at-will" contract requiring 60 days notice for the county to remove him from his job.

"As a county that generates over $7 million, we need someone here on a daily basis that will run the show," he said. "I don't know of any business that generates that that does not have a CEO."

He said the position might save money and upgrade service, but that unless commissioners change their views, the issue is over.

"You win some, you lose some," he said.

The board's next meeting is at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 25, in chambers adjacent to the county clerk's office in the county building.

OPINIONS

School board violates voters by rash act on M-66 land

The school board has violated the community's trust to the core.

By railroading through a resolution to buy the M-66 land before the new board members take office, the board has committed credibility suicide.

The voters clearly said NO June 9 by a 2 to 1 margin that they do not want the district's future schools built on the 117 acres across from Castle Farms. Regretfully, the board did not act on what their constituents want, but on what they want.

Four board members have forgotten the responsibility they accepted when becoming representatives of the public. They are not out shopping for their own wardrobe. They are spending taxpayers' money on 117 acres that they already said they didn't want.

EDITORIAL

The land purchase, which passed 4-3, was backed by three members who will be leaving the board June 30 — Joan Buday, Pat McKeown, Jr., and Mary Lee Campbell — and one that has one year of experience — Jerry Owens. What is worse, McKeown told the voters prior to his losing the election that he would not go against voters' wishes on the land.

What happened?

Following the election, a newly elected school board member, who has yet to take office, said that Charlevoix needs some healing time. Rather than allow that to happen, four board members have driven a stake into the heart of the community.

The decision didn't just violate the voters, it raises concerns over the picture that has been painted about the fiscal soundness of the district. After months, years, of crying wolf about budget shortfalls, declining enrollment and increasing costs to educate students, the board voted to stea $170,000 worth of education fron Charlevoix's youth.

The resolution stated that the land woul be paid for by Monday, June 30. What teach er will be laid off? What books won't get re placed? How much more of the general fun balance will be consumed so that sore loser can have their way? Exactly what will be le by the wayside?

The price of buying this land goes far be yond than $170,000. We know it will neve be worth the destruction that is happening i Charlevoix today.

Letters to the editor

Blood drive surpasses goal

Editor:

I wish to thank the Charlevoix community for the outstanding support of the Red Cross Blood Drive on June 12. The patience and understanding of the donors during the very busy afternoons is greatly appreciated.

One again our goal was met and surpassed! This would not have been possible without the cooperation of the city employees who raised the banner over Bridge Street, Oleson's Foods for donating the beverages, and the many volunteers who worked in various capacities before and during the blood drive.

I am looking forward to seeing and working with all of you at the next community blood drive on Thursday, Sept. 25.

Tremendous thanks to each volunteer and each donor in this lifesaving effort!

Sincerely,
Ellen Schuiling
Charlevoix Coordinator

Americans should remember their roots

Editor:

"The presence of immigrants in the work force is raising the living standards of most Americans by a small amount," according to the recently released report by the National Research Council, a non-partisan organization devoted to scholarly research.

Economic data, according to the National Research Council, additionally shows that immigrants pay more in federal taxes than they collect in government services.

The report points out that these figures are nationwide and in that specific areas, such as California, where there are large numbers of impoverished immigrants, the stress on government services is not balanced by other economic factors.

The most important conclusion to be drawn from this thoughtful and factual report is that the question of immigration is complex and must be addressed nationally without the emotional overtones of immigrant bashing or ethnic finger-pointing.

Since our first non-Native American ancestors arrived on this continent, immigration has been an issue of concern to those who came first.

The history of immigrant bashing is sadly parallel to our history of discrimination against Native Americans.

Not long after the European immigrants began pushing Native Americans off their lands, imperiling their environment, and upending their economy, these same immigrants denounced the immigrations of Irish escaping the potato famine, the Italians seeking a better life, the Jews escaping the continuous pogroms of Europe, the Chinese who came to build the railroads, and the central and eastern Europeans seeking religious freedoms.

Yet just as this most recent study has discovered, we immigrants, in all our varied hues and with all our divergent systems of beliefs, have given this country not only economic vitality, but the determination to protect the human rights that distinguish us.

If burgeoning populations and over-exploitation of resources imperil the world, it will do us no good to build barricades. It will take a global perspective to help save the planet.

The current wave of anti-immigrant sentiment, including newspaper advertisements, does not add to thoughtful discussion of solutions. Unless we are 100 percent Native American, we would do well to remember our own heritages and what some of our ancestors went through when they arrived here, many of them penniless, poorly educated, but full of hope and determination to build a decent life.

Sincerely,
Sara Gay Dammann

Congrats on passing school repair millage

Editor:

On behalf of the newly formed child advocacy group, Build A Brighter Future, Invest in Charlevoix Children, I would like to congratulate the Charlevoix teachers, students, parents, and volunteers for a job well done.

Briefly, I would like to cite a sampling of the accomplishments of the various people involved with the public schools in Charlevoix: The elementary school now enjoys new, exciting and safe playground equipment, the enrichment program now offers foreign language, a summer writing workshop; crafts, and dance, and the STAR and DARE programs continue to guide the students.

The middle school provides the community with pride by donating canned goods more so than ever, as well as donating personal funds to buy a brick for the new community pool. The eighth-graders were fortunate to share a morning with local business leaders, employees, and the self-employed to learn about their various careers. "Hats off" to our high schoolers for an outstanding performance on the proficiency tests — out-scoring many local schools in many areas. Secondly, our extra-curricular participants continue to bring pride through their quality performance — both in and out of the classroom.

I would like to congratulate the community on passing the millage for the needed repairs in the elementary and high schools. Congratulations to the new school board members — Scott Boss, Barney Way and Ike Boss. Myself and other members of Build A Brighter Future, Invest in Charlevoix Children look forward to working together to continue to create the best school system available to the children of Charlevoix — our most important assets.

Sincerely,
Marie Buday

EDITH

EDITH GILBERT

Many people grow nostalgic on the Fourth of July. Some may recall family picnics of their youth. Others may remember trimming their bicycles with flags to ride in a parade. Some of us may recall the arrival of the summer train, the "Resort Special," whistling across the old railroad bridge. And some sailors may still miss the old landmark water tower.

My Fourth of July memories always dwell on the magnificent strawberry preserve that my mother-in-law's cook, Mary, used to prepare on this holiday weekend. Her jars of homemade strawberry preserve were fit for Tiffany's window! Each strawberry puffed up like a huge, sparkling ruby and floated in a clear red liquid, whose sweet fragrance made one's mouth water and one's spirits soar!

The berries were served with toast or muffins, and even as a sauce over ice cream.

In tracking the recipe, I note that it was passed on to us by the late Vi Ranger of Charlevoix, a legendary and renowned cook. In six brief sentences, Vi guides us through this intricate, almost sacred ritual.

She states simply, "wash berries." What she doesn't say is that one traditionally first went to hand-pick the best berries on what used to be the Durance farm just outside of town.

Then we are told to pick the stems off the berries the night before and soak them in sugar — a cup of berries to a cup of sugar. The next morning, we put the sugared berries in a kettle and bring the mixture to a boil for about 14 minutes. Remove foam. So far so good. From here, the directions are a bit on the loose side. We are told to add lemon juice, a half a lemon per quart of berries. Need I remind you that four cups equals a quart? Also I ought to suggest that you stir — but as the old time cooks used to say, "everybody knows that!" Then we boil the mixture all together for another minute.

Here comes the tricky part. We put the berries in large, flat platters and place the platters in the sun for 24 hours, stirring occasionally, according to Vi.

Again, what the directions don't tell us is that the platters are put on folding card tables and that under each leg of the table you need to place a dish of water. This prevents ants from crawling up onto the platters. One also needs to cover the platters with a tent of cheesecloth to prevent bugs from landing in the strawberry preserve. One can use small stones to anchor the cheesecloth and keep it from blowing away.

On the third day we are merely told to "put in jars cold, and add paraffin." Now that's all well and good if one is an experienced cold-time canner.

Today's cookbook directions demand much more detailed instructions. Thus, what we really need to be told is the exact process of putting cold strawberry preserve into sterilized jars. (To sterilize jars, cover with water and boil for 15 minutes). Forget the paraffin. This method is no longer recommended.

Today's approved method is to put the cold preserve into clean one-pint jars, next put clean self-sealing lids on top and then screw the rings on firmly. So do not use rusty rings. Put the jars in a Hot Water Bath Canner, which is a large kettle with a cover, and a wire rack that keeps the cans off the bottom and prevents them from cracking. Add enough water to cover the jars. Bring water to a boil and lower jars into the canner, placing them about two inches apart. Cover. Cook for 15 minutes with the top on to seal the lids. Using tongs, (There are special canning tongs available) carefully lift out jars and cool on a rack or towel. To be sure the jam is properly sealed, test by lightly punching the top. If it pops up, it is not sealed, and these should be used first or reprocessed.

Finally, we proudly label the jars and store them in a cool, dark place, only to be brought forth for a special occasion. Of course, one ought to tell the story to one's guests, describing in elaborate detail how one came by this cherished recipe. It may even be wise to share a copy of the recipe with one's friends. Chances are they will never go to all this trouble to make strawberry preserve, but at least they will appreciate what you have offered them. Bon appetit!

Local art exhibit Friday

Christina Hahn

A solo exhibition of recent work by Charlevoix artist, Christina Hahn, will be featured during a reception from 5:30-8 p.m. Friday, June 20, in the loft at Therapeutic Massage of Charlevoix, 310 W. Robinson.

Hahn is a junior art student at Kendall School of Art and Design in Grand Rapids, where she earned a scholarship to pursue a fine arts degree. She is a president's list scholar and the winner of an educational grant from the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair committee and a continuing recipient of the Roberts Foundation grant.

Hahn will leave in July to study in London. She is a Charlevoix High School graduate, and is the seventh generation of her family to excel in artistic endeavors. Her sister, Natalie Hahn-Bradley, and mother, Christa-Marie are working artists.

Hahn's chosen field is fine art, especially painting and drawing, but she also has excelled in jewelry-making and other artforms.

Wedding

Angela L. Lambert and Dennis E. Clark were joined in marriage May 17 before about 150 guests at Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix.

Angela is the daughter of Jon and Patricia Easterwood, and the late Hugh Lambert, of Charlevoix. Dennis is the son of Mary Ann Sadowski of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Clark of Reed City, Mich.

During the wedding the altar was graced with flower arrangements, a unity candle, wicker baskets adorned with flowers and trailing ivy.

Pastor Walter Kreger, of Bellaire, performed the double-ring rites.

Angela was escorted down the aisle by her stepfather, Jon Easterwood. She wore a wedding dress with a sweetheart neckline, bodice embellished with lace, pearls and sequins, long sleeves and lace appliques. The multi-layered tulle skirt was highlighted with re-embroidered lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of Queen Anne's lace, gerber daisies, and pink and white tulips.

Music was provided by organist, Susan Guy, and soloist, Jackie Alward.

The maid of honor was D'arcie Moore, friend of the bride. Bridemaids were Sandy Clark, sister of the groom, and Katie Simmons, friend of the bride from Lake Orion, Mich. They wore Jeffrey & Dara Periwinkle empire waist dresses with princess seams, and pearled and sequined V-back. They carried pink and white tulips.

Flower girl was Whitney Drost. Ring bearer was Wyatt Drost.

Best man was Larry Drost, friend of the groom from Charlevoix. Groomsmen were Denny Curtis, Charlevoix, and Gordy Allers, Morley, Mich., both friends of the groom.

Ushers were David Clark, brother of the groom, and Bobby Sharrow, friend of the groom, both of Charlevoix.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at the Argonne Supper Club. It was hosted by Brad and Debbie Sweet, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Lambert - Clark

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents, was held at Nanny's May 16.

A honeymoon was taken in Ocho Rios, Jamaica.

The couple are making their home in Charlevoix.

Dennis is a certified public accountant at Professional Tax Service in Petoskey. Angela owns her own day care and is a waitress at the Argonne Supper Club.

Maria Seaman and Anne Schairbaum, both of Charlevoix, have been named to the dean's list at Hope College for their academic achievements during the spring 1997 semester. Both students had at least a 3.5 grade point average.

Amy VanGuilder has been named to the dean's list at Calvin College in Grand Rapids for the spring 1997 semester. She is the daughter of Dennis and Dianne VanGuilder, of Charlevoix, and had to earn a grade point average of at least 3.5 to qualify.

New pool gets grant for free passes

A grant of $1,200 has been made by the Alyce Lesser Memorial Fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for elementary school children of the Charlevoix School District for water safety instruction. It will enable students to participate in Whales Tales, an American Red Cross program.

The grant will provide a free swim pass to the new Charlevoix Community Pool as a reward for all K-5 students who complete the course. The course emphasizes eight rules of water safety.

About 650 children toured the pool recently, capping a week of classes in water safety.

The official opening date of the pool is expected to be announced soon after inspection by health department officials.

Local grad honored

Wallace

Rebecca Wallace, daughter of Jeannine Wallace and the late Lawrence Wallace, recently received two degrees from the John Marshall Law School in Chicago.

"They told me she's the only person to graduate with two degrees in three years," her mother said.

A 1986 Charlevoix High School graduate, the 28-year-old earned a legal degree in tax law and a juris doctorate in law, after receiving a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University and becoming a certified public accountant in Colorado.

Wallace plans to return to Denver, Colo., where she will study for the Colorado Bar Exam.

Library begins summer program

The Charlevoix Public Library will be presenting the time step players doing scenes from "Huck Finn" as the opening party for this year's summer reading program.

The annual reading program begins at 2 p.m. Thursday, June 19. The opening party will include games and treats.

Kids will be given a book log to keep track of the books they read over the summer. The program is not a contest, but is meant to encourage summer reading. The program is open to all elementary school-age children.

The library offers a story hour for preschool children ages 3-5 at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday mornings. For more information, call Marybeth at 547-2651.

Australian youth minister joins Charlevoix church for summer

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene welcomes Toni Smith to town. As of June 15, she will help in children's and youth programs for the summer.

Smith is Australian coming from Perth in Western Australia. Her effort through the church will focus on encouragement and prayer.

Initially, she made contact with the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene through the Internet. The church has a site on the World Wide Web (http://www.freeway.net/nazarene/ or http://www.nnd-naz.org/char/), where she became interested in their ministry to the youth.

With a strong Christian faith and a heart for the youth, she mentioned in one contact, "The youth that attended a camp a weekend ago gave their testimonies on Sunday morning and evening, and it blessed me right out of my socks. God had opened their minds to see that He is more than just religion, but a God who is real and who loves. It was so amazing, a vision that I have had for this group since I met them a year ago. It is exciting. They are so open to what God wants to do in their lives. I want that for your youth as well."

Finally, through much prayer and reference letters, it was decided that she would come to Charlevoix for the summer to be of any help she could with the children and youth. Some of her activities will be teaching the teen Sunday School class, developing a weekly reading program for children and assisting during Sunday morning services.

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene invites anyone in the community to come and meet Toni Smith in person. For more information call 547-5711.

Church briefs

March for Jesus to be held in town

Christians from all churches in Charlevoix and the surrounding area will come together once again to demonstrate oneness in the one God they serve during the annual March for Jesus at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, June 21.

Participants are asked to gather in the south end of Kmart parking lot and bring banners lifting up the name of Jesus. Those unable to march are encouraged to join the processional when it arrives in East Park. For more information, call 547-9896.

Choir ministering at Congregational church

The St. Paul Gospel Choir from the United Church of Christ in Saline, Mich., will participate in the 10 a.m. worship service at the First Congregational UCC, 101 State Street on June 22.

Formed in 1991 as an outreach ministry of music, the choir has sung extensively throughout the state at church and community events. The group of 30 consists of all-age singers who music has wide-ranging appeal.

The public is invited. A congregational picnic will be held in the church yard afterward.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

The phone rang in my office. The voice on the other end of the line said, "Pastor Hamilton, the Lord has opened the door for me to go to the mission field, and I'd like to have a chance to share my story with your people." We talked for awhile about the opportunity. I knew the name, but for some reason, I just couldn't put a face with it. The more I listened, the more I knew I wanted to hear her share, so we arranged for her to speak to us this past Sunday night.

I did not realize that she was a Charlevoix native. She and her late husband have given of themselves to this community in countless ways. I did not remember, until she came through the door, that I had worked with her during my tenure on the board of directors at CHIP Counseling. When it dawned on me that her husband had managed the Rainbow Shoppe almost from the beginning, I knew I wanted to do what I could to encourage her.

She has the opportunity to go to far eastern Russia with a group known as the Co-Mission. It is an alliance of over 50 church and faith communions that have been sending teachers, missionaries, and just plain folks to share the gospel since 1992. Our own church family helped a couple go there several years ago, so we were already somewhat familiar with the program.

She told me that she had never spoken to a group outside her own church family before and that she was very nervous. I reminded her that we were all a part of God's family. We had a "summer Sunday salad supper" that night, and her sitting down to eat with us helped her feel more at home.

She began by sharing about her family. Her pride in her two grown children was obvious. Her memories of her life with her husband were sweet. What was fascinating was to hear her share how she had felt "the Lord's tugging" on her heart concerning missions for a number of years, but never feeling clear to respond to it until now. She showed us a video whose message had touched her so deeply that she decided to respond. We saw faces in Russia who clearly were changed by the love of God that members of the Co-Mission team had shared with them. We saw young men and women who talked openly about the need within their own hearts to go and follow the Lord's call to Russia in this special way.

You could see tears sneak into the corners of our friend's eyes as she talked about how all the doors had been opened to her. The support her own church family had given her had really moved her but it was going to take more than just one group standing behind her to help her make it on her own half a world away for a year.

She spoke of what she hoped to teach and share. She hopes to find someone that will help her with a lap-top computer and modem that will let her keep in touch with Charlevoix while she is gone. She spoke of missing her husband and yet now being free to share the loving faith they both had.

Jan Spurgeon will he leaving this September to spend that year sharing Christ in Russia. She is a truly gifted and caring lady who will make a difference for the Lord. If you'd like to support her, give her a call. It's not often that we have a personal opportunity to stand by one of our own like this, and I'm excited at what God is giving one of Charlevoix's daughters a chance to do! We love you Jan!

Businesses await more workers for summer rush

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

These days, the most common signs hung in display windows of local businesses do not announce a sale, show-off inventory or highlight daily food specials.

Instead it is a simple "Help Wanted" sign. As businesses head into their money season, they're doing so short-staffed. With the lack of people applying within, many owners are worried.

Harbor Cafe, for example, has a sign on their window offering available positions throughout the restaurant. Despite offering to pay $7 an hour for a dishwasher, they have not received one application.

Schools are just now out, and the wave of summer residents is only beginning to gain momentum. Most businesses expect to still fill their openings. For now, though, many are going through the season's first stage short-staffed.

"We have a plethora of positions, but there is not a plethora of people who want the work," said Bill Shelton, co-owner of Village Inn Pizza.

In addition to V.I.P. and Harbor Cafe, Molly's, Anchors, Mettlers and Compulsive Cravings all have help wanted signs proclaiming the availability of various part- and full-time positions.

"We have a plethora of positions, but there is not a plethora of people who want the work."
— Bill Shelton, co-owner of Village Inn Pizza

Shelton said summers go in "peaks" for available work force, and that this summer may be a valley. He said that attitudes have changed recently in parents' minds about making their children work at an earlier age and that people are taking more of a 'enjoy your free time attitude.'

"We're not seeing the new people who come up looking for jobs," he said. "Everyone up here, though, is working."

Pat Marshall, manager of Anchors, has a different problem hiring summer staff. Usually just two people are needed through much of the year to tend to the store, but the staff leaps to seven strong when summer hits.

However, she said, they don't need as much help until July, and by that time most of the people available have found summer employment.

"We anticipate hiring throughout the summer just to fill in the gaps," she said.

Full-time help is harder to find for the summer, Marshall said, because many workers take on more than one job, such as retail in the afternoon and waitressing in the evening.

"It makes it really hard to schedule who goes where at what time," she said.

Shelton agreed, saying he sees college kids working a few jobs in order to take it easy a little bit during the school year. Despite openings now, though, he expects that by July, his staff will be full.

Business in brief

Charlevoix Country Club hosts Business After hours

Charlevoix's Business After Hours will be held from 5-7 p.m. Thursday, June 19, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

The activity is being sponsored by Pat McKeown Ford Lincoln/Mercury and LLH Graphics.

United Way has new executive administrator

Char-Em United Way has appointed Juli Way Fryczynski as executive administrator, effective June 7.

Fryczynski

Fryczynski was previously employed by the Petoskey law firm of Plunkett & Cooney as a paralegal.

"We are very pleased to welcome Juli to the Char-Em United Way," said Ellen Zienert, United Way Board President. "She brings a wealth of community knowledge and organizational skills to our organization."

A native of Charlevoix, Fryczynski lives in Petoskey with her husband, Gary, and their four children.

Contributions to the Char-Em United Way this year currently total $182,000, which is 93 percent of their goal.

"We are encouraged by the level of contributions this year since it represents the largest total in our history," Zienert said.

State grant to help county's displaced workers

State Rep. Beverly Bodem, R-Alpena, announced Monday the approval of a $174,537 grant to help dislocated workers in several northern Michigan counties — including Charlevoix.

The Michigan Jobs Commission awarded the funds to the Northwest Michigan Council of Governments, a Michigan Works agency based in Traverse City.

The grant helps the agency train and place dislocated workers into unsubsidized employment.

"Getting people back into the work force remains our top priority," Bodem said. "This will help local residents received the training they need to return to work."

Summer recreation leagues begin play

This week play begins in both the men's and women's slow-pitch softball city recreation leagues.

Six teams make up the men's league: Boss, Boss & Boss managed by Wayne Boss; Pat McKeown Ford, managed by Don Jess; Grey Gables, managed by Boogie Carlson; J. Arnold Painting, managed by Brandon Kanoff; U.S.C.G.C. Acacia, managed by Troy Kunas; and C.P.I., managed by Steve Bourdo.

The season began Tuesday, June 17, with contests pitting Boss, Boss &Boss vs. C.P.I., McKeown Ford vs. Acacia, and Grey Gables vs. J. Arnold Painting. On Thursday, June 19, Boss,Boss&Boss will play Acacia at 6:30 p.m., C.P.I. matches with J. Arnold Painting at 7:30 p.m., and McKeown Ford squares off with Grey Gables at 8:30 p.m.

Men's play will continue every Tuesday and Thursday through Thursday, Aug. 7.

Seven teams comprise this summer's women's league: Skyline Erectors/Nanny's, managed by Doretta Anderson; Kilwin's of Charlevoix, managed by Mick Walker; Sladek Builder/Mathers Ford, managed by Joe Sladek; Oma's Breakfast Club, managed by Scott Kehrer; Boyne Valley Hydroseed, managed by Kim Steur; Kwikie Duplicating, managed by Terri Hodge; and Waterfront Salon, managed by Vickie Seymour.

Opening night was Monday with games pitting Kilwin's and Waterfront, Sladek/Mathers and Kwikie, and Oma's Breakfast and Boyne-Valley Hydroseed. Wednesday, June 18, Skyline/Nanny's begin play against Kwikie at 6:30 p.m.; Kilwin's vs. Boyne Valley Hydroseed at 7:30 p.m.; Sladek/Mathers vs. Oma's Breakfast Club at 8:30 p.m. Waterfront does not play.

The ladies play Monday and Wednesday with the season ending Wednesday, July 30.

Rain-outs in both leagues will be played on the next available Friday or Saturday.

Grey Gables won the 1997 preseason men's slo-pitch softball tournament by sweeping three games last week. They defeated Boss, Boss & Boss 11-9, J. Arnold Painting 20-5 and 18-16. The tournament, sponsored by the city's recreational department, was double elimination. Grey Gables are: (Back, from left) Boogie Carlson, Cris Havens, Doug Waha, Mark Clum and Tim Volovsek. (Front, from left) Brian Wilmot, Robert Russell, Kris Bartling, Dave McCormic and Brian VanLoo. Not pictured are Kyle Smith and Gary Leitner.

Board member blames senior citizens for millage loss

as if an official just called a cheap foul on one of his Lady Lancers.

"You have just killed any chance that this district has of passing any bond issue for any new buildings," he barked as the voting ended.

Owens quickly retorted, "Nobody sir has done more harm to the district than your brother," referring to a letter to the editor that Dale Boss submitted to various newspapers.

Owens brought the motion to the floor saying: "Without vision, people perish."

Citing negative press and low overall voter turnout, Owens said about 65 percent of the voters in the election were senior citizens opposed probably because "we wanted to levy a tax."

"Most of us here still think this is still the best option we have," he said.

Owens called upon local realtor, Bob Kern, to explain some of the other sites the board looked at, notably the property on May Street.

Kern explained that originally a 13-acre area has been squeezed to nine acres with a 24-unit apartment complex being built on one side and a credit union on the other. An easement would be needed from the supermarket to build. Costs to buy would be $600,000, plus demolition costs for some houses.

"I'm not saying it couldn't be done, but expect hard feelings," Kern told the board.

Kern said other sites were wet, lacked water service, expensive, and, in some cases, owners were unwilling to sell.

The issue Monday wasn't the validity of other sites, but whether or not to buck the voters' mandate in midnight-hour fashion.

Levengood said the voters made it clear they did not want schools that far out of town. Telgenhof said he could not support the motion since the June 9 vote was clearly against it.

Wieland said to buy the land would be destroying the support of the community that the board has been desperately attempting to win.

While Buday, Owens, and Campbell's votes came as little surprise, it was McKeown, Jr.'s, vote which raised eyebrows. Appointed as a temporary trustee March 17, his vote on April 7 was the deciding vote to put the land issue before voters.

On May 20 during a candidate forum, McKeown, Jr., was asked what he would do in this exact scenario.

"The voters are in charge," he said. "The next step would be to find a better parcel of land. There are many different options and the voters need to be in charge of that decision."

Monday night, however, he sang a different tune. He seconded Owens' motion and called the May Street property "a local drug area for the last 20 years."

The audience was emotional.

Diane Priess, a elementary school teacher, spoke with a quivering voice as she defended her father, Dale Boss, and listed off names of well-respected citizens living in the so-called drug neighborhood.

"I'm offended that my vote didn't count," parent Kelly Vogel said. "With that money you could put teachers in the building and buy those ratios you want. It's a shame, you'll never have any credibility."

One woman couldn't believe the action was done without a public hearing.

She was wrong.

The public hearing was last Monday when voters said by a margin of 1160 to 521 "No" to the land. Now government teachers can tell their students that sometimes their vote will not make a difference.

Trout tournament reels in big success

By Laura Maltese
Courier special

The 13th Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament was a success with the help of great weather, lots of fish, big money and abundant prizes.

A turnout of 901 fishermen topped last year's 850 entries.

The heat was on as anxious men and women scoped out who was at the top of the board Sunday afternoon. With only one-and-a-half hours to go, Jeff Novotny, a local fisherman, knocked a 13 pound Lake Trout off the board, replacing it with his big catch of 14.32 pounds.

At noon, the weighing stopped and winners included Matthew Shindorf with a 14.56 pound Brown Trout, Rex Gibbard with a 14.78 pound Steelhead, Jeff Novotny with a 14.32 pound Lake Trout and David Richard Lewin with his 14.5 pound Salmon. Each took home $1,000, not to mention Port Prizes of $100, which are awarded each day for having the largest fish on the board. They went to Matthew Shindorf, Gibbard and Novotny.

Also at the tournament, special guest state Rep. Beverly Bodem, R-Alpena, awarded 1997 Charlevoix High School graduate Nathan Martin with a scholarship for his environmental studies at Calvin College this fall.

Tom Clemmens from WTCM made a special appearance, announcing prize winners and the 50/50 raffle.

Pass Sports was also among those present interviewing the top winners for an upcoming show. The air date will be at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, July 26.

Soccer camp at Shanahan

A soccer camp will be held at Shanahan Field from 9 a.m.-noon Monday-Friday, June 23-27. Linda Veryard will be the instructor.

The camp costs $82, which includes T-shirt and goody-bag. It is open to players of all ages.

For more information, call Hagen Manker at 547-5507.

Charlevoix sailors win weekend race

Claudia Kenefeck and Steve Pirie of Charlevoix won a benefit race Saturday by racing a 15-foot sailboat from Charlevoix to Boyne City in 2.5 hours.

The duo were part of a race that helped get six sailboats to Boyne City for the start of the Charlevoix County 4-H sailing program this week. The course was 18-miles.

Second place was captured by Bob and Jeremiah Grove, of Boyne City, and third by Joe Ritcher, of Boyne City.

Only 1.5 boat lengths separated first and second places.

Golfers get holes-in-one

While professional golfers were struggling to make par at the U.S. Open, two area golfers made holes-one during the weekend at the municipal golf course.

Hap Wright made a hole-in-one Sunday on the third hole, par 3, using a 5 wood. Ted Schaub and Alice Schaub witnessed the shot. Andrew Moats made a hole-in-one on hole 7 using a 3 iron. His shot was not witnessed.

4-H girls' soccer teams compete in weekend tournament

Soccer fans from all over the state invaded the two-county area over the weekend. The 15th annual Petoskey Youth Soccer Tournament was held on 12 fields stretching from Walloon Lake to Harbor Springs.

Just four teams took part in the inaugural tournament; however, the competition has blossomed into a "must-do" for soccer coaches and their teams. This year 160 teams (some from Canada and Indiana) took part in the fun in 13 different age categories.

Two Charlevoix clubs participated.

The Charlevoix Trappers, coached by Carol Madison, played in the U-13 girls division, losing to Midland Flame 3-0, Grasa Magic 2-0, and La Forza 3-0. The Brighton 84 Express took the division title beating Southwest Michigan 5-1 in the finals.

In the U-16 girls division, the Charlevoix Rayders, coached by Tom Conlan and Eric Kammerman, went 0-3 in one of the tournament's toughest division's.

They fell to Tri-Cities Strikers 7-0, Plymouth Lightning '81 3-0, and Saginaw Stingers 5-0. Saginaw then bested Plymouth Lightning '81 2-0 in the title match.

will be needed for the first three years of the five-year process of hauling away all the low-level nuclear waste.'

These jobs could be filled by some current employees and others who are contracted to come in for specific jobs.

Government officials are concerned about the loss of income, but hope to see it replaced by new construction in the area and the future of the lakefront property owned by Consumers.

Some employees have already given two-week notices at the plant. Others are considering an incentive offer where Consumers will pay the employee a week's pay for every year they've been with the company. The "voluntary separation pay" has a 26-week minimum.

For Blosh and many other Charlevoix people, the closing of Big Rock Point isn't about numbers. It's about relationships.

Her children could be pulled out of school — and away from their great-aunt, who is like a grandmother to them.

"It will be really hard if they have to leave," Jean Sutton said of the Bloshes, noting concern for the amount of high-paying jobs available in the area versus the number of people searching. "You hate to see a lot of friends and family leave, but if they have to, they have to."

History being made in Charlevoix by historical society

Geoffrey Reynolds
Courier columnist

From the Archives

1997 is an important year for Charlevoix and its special historical background. During this year, citizens and visitors alike will help the Charlevoix Historical Society celebrate the important anniversaries of the Harsha House Museum and the Charlevoix Depot Museum.

The Charlevoix Depot Museum will celebrate its fifth and most important year of existence in 1997. In early July, the depot will officially open its doors to a public eager to see its recently completed five-year renovation and its historical displays, created to depict Charlevoix's rich marine and railroad history. This year will also mark the 105th year of the depot's existence and should serve as a timeless reminder to young and old alike that the rich summer resort atmosphere Charlevoix and the depot have represented is alive and well. For in 1892, Charlevoix finally was able to offer its eager summer visitors a quick and inexpensive mode of travel to our small city, nestled between Lake Michigan and Pine Lake (Lake Charlevoix). Here cool night breezes offered sufferers of allergies and overheated-city dwellers relief well known throughout the Midwest.

It was because of this rich history that two men decided to preserve the depot's historical legacy in December 1990. Then Louis Edwards, president at that time of the Charlevoix Historical Society, and Robert Pew, then owner, decided to place the care and ownership of the depot firmly in control of the society. After careful planning and many hours of meetings, the membership and board of directors of the society decided to accept the Pew family's generous gift and moved forward to transfer ownership of the building. Finally June 26, 1992, arrived and the official transfer of ownership came among the recorded sounds of an approaching steam engine and a spirited reading of the original newspaper story of the first train arriving in Charlevoix by then Charlevoix Sentinel editor, Willard Smith.

With this generous gift, the society entered into its second major building renovation, its second large fund-raising effort, and the development of its second museum to better promote local history and allow the Harsha House Museum to begin planning the collection of more research materials. So with your summer free-time, visit your newest local history center and take home a feeling of belonging to a very important and historically rich part of Michigan, Charlevoix the Beautiful.

same seat for the area's intermediate school district. The community would like the new superintendent to begin as early as Tuesday, July 1. The other two candidates are from out of state — Indiana and Missouri.

Although Jackson isn't aggressively searching for a new job, she said that she is "selectively looking" at districts where she really wants to work. Like Charlevoix, Carman-Ainsworth is involved in quality schools programs. Jackson called the district progressive, a trait she considers an asset.

In Charlevoix, the school board has not begun searching for a new superintendent search.

Telgenhof said the board is on hold for now. The board doesn't have a job to offer a new superintendent until Jackson announces a sure departure date.

Even if Jackson leaves in two weeks, Telgenhof said that at least it's summer and the district isn't at its busiest time of year.

The district would probably hire an interim superintendent if Jackson leaves quickly. Then a superintendent search would commence.

Telgenhof said he has mixed feelings about the abrupt coming of this potential departure.

"I don't want her to leave tomorrow. I think she continues to be an effective superintendent for us. It's not like it's a lame-duck session."

Island counselor retires

When the Beaver Island Community School board meets Monday, June 9, long-time island resident and school guidance counselor, Patricia Rowley, will be honored for her dedication to helping students pursue their college dreams.

Rowley will be retiring from the school; however, she will continue to act as a resource person for school staff. The board invites alumni who have taken advantage of Pat's services to attend the meeting or send a card of appreciation. The board meets in the school library at 7:30 p.m.

Pat Rowley began working with students on Beaver Island 25 years ago when she and her husband, John, bought a home overlooking the harbor at Saint James. At the time, Rowley was employed as a high school guidance counselor at Wayland High School and worked with the Beaver Island students and parents during the summer. In the early years, Pat provided island residents with much needed financial aid and college selection information.

In 1986, Pat and her husband retired to Beaver Island and Pat's work with the students grew to include helping complete financial aid forms and spending more time with juniors and seniors in career and guidance counseling. Through her vast knowledge and network of contacts, Pat helped many students gain admission to and receive scholarships from schools as varied as North Central Community College, University of Michigan, Northern Michigan University, Northwestern College and Lawrence Tech. Because the school had no licensed counselor on staff, Pat also began to pick up other responsibilities, such as scheduling and administering the ACT test, and providing personal counseling. Pat was still working limited hours during the spring, summer and fall and spending her winters out west.

In recent years federal, state and local educational agencies began to stress the need for schools to provide more and more vocational programming and career decision-making opportunities for students. In response to this initiative, voters in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District passed a vocational-technical millage. Money from this millage allowed the Beaver Island school to provide career and guidance support to all students through a half-time position that began with the 1996-97 school year. During this past year, Rowley has worked closely with new employee, Gena McCafferty, to make sure that Beaver Island students continue to get the best possible support and guidance. McCafferty has recently taken a position as the director of Charlevoix-Emmet ISD's Alternative Program for Teenage Parents in Boyne City.

Rowley

Rowley will be involved in the interviewing process to replace herself and McCafferty. She plans to have more time to devote to work with the recently established Beaver Island Hospice and other organizations. She will also be busy gardening and traveling with her husband.

Indecisive board prompts risky vote on M-66 land

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Jerry Owens hoped his motion to purchase the land off of M-66 was a forward step in solving some of the problems facing the Charlevoix school board — a move toward a tangible facilities plan.

"The board has an inability to make a decision and live with it," he said from his home Monday. "It shows to the public that, as a body, they can not lead."

Nowhere was that trait as prevalent as their wishy-wash stand over the land purchase.

In December, they voted unanimously to sign the option and move forward with the purchase, only to see the process stall in April when the board decided to put the issue before voters.

Despite the 2-to-1 vote against the one-year .5 mill tax, the district voted to make taxpayers pay for the land. Owens said he was not snubbing voters when moving to take the money for the land out of the general fund. He knew the proposal wouldn't pass because it was needlessly raising taxes. All the ballot asked, he said, was whether the voters should pay for the land with a higher tax bill, something he feels they should never have been asked.

Owens said the M-66 land is, at the moment, still the best choice for the district.

"It gives us growth opportunity," he said. "My vision for Charlevoix schools was the total-campus philosophy."

He said with all the buildings and athletic fields in one location, the district could save money on lunches and transportation, have better communication within the buildings, and special needs, such as students tutoring students, could be accomplished in one central location.

It's unlikely that the district will find another piece of property with a low enough price tag to take the money out of the general fund. Most other pieces of land will cost more, some were priced at $1 mil-

A sign of the times. This sign was found outside a Silver Birch Motel rental unit in the wake of the school board's actions last week to purchase the M-66 land despite the election outcome.

School rescinds vote to buy land

Meeting tamed by board members' statements

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

While a soft drizzle of rain fell upon the town last Thursday, a tempest of rage nearly touched down in the high school study hall as residents in a standing-room-only crowd packed in to watch an impromptu board of education meeting.

The meeting was called to offer the board an opportunity to rescind action taken by the board the previous Monday to purchase land off M-66 despite serious voter objection. The meeting brought more than 350 people, a handful of TV reporters and hope that Monday's action would be reversed.

That hope was met with a 5-1 vote to rescind the earlier decision.

Allen Telgenof, Larry Levengood, Ardeth Wieland, Joan Buday, and Patrick McKeown, Jr., voted to overturn the June 16 vote. MaryLee Campbell dissented.

"This is not done with malice towards the voters," she said. "I may be with the minority, but they deserve to be represented."

McKeown, Jr., and Buday switched their position from three days before. They both had originally voted to spend money from the district's general fund to pay for the land.

Both said they voted with their conscious and did not mean the community any harm. Thursday, they said they were changing their vote because it was the right thing to do.

Downstate school reposts for super

Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent, Roberta Jackson, will not be making a move to a flint-area school by July 1.

At a meeting of the Carmen-Ainsworth school board Monday, a vote was taken to continue the search for a new superintendent rather than hire one of the three finalists. The board will repost the position.

"The general feeling was that none of the candidates were a match for the district," said Dave Swierpel, district director of community services.

A search committee visited each of the three school districts last week and interviewed people within the communities regarding their superintendents. They reported their findings to the board Monday.

Swierpel said that none of the candidates head schools of similar make-up to Carmen-Ainsworth, which has 5,200 students, 25 percent of whom are minorities.

Events in brief

School board member being sought

The Charlevoix school board is accepting letters of interest from residents wishing to apply for the vacant seat on the board through the 1997-98 school year. The seat opened when Jerry Owens resigned effective Monday, June 30.

Letters should indicate why the interested person wants to be on the board and their related experience to the board. They can be sent to: Charlevoix Board of Education, 208 Clinton St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

The deadline to apply is Tuesday, July 1. The appointment will be made at the Monday, July 7, organizational meeting.

Annual parish festival set for July 13

St. Mary's Church will hold its annual parish festival, featuring a chicken barbecue from 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday, July 13, at the church, 102 Garfield St. The meal is $7 for adults, $6 for senior citizens and $3 for children. Kids under 5 years old eat free.

Carry-outs are available. Other activities include bingo, children's games, a 3-on-3 basketball tournament and concessions.

Immunization appointments available

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, formerly District Health Department No. 3, has appointments available in June, July and August for immunizations, and hearing and vision testing.

A child entering kindergarten this fall needs a variety of immunizations. Clinics are being offered at the following area schools: Gaylord, Charlevoix, Boyne City, Petoskey, Bellaire, Elk Rapids, Boyne Falls, Alanson, East Jordan, Johannesburg and Harbor Springs.

Hearing and vision testing is offered also at this time. Children who see and hear well are better learners. Technicians will be present at all clinics to provide the hearing and vision screening.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call 547-0295 or 1-800-432-4121.

Unethical phone sales a topic of concern

Numerous complaints regarding phone solicitors attempting to sell siding, windows and doors have been received by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

During the solicitation, unethical questions and inquiries are being made by the sellers that are not related to a potential sale.

The sheriff's department suggests that citizens be cautious of contracting with these solicitors and report unethical calls to 547-4461.

Water safety week starts Saturday

A flotilla of Coast Guard ships, boats and services will be demonstrated to promote safe boating during the Tri-Lakes Safe Boating Week Saturday, June 28-Saturday, July 5.

Coast Guard units participating are the buoy tender, Acacia, and various search and rescue boats from the Charlevoix station.

Tours, mini safety talks and courtesy marine examinations for pleasure boats will be given. Guests should wear soft soled, non-slip shoes.

Beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 28, an open house will be held at the Acacia for the buoy tender and other small craft at the Bridge Park dock.

On Thursday, July 3, courtesy marine examinations for boats will be given at Irish Boat Shop in Charlevoix.

Yacht Club holding annual barbecue

Charlevoix Yacht Club's steak and shrimp barbecue will be held from 4:30-7:30 p.m. at the club, 209 Ferry Ave.

The barbecue is open to the public.

Adult dinners are $12. Kids meals, hotdogs and chips, are $5.

A cash bar will be open.

Local vets plan another parade

Second one in 60-some years

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Charlie Butcher and his fellow veterans will not forsake the opportunity to honor their country on Independence Day.

For the second year in about 66 years, Charlevoix will be hosting a Fourth of July parade. It has become an annual event.

"As long as we have two veterans' clubs here in Charlevoix, we are going to have a Fourth of July parade," said Charlie Butcher, captain of the combined color guard for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153 and the American Legion Post 226. "We're determined to honor our nation's birthday."

> "We're determined to honor our nation's birthday."
> — Charlie Butcher, veteran

In years past, veterans marched in the Memorial Day and Venetian Festival parades. They decided that wasn't enough. Butcher said the Fourth of July is the most important day in America's history — a day that will be recognized with veterans, scouts and current military personnel carrying flags through the streets.

The veterans' clubs will conduct the parade and formation, which begins at 10 a.m. Friday, July 4.

The parade route begins at the American Legion building on East Garfield Street and will proceed north on Bridge Street to East Park. A brief ceremony will be held at the Submarine Memorial. A flyover of F-16 fighters from Selfridge Air Force Base will be made at about 10:15 a.m., when the procession reaches East Park.

The southbound lane through town will remain open to traffic. The parade will fill the northbound lane.

The Color Guard from the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia will lead the parade, followed by the grand marshals, Clarence Rabach, representing the VFW, and Max Novak, representing the American Legion.

Special guests, the Viet Nam Vets Drill Team, are next in the line of march, followed by the combined Color Guard and Rifle Squads of the Charlevoix posts. The women's auxiliaries of the Charlevoix posts will follow, with a band directed by Gary Stutzman coming next.

The Charlevoix Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Brownies and Cub Scouts will bring up the rear, followed by any one wishing to join the march.

Butcher said that the Fourth of July parade carries with it more than flags, but also a sense of pride for those marching and watching.

City denies Carriage House variances

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The city's zoning board of appeals has denied requests from Carriage Club Investments for a slew of variances that would enable them to sell parcels of land along Cherry and Elm Streets as eight lots for single family homes.

The land is now occupied by the Carriage House, the former horse and buggy stable which is now a building teetering on the edge of collapse.

Jon Hisey and Richard Lobenherz of the investment firm were seeking a five-foot front and back yard setback variance, as well as side yard setbacks totaling 16 feet. This would allow the lots to have 50-foot wide homes built on them.

Citizens from throughout the Laurel Park neighborhoods filled the meeting to voice their disapproval of the variance application. Most agreed that the present Carriage House was an eyesore, but their most immediate concern was stopping the development of the land as eight 50-foot lots. Consistency of the neighborhood was at stake.

"There may not be a legal responsibility, but you do have a moral and ethical responsibility to build something that blends into the neighborhood," resident Karen Joy said. "It'll destroy the integrity of the neighborhood."

Most of the homes in and around that neighborhood are built on 100-foot lots.

Lobenherz agreed that he and his colleagues had such responsibilities, but pointed out that some of his favorite neighborhoods in town,

Horton Bay continues wacky parade tradition

The Horton Bay Parade is being dedicated to the memory of the community's long-time resident and historian, Bill Ohle.

The parade will begin at 1 p.m. Friday, July 4, in Horton Bay's business district — rain or shine. This year's theme is How Come? All entries must begin with two words: How Come?

The parade committee welcomes entries. But commercial, seriously political or off-color entries are always declined for this event. Inquiring minds unite. Imaginations run wild in Horton Bay on the Fourth.

Entry forms are available at the Horton Bay General Store.

Charlevoix has more news than the Ramsey arrival

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix has recently graduated two senior classes, and classes of eighth- and fifth-graders. The town is winding down from the trout tournament and preparing for its next Venetian Festival bash. Bridge Park and the Charlevoix Community Pool have both been recently dedicated.

Charlevoix is busy. The summertime rush is on.

However, people outside the town seem to think that we have nothing to do but worry or gossip about the arrival of the John and Patricia Ramsey family.

Wrong.

The national media has once again descended upon Charlevoix. This time, the reporters are in hopes of snapping pictures of the family coming and going, not of the detectives that searched the home for handwriting samples during the winter. They are hoping for exclusive interviews with the family who will forever be known for the Dec. 26, 1996, murder of their 6-year-old daughter, JonBenet.

We have chosen not to perch ourselves outside the Ramsey's home for any reason. Like many part-time residents, the family has come to their warm-weather oasis in Charlevoix the Beautiful. For the Ramseys, the community has become a refuge like never before.

We hope that the Ramseys will be allowed to go about their business while they are here in Charlevoix. We have no fear of their presence in town. Frankly, we're sorry that they have been followed on foot, in cars and interrupted at their home by reporters who insist on covering John and Patricia as though they are the President and First Lady.

The Ramseys have reached celebrity status for the worst of reasons.

Supermarket tabloids continue to run weekly stories that claim to pinpoint the killer. Colorado investigators continue to analyze clues.

Hopefully, someday soon, all of the world will see an arrest and conviction of JonBenet's killer. However, until that time, we hope that the community does not feed the fire that keeps people chasing their tails over this case.

JonBenet's murder is big news. The death of a little beauty queen who showed so much promise in life shouldn't go unnoticed. However, we fail to see high-profile news significance to the Ramseys' arrival in Charlevoix — a move the family has made for years.

The news media is taking on traits that were once only practiced by gossip tabloids. Hiding in the bushes for pictures outside the Ramsey home is not news to us. We hope it isn't news to our readers.

Charlevoix, have a good summer. Focus on what's important in life — good health, friends, family, fun and setting an example for the next generation.

Letters to the editor

School needs to make wise moves on maintenance

Editor:

Now that the $2.4 million sinking fund for school repairs has passed, the administration and school board could note that many of those repairs are the result of mistakes in the past:

Replacing the dry, rotted wood arches because the wood was not treated to resist rot.

Structural weakness because the high school foundation was poured when the ground was frozen, and settled when the ground thawed.

School roofs constructed of material that turned brittle and cracked.

Asbestos in the ceilings could have been avoided, but since it is there it seems that removing, and replacing, the ceiling is more drastic, and expensive, than is necessary. Couldn't a coating be applied over the surface of the ceiling to contain the asbestos in place?

Columnist's memories bring joy

Editor:

This is a somewhat belated appreciation of the columns Marilyn Boss has been doing for the Courier the past few months. We have enjoyed them all and hope she continues to write them.

The column of March 12 was particularly interesting to us as it had such a good picture of her father, Glenroy Ikens, and my brother-in-law, Bud Gill, and reminisced of the jokes they used to play on Mrs. Smith who lived next door to the station. Nobody enjoyed a joke more than Bud, but I had never heard of some of the pranks they played on that nice lady.

I'd like to add one thing to Marilyn's memories of plane-spotting during World War II from the cupola of the "Martha Ayers" house on top of State Street hill. It wasn't just the men left in town who did the duty there. Annabelle Cunningham and I put in many evening hours watching for the planes that might fly over. Ann will be remembered as deputy county treasurer for many years, and later as city treasurer.

I believe that house was built in about the 1870s for A.R. Upright, an early Charlevoix businessman and developer for whom Upright avenue is named (and you thought it just applied to the fine character of the people who live on that street?) The Courier office once owned a copy of a book published in the 1880s which had drawings of this house and others built in that era. I hope some copies of this book are still in existence.

We always enjoy reading Ralph Hamilton's letters to the Courier about his memories of early Charlevoix days, too.

Sincerely,
Anne Higman Olmstead

that has been hurt by the estate tax. It's a sad story — a hard-working man and woman work for years to build a successful, profitable operation for their children. But when the owner dies, the tax levied on the value of the business is far more than the kids can handle. So, they are forced to sell the business or portions of it to pay the government.

This death tax is unfair. As small-business owners, we've already paid taxes on the land, the profits, the inputs and improvements. There is no legitimate reason for yet another tax on our accumulated assets. The tax doesn't even bring much revenue since those who are truly wealthy hire attorneys to avoid payment.

The death tax adversely affects common people who have worked hard to increase the value of their family farms and businesses. To pay the tax, heirs often have to sell all or part of their operation. In the case of farmland, it is often sold to developers and leaves agriculture forever.

The time for estate tax reform is now. You and I can do something about it. Farm Bureau is urging people to write to our legislators in Washington, D.C., demanding significant reform. It's part of a nationwide "Kill the Death Tax" campaign. We need letters — lots of letters — and we need them now.

I urge you to tell your U.S. legislators what you think of the death tax and how it devastates not only grieving farm families and small-business owners, but also the rural communities we support. Ask them to repeal the estate tax, or at a minimum, increase the asset exemption from $600,000 to $2 million, indexed for inflation.

Please send your letters to the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, 101-1 W. Hurlbut, Charlevoix, MI, 49720. I will give them to Jack Laurie, our state Farm Bureau president, who will personally deliver your letters to our senators and representatives in their Washington offices in July.

Let's join the thousands of people across the county who are working to "Kill the Death Tax." With your help, our voices will be heard in Washington.

Sincerely,
Timothy Matchett
President, Charlevoix County Farm Bureau

EDITH GILBERT

If the Queen of England had been invited to Charles and Mary Adams' home in Charlevoix June 14 to attend the Five Million Dollar Dinner, she would have felt quite at home.

The seven-course meal, an annual fund-raiser for the Crooked Tree Arts Council, was held in what was formerly known as the Saltenstall home, on Michigan Avenue. Chaired by skilled hostesses, Nancy Porter and Martha Landis, the extravaganza was a resounding success, thanks to the efforts of 26 volunteers who washed dishes, served, chauffeured, carried supplies and folded starched napkins into Bishops hats.

The only raffle ticket winner from Charlevoix was summer resident Betty Ran, who gleefully said, "I've never won anything before!" She was chauffeured, with her friend, to the dinner by Gen. James Randolph and his wife Henrietta, who have recently built a home in the C & O Club.

Champagne and hor d'oeuvres were served to five winning couples at 7 p.m. in the living room, overlooking a gorgeous sunset on Lake Michigan.

Dinner was announced at 8 p.m. by the butler, played convincingly by Jim Kochensparger, president of the Crooked Tree Arts Council. As

Book Shelf

By Dianne Foster
Bridge Street Book Shop

One of my favorite suspense authors, Nelson DeMille, has written another great summer read. "The Charm School" and "The Gold Coast" are two novels that are tough to top, but DeMille has come close with his ninth novel — "Plum Island" (Warner Books, $25).

"Plum Island" is 511 pages of expertly melded medical mystery, police procedure, nautical adventure and assorted love interests with a boisterous plot. True to DeMille's style, "Plum Island" is laced with brilliant comic touches, the romance is tastefully portrayed, the crimes are not too graphically detailed, and the dialogue is light on profane expletives. In other words, DeMille makes sure you get the picture but leaves out the disturbing and unnecessary smut that has become common in too many of today's novels.

DeMille, a Long Island native, takes us to his New York gold coast. "Plum Island" is supposedly an animal disease research facility, but possibly a top-secret site for biological warfare experiments. John Corey, a Manhattan homicide detective, is recovering from bullet wounds at his uncle's house on the island. He gets tapped by the local police chief to act as a consultant on the double homicide of two bright, young scientists.

Early signs of the investigation point to a burglary gone wrong. Enter the media, and suddenly the murder becomes a crime with worldwide implications. More murders, more suspects and more mysteries to solve. Soon John Corey is unofficially in the thick of the investigation. Corey's investigations lead him into the lore, legends and ancient secrets of northern Long Island.

If you've never experienced the storytelling energy of Nelson DeMille, prepare yourself for an entertaining, harrowing adventure.

Every time I pick up a DeMille novel, I remember why the old pro is one of my favorites. He delivers the best elements of a good suspense novel with just the right mix of humor. "Plum Island" gets two thumbs up as a great read. And, don't wait for the movie.

Although every one of DeMille's novels would make a fabulous movie, I guess Hollywood hasn't figured that out yet.

60th Anniversary

William and Ella Hoffman

William and Ella Hoffman will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, June 28, during a party from 1:30-4 p.m. at the Charlevoix Estates Clubhouse.

William married Ella Hennip on June 28 in Grand Rapids. They have lived in the Charlevoix area for 40 years.

William is retired from Medusa Cement Plant, and Ella from Ellsworth Community Schools.

They have three children: Kathy and her husband, Luther, of Vacaville, Calif.; Nancy Whitley, and her husband, Jigs, of Charlevoix; and Ron Hoffman and his wife, Mary, of Greensboro, N.C.

The couple also has nine grandchildren.

Friends are welcome to attend the June 28 party. However, it is asked that no gifts are presented.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark—nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Engagement

Julie Marie Bush and Douglas Michael Bergmann announce their engagement to be married Saturday, Aug. 16.

Julie is the daughter of Roger and Sue Bush of Charlevoix. Douglas is the son of Doug and Louise Bergmann, also of Charlevoix.

An outdoor wedding and reception are planned to be held at the Bergmann residence.

Julie is a 1991 graduate of Charlevoix High School, 1995 graduate of Oakland University and recently completed a master's degree in health promotion and program management at Central Michigan University. She is employed as a child-care reform project director for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Douglas is a 1987 graduate of Charlevoix High School and received a bachelor's degree in business administration and finance in 1992 from William and Mary College in Virginia. He is a co-owner of Bergmann Marine in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix couple's daughter part of trio to benefit council

A musical recital, by a classical trio — soprano Nancy MacArthur-Smith, flutist Kelly McDermott and pianist Lindsey Weightman — will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 22, at the McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey. Tickets are $7.50 and available at the door.

Both MacArthur-Smith and McDermott are well known musicians in the area, and are offering a classical performance this summer by popular request.

MacArthur-Smith is the daughter of Bruce and Barbara MacArthur, of Charlevoix. She recently performed in LaBoheme with the Washington Opera under the direction of Gian Carlo Menotti. Formerly a native of Flint, she now teaches voice in Clifton, Va.

Flutist McDermott has toured the United States as principal flutist with the National Sousa Band. She teaches flute studies through the University of Pennsylvania, at the Wilmington Music School and Suzuki flute in her home studio.

MacArthur-Smith

Pianist Lindsey Weightman studied at the Guildhall School of Music in London and has performed in England, Italy and Egypt. She currently is teaching at the Wilmington Music School and in her home studio in Pennsylvania.

The evening's repertoire will consist of some well-known works by Bach, as well as compositions by modern composers Lieberman, John Corigliani, Barber, Gershwin, Weill and various French composers.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

I was heading for Petoskey a little after six o'clock in the morning when I saw this gorgeous doe. She was gracefully standing there along the shoulder of the road looking at the cars headed southbound towards her. You could tell she was trying to decide what to do. Should she make a break for it and dash across the road or should she go back into the woods? What concerned me was that never once did she look back at the northbound cars that might be headed towards her.

Knowing how unpredictable deer are, I had already decided to slow down before I got much closer. So, it did not surprise me when she did indeed get a running start almost right in front of me. She still hadn't looked back my way. I blew my horn and that caught her attention. It's what came next that caught me unaware. She had a baby following her.

That bundle of spots was all legs. It looked more like a stuffed animal on stilts than it did a fawn, hut it sure skittered its way across the highway fast. About this time, the southbound cars were catching on to what was going on, too. We all had to do a little sidestepping to see momma and child across the road. What got me was when momma realized she hadn't looked hoth ways, she stopped to look back like she knew her child might be in trouble. It was as if she sensed she might lose her baby. I was grateful to see them both quickly jump into the trees following their harrowing adventure.

With school being out for the summer, families — and in particular parents with young children — are going to be doing more and more things together. I hope we recognize just what treasures our little ones are. I hope we recognize how important it is to look out for them and protect them from the dangers and challenges that can come at them from all sides of life.

That spotted fawn following its momma will be a doe or huck in its own right almost before you know it. The little ones that cling to hearts and lives so easily today will be through school and off on their own all too quickly as well. What are we doing to make the most of the time we are given to share their lives?

I know. There are times where the energy and enthusiasm that little ones have can seem overwhelming. For some folks, it's almost more than they can stand. If you are a Bible student, you might even remember an episode where even the disciples of Jesus thought the kids were a little bit too much. If you recall that tale, then you also know that Jesus wouldn't let them dampen the children's enthusiasm. He said their exuberant spirit was at the very heart of what being a child of God was all about.

Kids count on those of us who are "older and wiser" to look out for them. They trust in the protection and guidance we bring them. But above all, they look to us for love. The unconditional love that Christ gave us is a clear example of the unconditional love we need to give them. They are God's precious gifts to us, and we need to savor the innocent joy they bring to our lives each day.

"Garden of Fashions," a benefit luncheon and fashion show at noon Wednesday, July 2, at the Boyne Mountain Convention Center, is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild to benefit the hospital's CT scanner fund drive.

Fashions suited for all ages will be presented by 15 area stores. The stores include: Rose Cargo, Anchors, Michelle's, Doncaster Fashions, Ethnic Creations, The Clothing Co., J. Phillips, Trademark Clothiers, Molly's, My Sister's Closet, and The Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix; Walloon Resortwear, in Walloon; Gocha's Women's Apparel, Trillium Creations, in Boyno City; the E. J. Shoppe in East Jordan.

Tickets are $16, including tax and tip, for a chicken salad croissant, cottage cheese with fruit salad, desert and beverage. Tickets can be purchased in Charlevoix at Anchors, Rose Cargo, J. Phillips, and Charlevoix Area Hospital Gift Shop. For information call 547-4024 ext. 201.

Pageant organizers hoping for interest

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Bea Warner wants to see the local pageant revived.

"For me, it's an enjoyment," she said. "I love working with the little girls."

As assistant director of the pageant which won JonBenet Ramsey her title as Little Miss Charlevoix County, Warner is struggling to get applicants for another pageant. The last one took place in 1995 in East Jordan. There was not enough interest to hold the pageant in 1996. And since JonBenet's murder, more controversy surrounds the idea of entering little girls in beauty pageants.

Warner said that the local pageant does not exploit girls. It gives them an opportunity to show their talents.

"Many of the girls take voice, dance and lessons on instruments," she said, noting that girls should have a place to perform other than when involved in athletics.

Warner and pageant director, Jean Wynkoop, are looking for entrants in the 1997 pageant for Little Miss Preteen, Little Miss Teen and Miss Northwest of Charlevoix County. The youngest category, Little Miss, has heen dropped. Girls from ages 7 to 12 qualify for preteen, 13-17 for teen and 18-24 for Miss Northwest. The pageant is open to anyone, regardless of whether they live in the area.

If enough people show interest in being contestants, the pageant will be held in the end of July at the East Jordan High School auditorium. During its first year in 1994, the pageant was held in Charlevoix. However, complications from the ongoing Venetian Festival has caused the location to be changed.

Warner said that to have a successful third pageant, there should be at least four contestants in each age group.

Winners received savings bonds.

Interested contestants should call Warner at 547-2065, or Jean Wynkoop at 547-4809 as soon as possible.

Summer business spurt closes in

Retail stores last to get hit

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The summer season has begun. People are meandering downtown and businesses are beginning to see their stores and dining rooms fill up.

"We've seen a gradual incline," said Tara Morrow of Charlevoix Shirt Co. "Most of the people are still just browsing, but it's nice to see them getting out."

Most business managers and owners admit that the summer season doesn't truly kickoff until the Fourth of July weekend. June can be split into two periods. Before school gets out, where business remains spotty except for Saturdays, and after year-end dismissal, where proprietors see their numbers begin to climb toward a summer peak.

According to Mick Belfy, general manager of the Weathervane, the last week has seen the restaurant serve between 150-200 lunches and 100-120 dinners a day. While those numbers pale their projected July and August counts of at least 250 lunches and 300 dinners a day, he said they are good daily counts for June.

"It's a blessing because we're still working with a half-crew until then anyway," he said.

Belfy said the business this past month has been bolstered by large parties, either wedding dinners or just big groups of people traveling together.

"We're one of the few places who can handle a walk-in 12- or 16-top, and that helps this time of year," he said.

Laurie Hughes, of Lottie's Bagels, said they maintained decent lunch crowds all winter, but the number of diners has intensified the last few weeks.

"It's steady all day long right up until 3 p.m.," she said.

Hughes also noted that the summer season was nearing because she no longer has time to make soups in the morning, with more bagels to make and additional customers in the store.

Despite the increase in pedestrian traffic, most retail stores are still waiting for their business to pick up in terms of sales. Only recently has the weather warmed to where people are interested in buying summer clothes.

"It's too early to tell what's hot," Tara Morrow said.

Three radiologists added to Charlevoix Area Hospital staff

Three radiologists have joined the active medical staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital to provide coverage of the hospital's radiology department.

Patrick J. McNamara, D.O., is a diagnostic radiology physician affiliated with Northern Michigan Imaging. He received his degree in medicine from Michigan State University and completed his radiology residency at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital in Pontiac. He is also on the active medical staff at Mercy Hospital in Grayling and Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital in Manistique.

Carl D. Harlan, Jr., D.O., is also a diagnostic radiology physician affiliated with Northern Michigan Imaging. He received his degree in medicine from Michigan State University and completed a residency at Oakland General Hospital in diagnostic radiology. He is also on the staff at Mercy Hospital in Grayling and Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital in Manistique.

David J. Fugenschuh, M.D., is a radiologist affiliated with Huron Valley Radiology in Ann Arbor. He received his degree in medicine from the University of Michigan School of Medicine and served an internship and residency at the University of Michigan Hospital, specializing in diagnostic radiology. He is on the staff at St. Joseph Mercy Health System in Ann Arbor and Chelsea Community Hospital in Chelsea, Mich.

Owens wishes school bored well

lion. Other sites are just too small for even one school.

"It's very foolish to put a middle school on a nine- or 10-acre piece of property," he said.

Owens said he decided to resign from the board well before last Monday's meeting for reasons he would not discuss. He brought up the motion to buy the land because he thought it would be his final opportunity to make a difference. He said he guessed only one other board member would vote in favor of his motion at the time.

He called the proceedings that night "exciting" and began to reconsider his resignation until he heard of the movement to begin a recall election for his seat. He did not want to scar the town with such a negative election.

He said he has no regrets with the outcome of last week.

"I feel good about it. I stuck my political neck out for something I still believe is right," he said. "The public has always known where I stand, and I've been faithful to that since day one."

The board, just three nights after Owens' motion passed, rescinded their decision to purchase the property. Owens said that a facility plan should remain as a top goal for the board along with balancing the budget and resolving the superintendent issue.

"I do wish the board well," he said, "and I'll be there to help and support them and if they ever want my input I'll be there for them."

Board member gets swept away by emotions

McKeown said after the meeting that he just got swept away with emotion and into a bad decision.

Board member, Jerry Owens, who sparked the week with his motion to buy the land Monday was not in attendance because of work commitments. He, however, has tendered his resignation, effective Monday, June 30.

Wieland spoke on his behalf.

"He chose from his heart," she said. "We're sad. We'll miss him. He did a good job, and everybody should share their thanks with him."

Despite the large turnout, public comment was brief, tempered by the fact that board members announced their desire to change their votes at the beginning of the meeting.

"Maybe this was a right move, but it was done at the wrong time," taxpayer JoAnne Beemon said. "These decisions need to be made with the community, parents and teachers in cooperation with each other."

Sunday Watros, a Marion township resident, questioned the validity of the soil report, saying that their water was not very good and questioned how good it would be for students.

"Those of us who live in Marion township, we'd probably fight it," she said of new schools being built out on M-66.

Suzanne Miller accused the board of acting in detriment to the new members and that schools should look "to rebuild, refurbish, and maintain all the time" not just build new buildings.

The board still has an option to purchase the land through June 30, 1998. Board members, both new and old, did say the land will not just be forgotten.

The board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 7, in the high school study hall. Business that evening will include appointing a replacement for Owens for the remainder of the 1997-98 school year and election of board officers.

Local students gets art awards from China

Charlevoix County was one of 20 Michigan Counties whose youth had artwork competing in an international art competition held in Sichuan, China, in May.

Word has just been received that 26 of the 77 pieces of Michigan children's art are award winners.

Of the top 15 Michigan winners, five Charlevoix County youth won awards. They are: Thomas Castiglione, 10, "Comet Watching," St. Mary School, Gold Medal Award; Pat Gibbard, 13, "In The Woods," Concord Academy Boyne, Silver Medal Award; Emily Yager, 7, "Emily's Cat," St. Mary School, Bronze Medal Award; Daniel Buday, 9, "Colorful Pattern," St. Mary School, Outstanding Work Award; and Rebecca Kanine, 11, "Sunrise," St. Mary School, Outstanding Work Award.

Artwork that focused on caring for the environment or friendship among the world's people was encouraged. However, children could choose any theme for their artwork, as long as it represented something important in their lives. Many Michigan children created artwork that portrayed friends, holidays, home, animals, sports and global peace.

This art exchange is coordinated by Michigan State University Extension 4-H Youth Programs.

Dave Smith (left), in a cold-water rescue suit, shares information about personal floatation devices to Dave Wasenaar (center) and Mike and Debbie Smith. Dave will conduct a water safety and self rescue class at the Charlevoix Community Pool at 6:30 p.m. Friday, June 27. The public is invited. The cost is $2 for adults, $1 for children and $5 per family. Money from the sale will benefit Kiwanis youth activities. Door prizes will be given and refreshments served.

East Park concert series begins

Chris Martin & Friends, with the well known Willie Nelson sound, will entertain the crowd in East park Thursday, June 26, as part of the Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau's seventh summer concert series. This concert is one of 12 sponsored by the bureau through July, August and September.

The concerts begin at 8 p.m. Thursdays through August, with a final concert at noon Saturday, Sept. 20.

This year, the best of previous local entertainers are scheduled, along with some talent from outside northern Michigan. One featured group, the Mid-Michigan Highlanders, is known for their traditional music and dance from the British Isles.

Also new this year are Tee McLane, renowned vocalist and trumpeter, and Doudou N'Diaye, master drummer from Dakar who has played with Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, and the Rolling Stones.

Audiences will again hear the country sounds of Loose Change, Chris Martin and Dr. Goodheart. Also returning are the Larry Wojcik Band and Corporate Brass.

Concerts scheduled Thursday evenings are:

— June 26, Chris Martin (Willie Nelson sound),
— July 3, Larry Wojcik Band (pop),
— July 10, Loose Change (country, variety),
— July 17, Doudou N'Diaye & "Le Deggo" (Dengalese drums),
— July 24, Mid-Michigan Highlanders (dancers),
— July 31, R&R and Mary D. (folk, pop),
— Aug. 7, Corporate Brass (variety, jazz),
— Aug. 14, Tee McLane (trumpet, variety),
— Aug. 21, Chris Martin,
— Aug. 28, Dr. Goodheart (folk, country), and — Sept. 20, (noon) Loose Change

The Charlevoix City Band plays in the bandshell at 8 p.m. Tuesdays, beginning June 24 and continuing weekly through Aug. 19. In the event of rain or inclement weather, the Thursday concerts will be cancelled.

Record number of junior golfers on area greens

A record 180 young people registered and took part in the first week of instruction offered by the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association. Director Dean Davenport was overwhelmed by the turnout and is busy adjusting the teaching plans to accommodate the huge number that has answered the call to play golf.

"It's a combination of the popularity of our program and the two-year impact it's made in the Charlevoix area, and the spinoff from all the interest stimulated by the phenomenal Tiger Woods," said Davenport when asked about the growth of the program.

> "Golf is a great laboratory in which to stress traits that are found in the makeup of good people."
> — Dean Davenport, program director

On the first day of instruction, the students were asked who knew about Tiger Woods. Hands raised. Woods began golfing when he was three years old. His father was a professional golfer. The Charlevoix program matches professional golfers with young people.

The program had 131 students registered last year with usually 70-80 showing for each lesson. Already this year, 140 and 162 have come to the two lessons, stretching the facilities and teaching staff.

"Our teaching professionals, who donate their time, are the very best and include; Joan Waha from Dunmaglas, Marc Wilson and Scott Sikouske from the Charlevoix Country Club, Steve Braun and Steve Sprague from the Belvedere Club and Patrick Smith from Bay Harbor Golf Club," Davenport said. "The second portion of our staff are also volunteers and they really are needed this year — the golf mentors that walk with our juniors as they play several holes to wind up each lesson. They are invaluable and crucial to the program."

Davenport expounded on why so many adults are willing to devote time to help in the program.

"They see the value of golf over most other sports," he said. "Our approach is to use golf to aid in developing a young person's value system to be one that we all desire in our fellow man."

Through golf, Davenport said, we can teach desirable traits that include honesty, civic responsibility, learning to obey rules — even at times when you don't want to — and socialization. It's easy to emphasize sensitivity also because golfers play with others and often need to offer encouragement and praise for good shots which hopefully will carry over past the game.

"Golf is a great laboratory in which to stress traits that are found in the makeup of good people," he added.

Cooperation from five area courses allows the juniors to be exposed to fine facilities and that along with the excellent instruction, make for a successful, meaningful program. The Belvedere hosted the first week of lessons with sessions scheduled to follow at Antrim Dells, Dunmaglas, The Charlevoix Country Club and the Municipal Course.

Davenport concluded, "It's a great feeling to see the response from parents and our juniors as they progress through our program and become proficient golfers and sound citizens."

Right: Nicole Schaub, 8, of Walloon Lake, covers up her clubs Friday with a tiger sock. She spent the morning learning golf fundamentals.

St. Mary hosts 3-on-3

St. Mary School is accepting registrations for the upcoming 5th Annual 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament. The event will be held Sunday, July 13, at the school.

Entry deadline is Saturday, July 12.

The team entry fee is $70, with a $10 discount if the entry is postmarked by Friday, July 4. Each team needs four players at least 9 years old.

To register, call the school at 547-0141. Entry forms are available at Radio Shack in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Boyne City, Buday's Sound Advice in Petoskey and Charlevoix, Dairy Queen in Charlevoix and Tastee Freez in Petoskey.

Golf scramble to benefit Camp Quality

Play golf for the benefit of kids in the Dunmaglas Golf Course Scramble Benefit for Camp Quality.

The scramble begins at 1 p.m. Sunday, July 20, at the Dunmaglas Golf Course on Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

A $95 contribution covers green fees, cart, buffet-style dinner, beer, soft drinks and various prizes. There will be hole-in-one events on all par threes, including the longest drive and closest to the pin.

A four-person team consisting of a combined total team handicap of 40 or more can enter. Only one player can have a handicap of eight or less. Send verification of your handicap along with a completed coupon and donation to 09031 Boyne City Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Registration coupons can be obtained by calling 547-4653.

All proceeds benefit Camp Quality.

Rayder girls earn academic honors

The Charlevoix Rayders girls' soccer team ended their season with a heartbreaking loss, but they can take solace in the fact that they earned high honors, as a team, for their performance in the classroom.

The team's cumulative grade point average was 3.608, second best in the state for Class C schools, eight overall for all schools. Seniors Meg Spang, Emily Murray and Annie Campbell earned individual all-state academic honors.

At the team's annual awards picnic, goalkeeper Kristy Shindorf won the most valuable player award and fullback Brooke Block won the most improved player award. Spang, Murray, and Jodi Bingham won captains' awards. Katy Conlan and Sarah Schofield were named captains for next year's squad.

guests entered the spacious living room, they ooh'd and aah'd over the formal dinner table, which was designed by Jack Perry. A tall silver candelabra graced the table. The gold of the setting sun made the assorted crystal wine glasses sparkle almost as much as the lively conversation among the delighted guests.

The Wild Mushroom Galette appetizer provided by the Rowe Inn, was served to the 12 diners by six waiters wearing tuxedos. Hardworking and smiling, volunteer waiter Gary Osterback, of Charlevoix, assisted Dr. Jeff Porter, who acted as wine steward, and competently served a French Merlot provided by Compulsive Cravings, located on Bridge Street.

In the large kitchen, carefully supervising the progressive courses was Bob Rodriguez from Mahogany's. He warmed the smoked pheasant consomme with wild rice and morels, provided by the New York Restaurant. He checked on the fillet of whitefish wrapped in potato crust with Wasabi Beurre Blanc. He arranged the salad, grilled asparagus timbale with watercress and smoked tomato vinaigrette, created by the Walloon Lake Inn. He heated the entree, stuffed breast of duck with lobster and sauteed beef tenderloin over a gorgonzola crouton with mustard vinaigrette, courtesy of the Charlevoix Country Club.

By 10 p.m., the still smiling waiters are in awe as they carry empty plates back into the kitchen. Yes, the guests really ate the whole thing — and they also drank an appropriate glass of wine with each course, knowing full well that they will be chauffeured home by such sober, volunteer chauffeurs, as Dr. Jim Gibbons.

And by now, all the waiters are marching with precision like a well drilled marching band. They triumphantly present the dessert called rhubarb trio, from Tapawingo, to the applause of admiring guests. A late harvest Riesling provided by Boyne USA finishes the meal.

Time now to stretch for after dinner coffee, provided by Roast and Toast, in the drawing room. Just in case one needs a final sip of something, wine steward, Paul Kieswetter, offers the guests a fine Black Muscat recommended by Symon's General Store.

Before guests depart, close to midnight, each couple is presented with a hand-painted menu, carefully handwritten by calligrapher Lynne Osterbeck. These are usually framed for display by the guests, who will need no further reminder of an evening so memorable as the Five Million Dollar Dinner.

Chef Bob confided to us that he has served elegant dinners in Philadelphia at the oldest wine club in the world, "Chaine de Rotisserie," but that this benefit surpassed even that renowned affair.

And what did hosts Mary and Chuck Adams say? "The evening just flew by. What a wonderful way to raise money for a good cause!"

Hostess Mary Adams smiles as she watches T.C. Curtis, Jr., of Walloon, who is duly impressed, as he scans the dinner menu. On her right, seated, are Brad Kessler and Jill Wagner.

Summer band lessons offered

A STRONG FINANCIAL HISTORY OF COMMUNITY SERVICE JUST BECAME STRONGER.

Many bank mergers are actually one set of beliefs swallowing another. Often, everyone has to then adjust to the dominant partner, including bank customers.

Not so with the merger between City Bank & Trust Co, City Bank, CB North and their new partner Citizens Bank (A Michigan Bank established in 1871). You see, we all have the same history and a common belief in serving the communities where we do business. It's a strong tradition that will remain unchanged as the driving force behind the combined efforts of all of our people. Yes, there will be some changes. Both partners will become stronger and more secure. As part of Citizens Banking Corporation your bank will become part of the fourth largest bank-holding company in Michigan. Which means customers like you will have over 120 branches to serve you (not to mention over 120 ATMs).

A CHANGE OF SIGNS THAT'S NOT A SIGN OF CHANGE IN PHILOSOPHY.
Oh, and yes, the signs will change to Citizens Bank. But it isn't a sign of a change in those basic beliefs which we've all become known for. Just a strong indication of renewed dedication to the local communities we serve.

JOIN US ON JULY 3RD FOR A "COMMUNITY APPRECIATION DAY" OPEN HOUSE.
We value you as clients and would like to show our appreciation for your continued business. Drop by with any questions or just to chat with old friends down at the bank. We thought it would be a nice way to welcome you to the advantages of Citizenship.

Camp Quality seeks volunteers for program

Eleanor West, Director of Camp Quality of Northern Michigan, and her staff are adding the finishing touches to this year's week of camp for kids with cancer. This will mark Camp Quality of Northern Michigan's 10th anniversary, which will have the theme "10 Years of Magic."

Camp will be held at Camp Daggett on Walloon lake beginning Sunday, Aug. 10-Saturday, Aug. 16. Kids from throughout Michigan, ages 4 to 18, continue to register. Group organizers expect to reach the maximum of 60 campers by late June.

Volunteers from every corner of Michigan, particularly from the surrounding communities, are offering their help — from kitchen staff to entertainment.

These special kids, whose lives have been impacted by cancer, each require a one-on-one companion around the clock during camp week. Companions (from 18 to 80 years old) provide ongoing support to their assigned campers and their families even after camp is concluded.

To become a companion, contact Northern Michigan's Camp Quality office at 582-2471 in Boyne City or, write to P.O. Box 345, Boyne City, MI 49712. The fax number is (616) 582-5553.

All volunteer companions, including those returning, must be thoroughly trained before camp week. Training has been set to begin at 9 a.m. Saturday, June 28, and will conclude by noon on Sunday, June 29, at The Park of the Pines campground in Boyne City. Other volunteers are needed to serve as nurses, doctors, cooks, craft helpers, housekeepers, etc. Only companion training is mandatory, all other volunteers are encouraged to attend the two-day training session as well.

Local vet learned patriotism early

By Larry Laske
Courier columnist

Country. Honor. Courage. Patriotism.

A near overwhelming feeling of privilege and honor wells up inside me every time I render a salute and recite the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States of America.

No, this didn't just happen overnight. It had to have a beginning ... .

Sometime in the early 1940's, while I was a youngster on the east-side of Detroit. I became aware of the "star flags" that could be seen in the windows of the flats (four family house), up and down the street we lived on. We had one in our window and I knew that each star, on the red, white and blue flag, represented a loved one serving our country during the war. Later on I knew that it was World War II which followed World War I (which was supposed to be the war to end all wars).

I recall standing proudly in my first-grade class, studiously learning how to recite the pledge of allegiance to the flag. At that time, in my Catholic school, it was the way we started our school day. I was trying my best to stand straight and tall because I wanted my dad (who was serving in the Navy overseas, and whom I only knew from a photo and one brief recollection of him during a wartime furlough) to be proud of me. Somehow my sincerity and pride in learning the pledge and reciting it proudly would make him come back home quicker. All the neighborhood kids were the same. It seems as though we all had dads or uncles in the "big war."

Some things truly stand out in a youngster's life — things that for some reason you never can ever forget. They are burned forever in your mind. My permanent memory happened when my three brothers and I (I'm the second oldest of what became 10) were put in our sailor suits to have a photo taken because our dad was home from the war, and we were celebrating. I can't explain why, I have no valid explanation or story for what served as the catalyst, but I believe it was at this point that I had the first seeds planted for what eventually became an ever-growing understanding of the concepts of country, honor, courage and patriotism.

Larry Laske is a new columnist for the Courier. He will be writing about his experiences in the war and his passion for citizens' respect for our country. His column will run the fourth Wednesday of each month.

This photo, taken in 1966, is the log home of Dr. Protar, the Russian nobleman who fled the Czar and found asylum on Beaver Island. His later years were spent attending to the islanders' aches and pains.

4-H offers array of activities

For those looking for some summer fun, 4-H in Charlevoix County may be able to provide it.

For those looking for a nautical experience, the 4-H Sailing program may be in order. Youth can sign up for morning or afternoon sailing experiences in Boyne City and Charlevoix. The cost is $45 for a program, which involves more than 13 hours of instruction and hands-on experience on Lake Charlevoix. In addition, a racing clinic is offered in Charlevoix for $40. For the Boyne City program, local businesses sponsor the program and provide each participant with a $20 scholarship.

For those looking for a camping experience, the Endless Summer Camp may be a great way to round out the summer. The camp is held the last week of August. The program will run Sunday-Thursday, August 24-28. The cost for the camp is $105 for the four-day experience on Torch Lake's Camp Hayo-Went-Ha. The camp is conducted in conjunction with the Charlevoix and Antrim County 4-H Councils. This camp is open to anyone who has recently completed grades 3-7. The final deadline for registration is Friday, Aug. 1.

Whiting Park will once again host 4-H Swim School. The program will run all summer long from Monday, June 23, to Wednesday, Aug. 13. The cost is $20 per student for the pre-swim age of 4-6. The cost for children ages 6 and up is $26 with a reduced rate for multiple members of the family. All instructors are trained and certified by American Red Cross in water safety and rescue. For those living in the Boyne City area, transportation is provided to and from the park for ages 6 and up.

While the Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan communities have all hosted their early registration, it is not to late too register for the fall 4-H Soccer programs. For a list of registration deadlines and contact people in your community contact the MSU Extension Office.

As with all programs of 4-H in Charlevoix County, registrations can be paid using grocery receipts from local grocery stores. To request a packet of information contact the MSU Extension office at 582-6232. Please designate which programs you are interested in when phoning in your request.

Hospital plans new aquatic therapy program

With the opening of the new Charlevoix Community Pool, Charlevoix Area Hospital will begin aquatic therapy sessions in July.

The hospital has conducted a successful aquatic therapy at the East Jordan pool since 1992. The addition of the Charlevoix Community Pool will make the program readily accessible to Charlevoix area residents.

Participants in the aquatic physical therapy program must have a physician's referral and require therapist-guided exercise to improve their health condition. An individualized treatment program, specific to each participant's needs, is developed. This is not a generalized exercise program.

Aquatic physical therapy can be requested by any physician and it is not necessary that it be conducted in conjunction with other clinical physical therapy.

For further information on class schedules and specific therapy criteria, call Charlevoix Area Hospital at 547-4024, ext. 269, from 1-3 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Advice sought from citizen group on land

such as those on Belvedere and Dixon, are so because of the variety of lot sizes. He pointed out the apartment complex near the land that seemed to blend in with the rest of the block.

In the wake of citizen opposition, he asked the board to table the motion and attempted to organize an ad-hoc committee between himself and neighborhood residents to find a better solution.

"I'll be happy to be on a committee, but I also want to see this request turned down," resident Bud Koehler said.

The appeals board agreed, voting 5-0, to deny Carriage Club's request.

"We'd be crazy to table this," Jeff Pines said. "There are no reasons to give variances."

After the vote, the board pleaded for cooperation from both sides to find a reasonable solution.

"I would like to encourage both parties to work together and find a better purpose for the property than it is (used for) today," board chairman Greg Withrow said.

Robert Lenhart suggested to Hisey that he show an act of faith to the community and tear down that "warehouse."

"It may help get the conversation off on the right foot," he said.

Squirrel causes brief blackout

A squirrel gave Charlevoix a big bang about 9 a.m. Friday during a fatal mistake. He touched high voltage wires at the transformer in the Charlevoix County building parking lot that caused a short.

When the breaker snapped, the big bang rang through the downtown. Power was lost momentarily downtown and on Charlevoix's west side.

Repairs were as simple as replacing a blown fuse. The squirrel, however, died.

LexaLite founder retires after 34 years

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Josh Barnes sits at his desk prior to his retiring from LexaLite International Corp. last week.

For a company that has pulled a profit since its second year in existence, it took a destructive fire to really make LexaLite International Corp. step into the success it has today.

When Josh Barnes founded the company with six colleagues in the early 1960s, LexaLite was based on the strength of the durable plastic, Lexan, which they used to create light globes that vandals and clumsy people could not easily break.

During the company's infancy, Barnes took the product he helped design on the road, hopping on airplane after airplane touring towns throughout the states.

"We were lucky, we had a product that was needed," he said. "Back then, all I did was sell."

As years passed into decades, the company expanded its lines, developed overseas contacts and merged with Summa Industries, an international holding company worth more than $13 million. Now LexaLite stands as a major player throughout the globe in the world of optical components. It pulls in more than $20 million a year.

Yet, as Barnes, who retired last week after serving as company president for 34 years, looks back over the history of his company, he points to a destructive fire as the turning point.

"A day that will live in infamy," he said of August 2, 1981.

Rays of sunlight during a northern Michigan sunset beamed into the offices. It reflected off of one the company's own high-tech lighting fixtures and onto a stack of papers to ignite the fire. Reaction to the fire was slow that Sunday evening.

A boater on Lake Michigan rushed into shore to alert firefighters, who then promptly got stuck in drawbridge traffic. Barnes found out about the fire from a friend who called him after hearing about it on a police scanner.

With help from the East Jordan and Petoskey fire departments, and after squeezing all the water from the reservoir in the front of the building, the fire was doused. Smoke rose from the debris for two days.

"We realized just how important everybody was to each other," Barnes said. "We sat on the lawn the next day and talked about what to do. We had to rebuild, this was all our lifeblood."

Barnes said the aftermath helped solidify relations between the company and the City of Charlevoix, which until that point had been indifferent. People questioned a manufacturing plant being on the shores of Lake Michigan, where homes or a public beach could have been.

With the city and local businesses pitching in when they could, LexaLite was again operating six weeks after the fire. Barnes recalls some people working, foul-weather gear in tow, in the burned-out shell of the building prior to that.

Barnes said management and the crew became more responsible and caring about their jobs, an attitude still carrying over today, 16 years after the flames.

"When we started, we had one goal and one criteria," he said. "Be in the black and having fun while doing it, and so far we have lived that for a very, very long time."

In order to follow through on the fun, Barnes said it was imperative to make the employees not just workers, but people with an investment into the company they checked into every day.

He recalls creating stock and investment incentives for employees as part of a revolution that LexaLite took part in long before most small businesses.

"It's getting harder and harder to find workers, and when you do, you must find ways to keep them," he said.

After setting an example and staying with the company since its beginning, the 69-year-old is now

City threatens to foreclose on Sleep Inn

Hotel behind on utility payments

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Perhaps you can't fight city hall. But Sleep Inn owners hope you can make a deal with them.

City plans to take legal actions against the Sleep Inn of Charlevoix for failure to pay water tap-in fees has been stopped for now. The hotel's parent company, Charlevoix North Properties, has drafted a proposal which would "resolve amicably" the situation.

According to city treasurer, Richard Brandi, Charlevoix North Properties owes the city $40,935.10 after missing two yearly installment payments for utility hookups.

As a result, city attorney Jim Young was instructed to foreclose on the deal, which would mean the city would seize and sell the property in order to collect the money.

"I'm really upset by all this," mayor Josh Barnes said Thursday.

Hospital president retires

Richard L. Krueger announced his retirement as president of Charlevoix Area Hospital, effective Tuesday.

Krueger has been the CEO at Charlevoix Area Hospital for 27 years. During his administration he has seen the hospital through many building projects, including a new Coronary/Intensive Care Unit in 1973, a new surgical wing in 1980, the construction of three physician office buildings and a satellite rehab clinic in Boyne City. A $4 million project in 1994 gave the hospital modern operating rooms, kitchen and maternity facilities. Each construction project was marked by successful fund-raising campaigns that helped cover costs.

Krueger has been active in medical care both at the local and state level, serving as a member of the board of the Small and Rural Hospital Council, the Michigan Health and Hospital Association and the Michigan Health and Hospital Association Workers Compensation Fund; and past president of the North Central Michigan Hospital Council.

He has been an officer and past president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, and served on many committees of the First Congregational Church. As the hospital president, he served as board member representing the hospital's interest in Boulder Park Terrace.

Krueger

Thomas Carey, longtime Charlevoix Area Hospital board member and past board chairman, said, "Dick has been a real asset to Charlevoix Area Hospital. He has gained the respect of hospital administrators throughout the area for his management of the hospital in times when health-care funding was decreasing. With his leadership, Charlevoix Area Hospital has remained financially viable and independent. We thank him for his dedicated service and wish him well in his retirement."

Krueger plans to remain as an assistant and consultant to the hospital president for a time.

Ordinance allowed payments to draw business, jobs

"We had a strong verbal agreement. One way or another, we'll get that money."

The company was allowed to divide their hookup payments into installments with the city because of an ordinance that allows businesses with fees above $25,000 to make yearly payments because their businesses would bring jobs and growth into the city.

The deal between the city and Charlevoix North Properties required the company to pay $18,000 a year for three years, with interest, to cover the $54,000 connection fee. Interest charges were 9 percent.

Brandi said Sleep Inn made one payment of $18,000, but have failed to make the agreed payments for May 1, 1996, and May 1, 1997.

As a result of discussions Monday between city employees and company president, Jim Vogt, Young has been asked to suspend foreclosure until city council can review a new payment deal offered by Charlevoix North Properties.

"We've put this on hold," city manager, Mike Wiesner, said. "We've not eliminated action, just pausing until council acts on this proposal."

> "We've put this on hold. We've not eliminated action, just pausing until council acts on this proposal.
> — Mike Wiesner, city manager

City council is expected to review the proposal at 7 p.m. Monday, July 7, at city hall.. Wiesner was vague regarding specifics of the new plan, saying only that it would amend the current agreement.

"It seems like a reasonable payment schedule," he said.

The Sleep Inn opened in June of 1995 and is part of the country wide chain, Choice Hotels, includes Comfort Inns, Clarions and EconoLodges. The newest hotel in town is also the only national chain in the city's hotel/motel industry.

The three-story, white structure on U.S. 31 overlooks the municipal golf course and has 59 rooms with overnight rates between $38 and $125 per night.

According to hotel manager, Mike Huminski, Sleep Inn employs more than 20 people in the summer and the business and employee count fluctuates with the typical season changes of the north.

"It's like most in a resort town," he said. "In the summer you do quite well, and in the winter you don't."

The off-season business comes mostly from business travelers.

City lawsuit stalled in hopes of receiving grant funding

City attorney, Jim Young, said an "administrative closure" has been reached with Waterfront Properties regarding the circuit court lawsuit against the city.

Waterfront is seeking a change in zoning restrictions so they can develop their lakefront property across the street from the U.S. Coast Guard station on Lake Charlevoix.

In an attempt to avoid the courtroom, the city, with the help of grant money, has offered to buy the land from Waterfront.

Young explained that Waterfront favors the sale should grant money be awarded to the city. He said the administrative closure keeps the case active but enables both sides to continue without incurring more court costs.

In layman's terms, a halftime has been reached pending grant approval.

"It's the logical way to proceed," Young said.

Barnes said he is hopeful the city will receive grant money by the end of summer.

Events in brief

Fourth of July parade reminders offered

Fourth of July parades will be held in downtown Charlevoix at 10 a.m. Friday and in Horton Bay at 1 p.m. Friday, July 4.

Garden Club practices table setting designs

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club will meet at 1 p.m. Tuesday, July 8, at the home of Peg Johnson.

Members participating in a program will design table settings within certain specifications. These will be critiqued by master flower show judges. The experience will provide information and education for the club's August flower show.

For more information, call Joan Knecht at 547-5072.

Community pool to open later than expected

Additional requirements must be met by the Charlevoix Community Pool before it can open, according to Scott Welscott, pool manager. The pool was expected to open in June.

A Michigan health department official inspected the pool and building last week. Welscott said, "We're caught between a rock and a hard spot."

He is attempting to meet requirements from various city, township county and state departments.

Welscott said he has had numerous calls from young people asking when the pool will open. He has promised that opening day will be widely announced.

Power out for second time in two weeks

It wasn't a squirrel this week. A cable terminator failed in the alley between State and Grant streets Wednesday that caused power to blink out throughout the downtown at about 12:50 p.m., said Ed Whitley, city electrical superintendent.

CB North was out of power for two hours. And because of a smoking electrical lines, the Charlevoix Fire Department monitored the bank during the outage and used its fans to clear the business of smoke.

Fire chief, Doug Carver, said the smoke came from overheating that was caused by an improper supply of power to the bank.

Whitley said the terminator could have been struck by lighting weeks ago to cause the outage.

Train depot site of railroad fair

The sounds of train whistles and engine chugs will reverberate through the old Charlevoix depot Friday-Saturday, July 4-5.

The depot, now the Charlevoix Historical Society's Depot Museum, will be the scene of a Railroad Fair, presented by William B. Davis, a model railroad hobbyist from Grand Ledge.

The fair is designed to bring back the childhood days of American Flyer and Lionel toy train sets and to recall Charlevoix's own railroad history.

Many of today's summer residents once arrived in Charlevoix by train, and year-round residents traveled north and south in railroad cars powered by steam engines.

Today's younger generation and newcomers to Charlevoix may not know that there once were two operating railroad depots in town, one on the south side and one on the north side. Trains crossed the Pine River Channel on a special railroad bridge.

They also may not know about the Resort Special, the famous summer train which brought hundreds of visitors to Charlevoix from Chicago and other points each Saturday morning and took them back Sunday evening.

The Charlevoix Depot is a State Historical Site and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places. It dates back to June, 1892, when regular rail service from the south began. Architecturally, it is mostly unchanged from that time. Visitors will see the hard-maple flooring, the native-wood paneling, the ticket-taker's window and the ornamental columns among its original features.

Outside the museum, there is an old baggage cart on which passengers' trunks and suitcases were moved, and on the wall of the building there is a semaphore that was used to warn train engineers when the bridge over the channel was open.

The Depot Museum is located at the east end of Chicago Avenue at Lake Charlevoix. It can be reached by driving east on Dixon Avenue, which turns slightly into Chicago Avenue. There is a park and beach just beyond the museum building.

The railroad fair will run from noon-4 p.m. Friday, July 4, and from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, July 5. It is a fund-raiser for the Charlevoix Historical Society. Tickets will be $4 for adults and $1 for children. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

Members of the historical Society will sell picnic food after the museum closes Saturday.

Second shopping center entrance reopens June 27

Could have been improperly closed

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

The second entrance to Captain's Corner Shopping Center opened less than 24 hours after city officials lifted the driveway restriction Thursday at a special meeting.

The city had ordered the entrance closed when the project engineer asked for a site plan change to save money on the project. Originally, the city agreed to closing both current entrances once a new, wider entrance was built between them.

"The center drive was a good solution, but an expensive one," Jim Malowitz, project engineer, told the council recently.

"It's not really strapped for money at this time, or it doesn't appear to be," said councilmember, Bruce Reid. He noted the expansion of Glen's into where the RiteAid used to be, the construction of the new RiteAid and a new addition going on next to Horizon Video. "There's a lot of activity."

While the drive was closed, shoppers were finding their way onto M-66 by the one entrance leading onto it, and a back entrance that takes drivers onto Stover Road. Congestion was monitored by a traffic consultant hired by project developers and

Respecting flag can mean respecting fellow Americans

EDITORIAL

Ignorance of protocol tends to offend people.

Recently, several residents were enraged when spotting an American flag in the garbage. The family which had thrown it away were moving. Their discarded items, including the flag, sat atop a heap of garbage near the street until the trash truck came.

As the days passed, the neighbors became angrier.

We don't believe that the family meant any harm, or that it was being purposefully disrespectful to the Star Spangled Banner. However, we do hope that the people who don't know how to properly dispose of the flag will take the time to learn.

Flags should be burned, preferably at a ceremony.

Charlevoix Boy Scouts hold a flag disposal ceremony each year. It is announced prior to the event to enable people to contribute flags that have become worn beyond acceptable flying. Either save your flags for then, or respectfully burn the flag.

America isn't a nation of ceremonialism like it used to be. The detailed proceedings of weddings, holidays and other family traditions continue to slip into the past as we rush through our casual, live-for-the-moment lives.

Let's not let it all slip away. Traditions appear as dry proceedings when people don't share the "why" with the "what."

The Stars and Stripes will be hanging all over the United States this weekend as we all celebrate our independence as a nation. It's a perfect opportunity to learn more about our greatest symbol and why it leads every parade.

When children are taught how to properly raise and lower the flag, it instills a sense of awe for what the red, white and blue represent. They take pride in folding it just right at the end of the camp day and tuck it away until just before the bugle sounds the next morning. This is a tradition worth preserving.

Share the stories of how the flag was raised when historic battles were won. How it went through changes as our nation defined itself from colonies to states. And the pride that was felt throughout the country when the flag was flew on the moon in 1969 when placed there by the astronauts of Apollo 11.

Much of our nation's wealth is found in the treasurers of history.

Letters to the editor

Ramseys thankful for warm welcome

Editor:

Many thanks for your kind words appearing in last week's editorial in the Courier.

We are indeed trying to enjoy the therapeutic tranquility which has always drawn us to this little bit of heaven, called Charlevoix. The view of the crystal blue waters of Round Lake, which we see each morning from the vantage point of our porch, provides a healing touch that words cannot describe.

The view has only been surpassed by the love and acts of kindness which we have been receiving daily from friends — both old and new. There is a spirit of family and friendship here that few on this earth have experienced. God's peace is here. Thank you for welcoming us home with your loving arms. Please keep us in your prayers.

Sincerely,
Patsy and John Ramsey

Independence Day should prompt thoughtfulness

Editor:

Each year at this time, Americans prepare to celebrate the birthday of our great country. Since declaring our independence from England on July 4, 1776, we've overcome many struggles and much adversity to become the proud and strong nation we are today.

Independence Day should cause us to reflect on who we are, where we've come from and what we have accomplished as a country. Too many of us tend to take our freedom for granted. We have not suffered the personal losses of our predecessors. Some of us need to be reminded of the sacrifices given by many which enable the rest of us to enjoy our rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

We are fortunate to have a part of our community, Larry Laske, a decorated war veteran, have a passion for patriotism and a gift for sharing that passion. Mr. Laske retired as Lieutenant Colonel from the army after serving 26 years in the military police corp. He is commander of the American Legion and chaplain for the VFW. Mr. Laske has delivered the Memorial Day address for the past four years and is currently a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier, writing about patriotism. He and his wife, Nancy, have seven children.

Mr. Laske will be speaking about patriotism at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, July 6, at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix. The public is encouraged to attend and to stay for the barbecue potluck.

Happy Birthday, America, and thank you to all who sacrificed so that we as Americans might enjoy our inalienable rights.

Judy Smith

Planter theft discourages store manager

Editor:

I was shocked and amazed that someone stole our planter from the front of our store on Sunday evening, June 22, or Monday morning, June 23.

A big part of the charm that draws visitors to the Charlevoix downtown are the festive planters in front of all the stores. I thought when I moved back here from the Detroit area I was moving to a safer, less crime-infested environment. I guess I was wrong.

I can't even try to improve the appearance of my business without someone deciding that our flowers should enhance their front porch instead. Would whoever committed this crime, and yes, it is a crime, not a funny practical joke, please return our flowers - no questions asked. But then again, I guess you know how to do it when no one is around.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Smith, manager
American Spoon Foods

School board member comments on M-66 coverage

Editor:

Much has been written about the school board's actions on the proposed M-66 site. A front-page article in the most recent Courier indicated that the board "voted unanimously to sign the option and move forward with the purchase, only to see the process stall in April when the board decided to put the issue before voters."

First, the board voted unanimously to enter into an option agreement on the property. The board certainly had the option at that time to merely purchase the property from the general fund but chose not to do so. The discussion at that time was that the property would perhaps be included in a later bond proposal to build a new school. In fact, one or two board members supported buying the land out of the general fund at that time, but there was insufficient board support for this position so the option was entered into.

Second, I do not see asking voters whether they would support the purchase of the property as "stalling" the process. Board members are only caretakers of the taxpayers' funds. The majority of the board obviously believed that such an important decision as a future school complex should be made only with the support of the voters. The possibility of a "no" vote by the voters was discussed by the board before the decision was made to place the item on the ballot. Again, the majority of the board was prepared (at that time) to seek voter approval before moving forward.

Lastly, your headline which termed the board "indecisive" was most unfortunate and unfair. Only one day after the vote to purchase the property from the general fund, Larry Levengood and I called the special meeting to reconsider the issue. Two days later, the board took action to undo what the majority of the board believe was an incorrect and hasty decision. In doing so, the board acted swiftly and decisively and allowed us as a community to put this issue behind us. It takes no leadership whatsoever to stick with a bad decision; leadership is standing up and admitting when your are wrong. The board did so.

Allen Telgenhof, school board member

Fire department seeks contributions

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department is raising money for a fire prevention program for children.

The department is organizing its annual Fire and Burn Safety Program for the children ages 5 through 12. They will receive educational, fire-prevention materials created and geared to specific ages. This program includes fire safety guidebooks that contain 24 activity pages designed by educators to stimulate the child's awareness and independent thinking about the everyday fire hazards. Various other fire safety booklets, folders, posters and brochures are made available to encourage the prevention of destructive fires, painful burns, disfiguring injuries and needless death.

Bob Koch, of the National Fire Safety Council, Inc., will be helping local firefighters plan and deliver programs to the school children. The National Fire Safety Council is a federal tax-exempt nonprofit organization. All contributions are tax-deductible.

Koch is making contacts, and explaining the program to area businesses, industrial and professional leaders. He is asking for financial support to help cover the cost of the materials used by the department.

Chief Curt Thompson said this is the only program of this type the township fire department will conduct this year. Should anyone solicit support without having a letter from Thompson, contact the fire department immediately.

New endowment helps fund hospice

A new endowment to provide ongoing financial support for the area's hospice program has been established with the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. The Charlevoix County Hospice Fund will generate income to meet the current and future needs of the hospice group and extend its services to more people in need.

The hospice program established the fund in response to a challenge issued by the community foundation. For every dollar donated, the foundation pledged an additional dollar, up to $5,000. The challenge match has proved to be a good incentive, as Charlevoix County Hospice quickly met the goal and now has just over $10,000 in its endowment fund. Individuals, families, organizations, and businesses may add to the fund at any time by making an outright donation in expression of their support for hospice, or including the hospice fund in their planned gifts or wills. Donations to the new fund are tax deductible, and since they are made through the foundation, qualify for a special Michigan Income Tax credit as well.

Margaret Lasater, Executive Director of Charlevoix County Hospice, said the endowment will help hospice workers respond to the many health, emotional and spiritual needs of dying patients and their families.

"As a nonprofit organization, we depend on volunteers and community support," Lasater said. "This new fund gives us the means to enhance our services, now and for years to come."

Like other funds that are managed by the foundation, the hospice fund will be permanent. Only the earned income will be used to support projects, so the fund can continue to grow over the years. Recommendations for using the endowment's revenue will be made by the hospice board of directors.

More information about the hospice fund or community foundation is available by calling the foundation office at 536-2440, or writing P.O. Box 716, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Wedding

Dana and Scott Potter

Dana Loren and Scott B. Potter were joined in marriage June 1, 1997, at the East Upright Church of God in Charlevoix.

Dana is the daughter of the late Howard and Evelyn Burr, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Scott is the son of Dorothy Potter, of Lansing, and the late Warren Potter, of Laingsburg, Mich.

Pastor Jerry Polk, of Charlevoix, performed the double-ring rites and a candle lighting ceremony.

Sharon Henley was the maid of honor, and John Henley the best man, both friends of the bride and groom from Lansing.

Flower girl was Brittany Anderson. Ring bearer was Blake Anderson, both children of the bride.

Candle lighters were Joe Potter, son of the groom, and Brent Anderson, son of the bride.

Photographers were Kristina Potter, daughter of the groom, and Brandon Anderson, son of the bride.

A reception was held at the Charlevoix Country Club.

A honeymoon was taken in Boyne Highlands, Mich.

The couple and their children are making their home in Charlevoix, where Scott is project manager for Skyline Erectors and Dana is the assistant manager of the Pro Golf Shop at the Charlevoix Country Club.

Student attending freedom academy

Michael Cherry, of Charlevoix, has been selected to attend the week-long Michigan Freedom Academy held at Phelps Collins Air National Guard Base near Alpena, from July 7-12. Cherry, 17, is the son of Eric and Gail Cherry. He attends Charlevoix High School.

The Michigan Freedom Academy is an annual gathering of Michigan's future leaders to discuss and learn about freedom. This year, about 100 high school students that have just completed their junior year will attend as delegates to the academy, which has four primary objectives: promote a sense of patriotism, further the desire to lead, enhance one's appreciation of freedom, and better understand civic responsibility.

Speakers include a religious, political, business and military leaders, and members of an anti-drug activities program. During the week these speakers, staff and counselors will seek to give the delegates new ideas on how they can work to maintain and protect the freedoms which they inherited as citizens of the United States.

To qualify for the academy, students must have finished their junior year, have a grade point average of 3.0 or higher and be active in leadership and extracurricular activities.

Student delegates are divided into small groups or "flights" and are led by counselors. Group activities include discussions, formal presentations, organized sports and social hours, orientation on military academies, a speech contest and a raft race. All activities work toward the objective of building tomorrow's leaders.

Church breaks ground

The Bible Baptist Church held a ground breaking ceremony Sunday, June 22, at its new property on M-66, to commemorate a new era for the church.

Thousands of dollars have been given and committed to fund the new 10,000-square-foot building to be erected on the west side of M-66, one-half mile south of Kmart. Construction began Monday, although more money needs to be raised.

Because of overcrowding in the present building at 904 May Street, the congregation is anxious to sell the building that sits kiddy corner from the high school.

Pastor James Green, James Dare and Mark DenBoer hold the shovel before breaking ground for the Bible Baptist Church on M-66.

Church presents C.S. Lewis play

"Screwtape Letters," a new play based on the writing of the same title by C.S. Lewis, will be presented at First Congregational United Church of Christ, 101 State St., at 7 p.m. Friday, July 11. Actor Ronald Smeenge, a UCC minister, has developed a series of one-person dramas based on well-known Christian literature, and has previously toured northwest Michigan to rave reviews.

As "Uncle Screwtape," Smeenge portrays C.S. Lewis' invented friend who is given the supervision of his nephew Wormwood — a junior tempter. The wickedly funny and imaginative correspondence between these two addresses in a unique way the issues of good and evil, temptation, repentance and grace.

Because of the nature of the material, Smeenge suggests adult audiences only. Refreshments will be served during intermission. Tickets are available at the church office, and at the door the evening of the performance. A donation of $5 is requested. The public is invited.

Call 547-9122 for more information.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

With all the festivals and celebrations that summer time brings to northern Michigan, there are some special gatherings for believers during the season as well. I'm talking about camp meetings. Back in the days before movie theaters and television so occupied people's lives, many hearts found inspiration and encouragement by gathering together under the great outdoors to share their faith. In some places, tents were literally erected for the occasion. In others, barns became sanctuaries. Down in Tennessee, where my wife is from, they went to the woods and cut pine trees to build "brush arbors" for their worship times.

The singing was dependent on who brought what to the meeting. Guitars and fiddles have been popular. Accordions gave a unique twist to the old hymns. I remember one meeting where a harmonica made the sweetest music this side of heaven. There's something about hearing a congregation really break into four-part harmony. There's something moving and encouraging when the words flow deep from within your heart.

The preaching is more emotional than you might hear from a traditional pulpit. The speakers seem to have a different kind of earnestness in their deliveries. You can sense an urgency in their words that reminds you that Jesus might just come back that very night.

Many camp meetings have altar calls. Long before Billy Graham urged people to respond to the Lord's leading to the strains of "Just As I Am," evangelists have pleaded with their audiences to consider their standing before God. Folks who sense the Spirit's dealing with their hearts are urged to come forward and kneel at a rough hewn bench to make their peace with God.

You don't hear much about camp meetings today. Maybe we've gotten too busy for them, or maybe folks are just keeping them a well-kept secret. But they are out there and they are alive and quite well. I am aware of four that happen every June and July right here in our area.

An alliance of evangelical Protestant churches hold the Northern Michigan Holiness Campmeeting in Boyne City every year. What makes this gathering so unique is that it crosses denominational lines and those attending are exposed to different faith traditions in each service.

The family of God that calls the Greensky Hill United Methodist Church their home also counts camp meeting among their annual summertime traditions. They bring the special heritage and blessing of the Native American community to bear in worship and in praise.

My own communion has had a camp meeting presence in Charlevoix since 1896. Holy Island, off of M-66, was the site of their early gatherings. They moved from their into their present home on 40 acres at Loeb and Veenstra roads around 1906. These days the fourth Saturday of June and the second Saturday of July find camp meetings taking place there for a whole week. People come from all over the Midwest to share their faith and be a part of God's family gathering.

With the Freedom Festival in East Jordan, the Polish Festival in Boyne Falls, and our own Venetian Festival here in Charlevoix, visitors have plenty of reasons to explore Michigan's beautiful north. But I thought you might like a reminder that God's people have some summer time fun going on, too. You are more than welcome to check out the beacons of blessing each of these gatherings can offer you.

Future governing of traffic at M-66, U.S. 31 left to state

city officials.

Malowitz said that with only one drive, traffic was backing up to the light while drivers were waiting to turn into the shopping center. Mayor Josh Barnes and councilmember, Don Meggison, said they had not seen such backups.

However, after talking with land owner, Leo Quinn, an orthopedic doctor from Florida, council voted to lift the ban on the entrance. A discussion with Quinn indicated his doubt in the city's authority to close a drive on a state highway that runs into a privately owned development.

At Thursday's meeting, council discussed the perception that business at the stores in Captain's Corner is down because of the closed entrance.

Even though they questioned the validity of that claim, they weren't willing to risk having a lawsuit brought against the city for sticking to a resolution that may not be legal.

Mayor Josh Barnes asked that the original motion to close the drive be changed.

"We're rescinding action that probably was inappropriate," he said, prior to the vote.

A letter to Quinn was immediately dictated to the city manager's secretary by Barnes indicating the by unanimous vote, the council rescinded its decision to close the drive. A vote was then taken, confirming Barnes' forecast that the vote would be unanimous.

The decision on what to do with the entrances is being left with developers and the state department of transportation.

Daniel Lund, district traffic and safety engineer for the state, told Charlevoix Police Chief, Dennis Halverson, in a letter, that the proposed reconfiguration of Marion Center Road and a proposed center left-turn lane for M-66 could have a large impact on traffic at Captain's Corner.

"My recommendation at this time is to leave the two driveways open and to put a left-turn prohibition into the north driveway via "No Left Turn" signs," he wrote.

The city, however, will not be placing signs on the highway or in the shopping center regarding left turns. That, too, will be the responsibility of developers and the state.

Mayor looks to travel

stepping back, but not slowing down.

The self-described "water rat," who, in a perfect world, would whittle his time away free-diving, "hunting the bottom of the sea in Bora Bora," Barnes could easily continue in his role without missing a beat.

He admitted that he considered tackling the job for another year, but felt that now was the perfect time for fading into the background. He said the company has found a great new president in Jeff Roski.

"It would be better if I am not active in the company," he said. "Everybody needs to see that he's running the company."

Barnes will remain as director of both LexaLite and Summa, and said that his first focus after retirement will be finishing his post as Charlevoix's mayor. Beyond that, he plans to travel, to take a houseboat trip through the Colorado River and into lakes Mead, Mohavey and Powell. He would also like to visit South Africa, a territory he has yet to see.

"I won't be taking any major trips until after November 1998," he joked, the time when he will be replaced for mayor after not seeking re-election.

Senso
by Widex

the smallest, most advanced digital hearing aid in the world!!!!

Senso by Widex ... 100% Digital, is now available here in northern Michigan. Senso was developed through extensive acoustic research in Denmark.

Senso is not just a hearing aid, but rather a computer utilizing a chip so small it fits into the eye of a needle.

Senso can make 40 million - yes 40,000,000 - calculations per second and thus delivers the sound signal significantly clearer.

What this means to the hearing aid user is clearer, sharper reception. The improvement is much like what the CD disk does for music or Digital High Definition TV does for television.

Another Danish hearing aid manufacturer - Oticon, with Digifocus, offers a digital format but it is not nearly as sophisticated as Senso. Oticon Digifocus also is not available in all styles of hearing aids, as Senso is. No other hearing aid manufacturer offers what Senso does; Not Resound, Not Starkey, Not Miracle Ear, Not Beltone, Not Oticon Digifocus.

Local company purchases pack of newspapers

Frank Shepherd, president and chief executive officer of 21st Century Newspapers Acquisition, Inc., announced the signing of a definitive agreement to purchase The Oakland Press, a daily newspaper with a circulation of 86,000 and Sunday circulation of 105,000 from ABC, Inc.

Shepherd, of Charlevoix, runs the company locally. He is married to Beth and they have one son, Jim.

Shepherd formed 21st Century nearly two years ago to acquire and operate community newspapers. In addition to his own investment, Shepherd raised financing from a group of private investors.

Included in the purchase was The Lapeer County Press, a twice weekly paid newspaper with a circulation of 17,000, The Brown City Banner, The Armada Times, The County Line Reminder, The Thumb Blanket, five real estate publications titled Homes for Sale and The Newsweekly. All the newspapers are located in southeastern and the thumb area of Michigan.

"These are exceptionally strong newspaper franchises in superior markets with top management and excellent employees," Shepherd said. "We at 21st are excited to have the opportunity to purchase these papers from ABC, Inc. The Oakland County market is one of the wealthiest and fastest growing counties in the U.S."

Shepherd

Shepherd, a newspaper executive with more than 35 years of experience, was previously president and chief executive officer of Stauffer Communications, Inc., in Topeka, Kan. Stauffer owned 23 daily newspapers, nine television stations, four radio stations and several magazines. Prior to Stauffer, Shepherd was vice president of newspaper operations for Scripps Howard in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Shepherd began his newspaper career in Port Huron, working for The Times Herald Co., eventually becoming general manager of The Daily Sentinel in Utica, Mich. He joined Panax Corporation of East Lansing in 1968 and rose to executive vice president and chief executive officer, and a member of the board of directors. Upon the sale of Panax in 1981, Shepherd purchased a publishing company in Houston, Texas. He joined Scripps Howard in 1984.

Charlevoixian named director of regional center

Lake Superior State University turned to one of its students with firsthand experience when it was time to hire a new director for its regional centers in Petoskey and Traverse City.

Scheelk

Rebecca Scheelk, of Charlevoix, started work as the new director of the sites June 2.

Scheelk graduated from North Central Michigan College in Petoskey with and associate's degree in banking and finance and is two classes away from earning her bachelor's degree from LSSU in business administration. She took her bachelor's degree classes through LSSU's regional center in Petoskey.

LSSU had four regional centers at community colleges in northern Michigan: North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, Alpena Community College in Alpena, and Bay de Noc Community College in Escanaba.

At Petoskey and Traverse City, LSSU offers four-year degrees in business administration, accounting, BSN nursing (Petoskey only), criminal justice (Traverse City only) and engineering management (Traverse City only), as well as master's degrees in business administration and public administration.

"All classes at the regional centers are offered evenings and weekends to fit the schedule of busy adult students who wish to continue their educational goals without disrupting their jobs and families," said Susan Camp, director of LSSU Community Services and Development.

The regional center office at North Central in Petoskey is located in room 48 of the administration building. Scheelk may be reached at 348-6623 between 1-8 p.m. on Tuesdays and 8:30 a.m. -4:30 p.m. on Wednesdays.

In Traverse City, she may be reached at NMC's University Center, Suite 200-N, or by calling (616) 922-1795. Office hours are 1-8 p.m. on Mondays and 8:30 a.m. -4:30 p.m. on Thursdays.

Scheelk and her husband Paul have three sons: Benjamin, 9, Samuel, 7, and Patrick, 3.

Big Two-Hearted gallery adds to inventory of fine arts

Ned E. Duke, formerly of Duke Gallery, is pleased to announce the expansion of The Big Two-Hearted Antiques and Fine Art Gallery of Charlevoix.

The gallery features Mission Oak furniture from the Arts and Crafts period. Ned Duke, and his daughter, Chloe, who now manages the Charlevoix showrooms, also carry rustic furniture, authentic lighting, American art pottery and period accessories. Interior design services are also available for both commercial and residential projects.

Changes to the existing operation include:

— A larger selection of Mission oak furniture,

— Increased inventory of Rookwood Pottery,

— The addition of select native American photographs by Edward S. Curtis, — Expanded lower level featuring Rittenhouse and other rustic furniture,

— Renovated outer building with a large selection of North American game mounts including Moose, Elk, Deer and Mountain Goat.

The Charlevoix gallery is located at 604 Bridge Street and is open throughout the year. The Dukes also exhibit at select shows in Michigan and across the United States. Design services and consultations are available through the Ann Arbor office.

Alex Belenski

Alex Belenski, 85, of Charlevoix, died June 23, 1997, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

Funeral was 11 a.m. Friday, June 27, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The service was conducted by Charlevoix V.F.W. Post No. 1153. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Belenski was born June 10, 1912, in Youngstown, Ohio, the son of Joseph and Susan (Bosnyak) Belenski. He was raised in Youngstown.

During World War II, Mr. Belenski served as a paratrooper with the 101st Airborne Division. He was among the paratroopers who landed in Normandy on D-Day behind German lines prior to the shore invasion. Mr. Belenski also infiltrated Holland, Belgium, Ardennes, Bastogne, Rhineland, and participated in the Battle of the Bulge. He was a recipient of the Bronze Star.

Mr. Belenski worked as a typesetter for Truscon Division of Republic Steel in Youngstown, retiring in 1973.

He moved to the Detroit area in 1974, and married Marabeth E. Taplin on April 25, 1981, in Livonia. They moved to Charlevoix from Southfield in 1985.

He was a life member of Charlevoix V.F.W. Post 1153 and was an active member of its color guard.

Survivors include his wife, Marabeth E.; two stepsons, Alan Taplin and wife, Carrie, of Maumee, Ohio, and Keith Taplin of Carmel, N.Y.; two stepdaughters, Barbara LaRowe and hushand, Randall, of Wheaton, Ill., and Nancy Clolek and hushand, Jon, of Winfield, Ill; step-grandchildren, Emily Taplin, Marysa and Matthew LaRowe, Melanie and Bradley Clolek; special cousins, Arnold and Stefeny Sabo, of Youngstown, and many other cousins. He was preceded in death by two brothers, Joseph and John; sister, Mary Yuhasz; and nephew, John Yuhasz.

Memorial contrihutions may be made to V.F.W. Post 1153. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. There was no visitation.

James A. Martin

James A. Martin, 75, of Charlevoix, died June 24, 1997, at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Thursday, June 26, at Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters of the Community Reformed Church officiated. Burial was in Barnard Cemetery.

Mr. Martin was born Oct. 22, 1921, in Charlevoix, the son of John and Clarabelle (Ruckle) Martin. He grew up and attended school in Charlevoix.

During World War II, he was a staff sergeant in the U.S. Army Air Corps, serving as an airplane and engine mechanic and flight maintenance gunner. He served for three years and was discharged Oct. 5, 1945, at Fort Bliss, Texas.

On Oct. 22, 1948, he married Clara L. Cummings in Charlevoix.

Mr. Martin was a heavy equipment operator for the City of Charlevoix Street Department for 32 years, retiring in 1983.

Mr. Martin has spent his winters in Paisley, Fla., since 1984.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Senior Center and Barnard Grange.

He is survived by his wife, Clara, of Charlevoix; two sons, James Allen Martin of Harbor Springs, and Greg Martin and wife, Betty, of Charlevoix; one daughter, Connie Martin, of Altamonte Springs, Fla.; five grandchildren, Adam James Martin of Delton, Mich., Ketrina Smethurst and husband, Phil, of Fayette, Ohio, Christopher Martin of Bryon, Ohio, Carrie Cunningham of Charlevoix, and Paul Cunningham and his wife, Andrea, of Azores Islands; great-grandchild, Kamri Monroe Cunningham; brother, Phil Martin, of Charlevoix; four sisters, Irene Supernaw and her husband, Rex, of Charlevoix, Winifred Gregory of Petoskey, Phyllis Gill of Charlevoix, and Sarah Cummings and husband, Lloyd, of Charlevoix.

Mr. Martin was preceded in death by Frances, John, Claire, Frank and Pat Martin.

Memorial contributions may be made to Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Senior Center or Barnard Grange. Envelopes are available at Winchester Funeral Home, where friends called from 7-9 p.m. June 25.

John Stuart, Jr.

John Stuart, Jr., 85, formerly of Bradenton, Fla., and formerly of the Chicago Club in Charlevoix, died April 25, 1997, in Bradenton, Fla.

Graveside service will be 11 a.m. Friday, July 11, 1997, at Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix. Sister Carol Stuart, of The Worker Sisters of The Holy Spirit of the Episcopal Church, will officiate.

Mr. Stuart was born Jan. 1, 1912, in Hubbard Woods, Ill., and moved to Bradenton from Scottsdale, Ariz., eight years ago. He worked for Quaker Oats Co. in Europe and Canada. During his 20-some years in Peterborough, he raised prize white-faced Hereford cattle on Old Orchard Farm outside the city. He was a competitive sailor and golfer, and his interest in deep-sea fishing led him to Mexico, Bahamas, South America and Alaska.

Survivors include his wife, Wihla; two daughters, Joan of Coco Beach, Fla., and Stephanie of Scottsdale, Ariz.; one son, John, III, of Naples, Fla.; two sisters, Joan Richardson and Ellen Poole of Lake Forest, Ill.; and five grandchildren.

Local arrangements were made by Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Naida Burdick Ypma

Naida Burdick Ypma, 87, of Boulder Park Terrace in Charlevoix, died June 26, 1997.

There will be no visitation or service. Interment will take place at a later date in Rest Lawn Memorial Gardens in Holland, Mich.

Mrs. Ypma was born April 19, 1910, in Boyne City, the daughter of Perley and Emma (Hausler) Burdick. She graduated from Boyne City High School, where she was salutatorian of the Class of 1927. In 1931, she graduated from Western Michigan College in Kalamazoo.

Before her marriage, she taught school in Zeeland.

She married John Ypma on Dec. 27, 1933, in Zeeland. He preceded her in death on Jan. 5, 1969.

Mrs. Ypma worked for Sears and Roebuck Co. in Zeeland for more than 20 years. She then worked for the Wooden Shoe Factory in Holland, and returned to northern Michigan in 1993.

Mrs. Ypma was a member of the Emblem Club within the Elks Club.

Survivors include her daughter, Judith Ann Elzinga and her husband, Edwin, of Boyne City; two grandchildren, James Elzinga and his wife, Jill, of Vesper, Wisc., and Linda Perreault and her husband, Steve, of Glenwood Springs, Colo.; three great-grandchildren, Laurel, Rigel and Sam; and a hrother, Victor Burdick, and his wife, Billie, of Indian River.

Mrs. Ypma was preceded in death by two sisters, Arlene Davis and Eleanor Tobey; and by two brothers, Orvin and Glen Burdick.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Boyne City Historical Society or to the Charlevoix County Humane Society. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where arrangements were handled.

Statewide track meet a success in Charlevoix

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

On the hottest day of the young summer, track and field athletes from area states gathered at Charlevoix's Kipke Field Saturday for the United States of America Masters and Open State Championship.

"You just plain run slower," Charlevoix resident, Glenn Taylor, said of running during the heat that maxed out at 90 degrees. "For the mile and half mile it was perfect, but during the 5,000, I got real warm."

According to meet director, Mary Plude, 59 athletes competed in three age classifications, 29 and under (open), 30-39 (sub-master) and 40 and over (master). Most were Michiganders, but Plude said some came from Ohio and Illinois. The out-of-staters weren't eligible to medal, but came to town for the competition.

A handful from Charlevoix tested their mettle against both the heat and the field.

Taylor ran three events, the 5,000, 1,600, and 800. Competing in the masters division, he won the 5,000 in a time of 20:40, as well as the 800, clocking in at 2:44.6. He placed second in the mile run, finishing in 5:39.

Bill Parton, a 1997 Charlevoix graduate, ran the same long distance events, but in the open division. He took first in the 1,500 with a time of 5:50 and second in the 5,000. A distance runner when on the Rayder squad, he tried his luck in the quick 100-yard dash, finishing sixth.

> "In high school you get that chance, but it's not as often as an adult. I really enjoyed that."
> — Glenn Taylor, local competitor

For Steven and Ryan Smith, the afternoon was about potential dinner-table bragging rights. The father-son pair both competed in the pole vault, although in different divisions.

Ryan won the open division, vaulting 14 feet, while father Steven placed second in the masters with a height of nine feet.

"It was a really fun day," Ryan said, who next year will be a junior on the Miami, Ohio, track team. "He goes to my meets to watch, but this was more fun competing and egging each other on."

The Smiths were not the only Charlevoix family to have an impact on the meet. The Plude family, in addition to running the show, ran in some events.

Scott Plude placed eighth in the open division 100-yard dash, while Sonya Plude placed third in the lady's division of the same event. Ken Plude had a busy day, winning in the sub masters division for the discus, shot put, long jump and 400-meter run.

"He entered some of those events to learn at the same time," Mary Plude said of her husband, who is a middle distance specialist. "It'll make him a better coach."

After years of being in Detroit, Saginaw and other downstate venues, this was the event's first stay in Charlevoix. In the past, the meet took place at a college facility while a college meet was in process.

It worked because it was the only way to staff the meet. But as Mary Plude explained, it would barely be noticed as most of the spectators came for the collegiate competition. With the meet having its own stage in Charlevoix, the spotlight was on, resulting in a doubling of the number of competitors.

"Everyone was really pleased," Plude said. "This event will be back next year, and we're going to try to keep it here as a permanent annual event."

For next year, Plude hopes the contestant count will climb closer to 100, and the javelin throw added. She also wants the event to be held earlier in June. Finding volunteers for next year may be harder, Plude said, because many of the people who were enlisted this year plan to train and compete next year.

For Charlevoix's Glenn Taylor that is good news. A veteran of at least 15 road races a year, he had not been in a track meet since his senior year at Ellsworth in 1955, where he ran the mile while doubling as a baseball player for the Lancers.

"I was interested to see what I could do," he said. "In high school you get that chance, but it's not as often as an adult. I really enjoyed that."

It's tour time: sorority hosts annual home tour

Owners of seven of Charlevoix's finest homes are opening their doors for Kappa Sigma's Annual Home Tour, which will take place from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Wednesday, July 9.

The proceeds from the home tour will be donated to Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Charlevoix Community Pool. Tickets are $15 each and available at the following locations: The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls, The Clothing Co. in Charlevoix; Petoskey Chamber of Commerce and the Quiet Moose in Petoskey; Boyne Country Books in Boyne City; and the Tin Soldier in Harbor Springs. Tickets may also be purchased at each home on the day of the tour.

The homes represent a wide range of styles, including vintage historical, restored classic and modern architectural designs. Experience the breathtaking views of Round Lake, Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, as well as an Earl Young home and a home in the Charlevoix Country Club.

Fresh flower arrangements will be donated by Charlevoix Floral, Floral Designs by Colleen and Greenleaf Gardens. LexaLite International Corp. is a contributor for the "thank you" party.

Home Tour guests should park in designated areas and remove shoes at all houses. No bare feet are allowed in the homes, as well as no children under 12, smoking, food or beverages, and cameras.

Descriptions of the homes follow:

— John A. Winn: 123 Belvedere Avenue - "Winngagami Peaceful Waters" on Round Lake.

The very nature of a boathouse implies peacefulness — lapping water, wood decking, droning motors. Winngagami is redolent of that less hurried time when boathouses were built for aesthetics and anchorage. This recently completed Andre Poineau creation artfully blends a yesteryear facade with contemporary technology. Warm mahogany floors underscore cottage board walls and ceilings. Nautical motifs complement rooms that flow, one to another, like the watery berths below. A delightfully detailed interior evidences the skill and art of Jill Rowley Interiors.

Antique wooden boats perch high in the boathouse, ready for Lake Charlevoix action. Stogie, a 1920s design wooden craft, hangs in lead position. This 35-foot, Gold Cup race boat was built by nationally renowned boat builder, Steve VanDam. Many VanDam custom built pieces imbue the attached residence with a maritime ambiance.

The boathouse's topside is an entertainment room and deck devoted to the ever pleasant views of Round Lake harbor.

— Sidney and Beth Feldman: 306 Park Avenue, overlooking Lake Michigan.

Established in 1949, this home has become a historical attraction. This charming home is not only an Earl Young classic, but once served as the novel designer's own residence. The extraordinary architecture reflects the creativity of the designer, and the present owners have remained true to those visions. The home features a panoramic view of Lake Michigan and a cascading terraced patio encircled by the living quarters. Built primarily of ledge stone, the home features a grand fireplace and unique neon lighting. The owners have accented their home with fine Roseville pottery and Bakelite.

— Jon and Ranny Riecker: 13987 Division Street, overlooking Lake Michigan.

This spectacular home, nestled in the bluffs overlooking Lake Michigan, creates an image of Old World splendor from the moment you approach. Upon entry into the foyer area, the European ambiance of the home becomes all the more embracing. This home features magnificent wooden beams and elegant stone tile flooring, the boldness of which is nicely tempered by the recurring theme of thistles, which are carved and in-laid in the cabinetry. Perhaps the highlight of this tour stop is the open kitchen that the Rieckers added in 1996. It serves as a marvelous haven to socialize and relax. On the grounds, visitors will marvel at the respite walkways, a lap pool and a marvelous fountain and waterfall. Original builder - John Pearl; original owner - Virginia Olsen.

— Thomas and Karen LaVanway: 425 Michigan Avenue, on Lake Michigan.

With magnificent views of Lake Michigan, this completely renovated Arts-and-Crafts style home is the pride of its owners. The interiors of this home were designed with a growing family in mind. From the spacious living areas to the large master suite, the blend of comfort and function unite gracefully. The elegant kitchen, with its state-of-the-art appliances, combined with custom cabinetry and counters, uniquely maintains the integrity of this historical home.

— Gary and Vicky Schafer: Indian Trails Road on Oyster Bay, Lake Charlevoix.

From the inviting courtyard to the beautiful miniature conservatory, creativity is the hallmark of this most unique home. The owners have blended their own special talents with the serene setting of their home on Oyster Bay. Upon entry into the mosaic tile foyer, one sees a spiral staircase ascending over an open-air aquarium. Other interior highlights include the personal expressions of the residents, who have not only designed, but implemented the artistic touches. Eclectic art work and hand-painted wall designs add to the charm of this delightful home. The guest bedrooms each carry a defined theme, one of French accents and the other English Colonial. This fully refurbished home includes cabinetry by Willoway Specialties.

— Mike and Denise Schlitt: See Road in Oyster Pointe, on Lake Charlevoix.

Mike and Denise attribute the success in accomplishing their dream home to local designer/builder Jay Heininger. The open floor plan, with its suspended ceiling, expansive windows and stone pillars, gives a feeling of living outdoors while enjoying the warmth inside. Every area of the home provides a picture-perfect view of Lake Charlevoix. Outdoor enthusiasts would feel right at home in the cozy upstairs guest room, handcrafted entirely of cedar and oak.

The airy master suite features a spacious freestanding glass block shower that contrasts sharply with the dark green marbled floor. The focal point for entertaining and conversation takes place in the gourmet kitchen, where there is no fighting for workspace while preparing meals. A 1,500-square-foot game room provides loads of activity for the long winter season. From the early stages of design to the final landscaping detail, this Frank Lloyd Wright style home provides delight from every angle.

— Robert and Linda Hoffman: 12272 Country Club Drive, Charlevoix Country Club.

This spacious home takes you into a setting reminiscent of a mountain cottage. The rustic elegance combines the best of present-day conveniences with the feeling of a bygone era of screened-in porches and butlers' pantries. The 22-foot stone fireplace is the focal point of the great room, and the warm and inviting kitchen a natural gathering place for family and friends. The effective use of bold colors complements the overall theme.

Mike and Denise Schlitt have a home that welcomes in the outdoors. In step with the rest of the house, the kitchen is open, spacious and decorated in glass.

At first glance, Jon and Ranny Riecker's home overlooking Lake Michigan looks like a place where Snow White might seek refuge. But the 5,000-plus square foot home winds through the woods and has a lap pool in the backyard.

The home of Thomas and Karen LaVanway was recently featured in Traverse, the magazine, for renovations made to the Glen Lake log home with a growing family in mind.

A STRONG FINANCIAL HISTORY OF COMMUNITY SERVICE JUST BECAME STRONGER.

Many bank mergers are actually one set of beliefs swallowing another. Often, everyone has to then adjust to the dominant partner, including bank customers.

Not so with the merger between City Bank & Trust Co, City Bank, CB North and their new partner Citizens Bank (A Michigan Bank established in 1871). You see, we all have the same history and a common belief in serving the communities where we do business. It's a strong tradition that will remain unchanged as the driving force behind the combined efforts of all of our people. Yes, there will be some changes. Both partners will become stronger and more secure. As part of Citizens Banking Corporation your bank will become part of the fourth largest bank-holding company in Michigan. Which means customers like you will have over 120 branches to serve you (not to mention over 120 ATMs).

A CHANGE OF SIGNS THAT'S NOT A SIGN OF CHANGE IN PHILOSOPHY.
Oh, and yes, the signs will change to Citizens Bank. But it isn't a sign of a change in those basic beliefs which we've all become known for. Just a strong indication of renewed dedication to the local communities we serve.

JOIN US ON JULY 3RD FOR A "COMMUNITY APPRECIATION DAY" OPEN HOUSE.
We value you as clients and would like to show our appreciation for your continued business. Drop by with any questions or just to chat with old friends down at the bank. We thought it would be a nice way to welcome you to the advantages of Citizenship.

Plastic surgeon joins Charlevoix Area Hospital

Dennis Hammond, M.D., hand and plastic surgeon, is taking patients at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Hammond specializes in breast and body contouring and uses state-of-the-art ultrasonic techniques for liposuction.

"Ultrasonic assisted liposculpture has a much smoother body result, plus it is less invasive and recovery is more rapid than with past liposuction techniques," Hammond said.

Hammond received his doctor of medicine degree with distinction from the University of Michigan Medical School in 1985. He was a fellow in hand and microsurgery at the Medical College of Wisconsin; and a fellow in aesthetic and reconstructive breast and cosmetic surgery at the Institute for Aesthetic and Reconstructive Surgery at Baptist Hospital in Nashville, Tenn. He served his residency in plastic and reconstructive surgery at the Grand Rapids Area Medical Education Center. He is board certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery.

He has published many scientific articles and papers. He presently practices at the Hand and Plastic Surgery Center in Grand Rapids, and will be scheduling surgery at Charlevoix Area Hospital for two days each month for all types of plastic and cosmetic surgery, including facial, hand, aesthetic and reconstructive breast surgery, and body sculpting.

For appointments at Charlevoix Area Hospital please call (616) 459-4131.

Historic Independence Day

Top left: This is Bridge Street as it appeared on May 31, 1908. The curbing was in for the soon-coming paving. Top right: The Fourth of July celebration of 1908 was an event of double importance for Charlevoix. The laying of the Bithulithic paving had just been completed. People came from far and wide to see the clean, new street as much as the fireworks.

Oh boix

A collection of praises, awards and accomplishments of Charlevoix area people.

Regan Crawford, the daughter of Larry and Deborah Crawford, John Heck, the son of Dennis and Eileen Heck, and Gregg Holmes, the son of Michael and Barbara Holmes were each named to the dean's list at Northwood University in Midland. The student had to earn at least a 3.0 grade point average to earn the honor for the spring term.

Three Charlevoix students were named to the dean's list at Michigan Tech for the spring term. They are: Jason Donald Firman, a general engineering major, Helen Veleta Hamlin, an electrical engineering major, and Matthew Robinson, an electrical engineering major. The student had to earn at least a 3.5 grade point average to receive the honor. Hamlin also graduated cum laude this spring with degrees in engineering management and electrical engineering. Robinson graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering.

David Salmonson, the son of Terry and Lynn Salmonson, graduated from Oakland University with honors recently. He graduated suma cum laude with a journalism major.

Anthony Doan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Doan, graduated from Culver Military Academy in Culver, Ind., June 1. As a four-year student, Doan received the academy's highest academic honors and the 1996-97 Most Efficient Artillery Officer Award, the 1996-97 Cadet Club Medal, which is given by the fellow cadets, and the 1993-94 Colonel George T. Gunston Medal, given to the most military artilleryman.

T.J. Stewart, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Stewart, of Charlevoix, graduated from Culver Girls Academy in Culver, Ind., June 1. A two-year student, Stewart received the academy's second highest academic honors achieving at least a 3.2 grade point average. She has also studied as an instrumentalist and vocalist. She received a first rating at the district and state-level of the 1995-96 Indiana State School Music Association instrumental contest, and a first rating in the 1996-97 voice contest. Prior to graduation, she was presented the W. J. O'Callaghan Award, which is given to the graduating senior who is judged to be the most outstanding musician.

Two Charlevoix residents have been named as 1997 graduates at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. Leslie Cunningham and David Olach earned their degrees this spring.

Summer concerts continue Thursday

For the second year, Larry Wojcik & Friends will entertain the crowd at the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion in East Part as the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's summer concert series continues.

Performing at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 3, the quintet will entertain with interpretations of compositions by performers such as Henry Mancini, Sonny Rollins, and Cole Porter, in a variety of tempos and styles that is meant to appeal to all ages 1 to 90. This variety gives the audience the opportunity to dance or sit back and reminisce.

The band, organized by musical contractor Larry Wojcik, features many promising musicians. It includes Jeff Kessler, a first-call instrumentalist from Dewitt, playing keyboard; Joe Lucoff, a professor of saxophone at Michigan State University, playing the saxophone; David Frackenpohl, a teacher at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y., and faculty member at Interlochen Center for the Arts, on guitar; Utah Hamrick, a recent graduate of Central Michigan University, on acoustic and electric bass; and Larry Wojcik on drums.

Wojcik started his career playing drums at the age of 10, and had his first professional engagement at the age of 12. An entertainer in the northern Michigan area for more than 30 years, he has played all over the world.

The next concert in the series begins at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 10, featuring the popular country band, Loose Change.

In the event of rain or inclement weather, the concerts will be canceled.

Airport ordinance outlines future plans

Part-time employee joining city

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Monday evening another step was taken to move the municipal air into a new era of growth and organization. City council passed an airport dinance which defines a variety of rules, regulations, and restrictions for th airport's day-to-day workings.

While most of the rules refer to no hunting, snowmobiling, or driving o airport grounds, some define more sensitive issues, such as placing the burde of clean-up on individual tenants and ensuring that all airport business pass the city manager's approval.

This ordinance is one in a series of moves in the last three months to u grade the airport to, in what mayor Josh Barnes considers as "Charlev class."

In April, council passed legislation prohibiting anyone from selling fu until a $2 million bond is fronted. Last month, council approved a variety o fees ranging from landings, tie-downs and licenses for outside business operations.

Presently, new hangars are being constructed for private use to be lea out from the city manager's office. The hangars, at a minimum, will be 42-b 42 feet and will cost 70 cents per square foot, per year. Terms of most lea will be for 25 years. Barnes said the there are six active applications f hangars and that the city can't build them fast enough.

A new, part-time city employee will be hired to help the city manag with airport responsibilities.

Island Airways runs the day-to-day business, but only on a loose mon to-month agreement, which Barnes said has hindered long-term planning a improvements.

Council accepts promise to pay

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

After getting more than two years behind on payments, Charlevoix North Properties president, James Vogt, has promised city council members to pay in full for Sleep Inn's water tap-in fees this summer.

The chain hotel was two annual payments behind, prompting the city to threaten to foreclose on the property. Since then, a payment schedule has been presented by Charlevoix North Properties president, James Vogt, and accepted by city council.

The company had previously agree to pay $18,750 for three years — to total $40,986, including interest — to cover tapping into the city's water system. A payment schedule was made possible by city ordinance that allows council to accept payments on businesses that have a tap-in fee exceeding $25,000 and brings jobs into the community.

When payments didn't come, city attorney, Jim Young, filed a notice of acceleration, which calls for payment of the debt in full.

"I am in full agreement with the contents of the notice and nothing contained therein is in dispute," Vogt told the city in a letter. "Further, I am not asking that the notice be rescinded, merely that additional time be granted to satisfy the outstanding indebtedness to the city."

Legal action foreclosing on the company was stalled while Vogt was negotiating payment to the city. On Monday, the city received a check for $10,000. According to the new payment schedule presented by Vogt, there will be two more payments of $10,000, with a final payment due on the balance by Monday, Aug. 18.

"They are trying to show that they will act in good faith," said city treasurer Rick Brandi.

Making a final payment by Aug. 18 will clear the company's debt ahead of schedule.

"It is unfortunate that this situation occurred," Vogt said.

Council passed approved the new payment schedule with councilmember Bernie DeVries casting the only no vote. As councilmember, Bruce Reid voted, he said, "If not, pull out the hounds."

Mayor Josh Barnes, however, was more optimistic.

"We are healed," he said.

New school board gets busy, changes meetings

Three new board members wasted little time Monday placing their stamp on Charlevoix's education, block voting a new member onto the board and switching the regular meeting schedule.

Ike Boss, Barney Way and Scott Boss all supported Peter Spieles in his bid to fill the one-year vacancy left when Jerry Owens resigned. Supported as well by Ardeth Wieland, Spieles was sworn in and took part in the rest of the meeting.

Charlevoix hospital names new president

Appointment comes quickly

The board of directors of Charlevoix Area Hospital appointed William Jackson as president of the hospital, effective July 1.

Jackson has been vice president of financial services and chief financial officer of the hospital for the past 17 years. He is a 1973 graduate of Michigan State University with a bachelor of arts degree in accounting and is a certified public accountant.

He has served as treasurer of the board for the Michigan Health and Hospital Association Workers Compensation Committee. He is a member of the Health Care Financial Managers Association and past president of its local chapter. He is also a member of the American College of Health Care Executives and represents Charlevoix Area Hospital's interest in Vital Care, a regional home health organization.

Jackson

Locally, Jackson served for six years and is past president of the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union board, and is on the zoning board of appeals for Norwood Township.

His wife, Sharon, is co-owner of Busy Bridge Gifts and Antiques in East Jordan. They have two children, Dan and Andrea, both who are in college.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is a 44-bed hospital which was founded in 1919. It is an independent, non-profit hospital which serves Charlevoix and northern Antrim counties.

Events in brief

Accident causes danger of explosion

An accident causing gasoline to leak onto Bridge Street, near Carpenter, was one of nine accidents in Charlevoix in the past week.

At 2:15 p.m. July 2, a car and trailer, driven by Thomas Schultz, of Wausau, Wisc., was rear ended by Matthew Strong, of Millersburg, Mich. Schultz's car was stopped behind another vehicle, according to Charlevoix Police Chief, Dennis Halverson.

The tongue of the trailer rammed into the tow vehicle. The Charlevoix Fire Department was dispatched to supervise the separation of the vehicles because of the danger of fuel spilling.

Strong was ticketed for speeding.

There were no injuries in the accident. Also, there were no injuries in the other eight accidents in town, two of which were alcohol related.

Arts council auction coming to country club

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is presenting its 18th annual auction at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 15, at the Charlevoix Country Club. Items autographed by celebrities like Sammy Kershaw, Diane Sawyer, Arthur Miller, Alberto Tomba, Art Buchwald, Brett Favre, Kenny G, Barney and Wendy's Dave Thomas will be auctioned off.

The auction is the council's largest fund-raiser and supports arts programs in Charlevoix and Emmet counties.

Bidders can vie for the opportunity to be a character in an Art Buchwald column, and become the owner of a golf ball autographed by Lee Trevino. Other items up for auction are works of art, home furnishings, apparel, lodging, fine dining, jewelry, gourmet treats and pottery.

Cocktails will be served at 5:30 p.m., with silent and live auctions to follow.

Admission is $25 per person in advance or $30 the evening of the auction. Reservations may be made by calling 347-4337 or by stopping by the McCune Arts Center in Petoskey.

Local woman hurt in early morning accident

A Charlevoix woman was injured when her car veered off Boyne City-Charlevoix Road at 3 a.m. Saturday in Hayes Township.

Tishia Marie Lee, 22, received facial and head injuries from the accident, according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. She was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment. She has been released.

Lee's car was eastbound when it left the road and struck a group of small trees, then hit a road culvert and embankment, police said. She had to be removed from the car with the Jaws of Life.

She was not wearing a seatbelt, and police report that the accident is alcohol related. The accident remains under investigation.

Group learns pros, cons of using tires as fuel source

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

An environmentalist, industry consultant and tire representative spoke to the public July 2 at city hall about the heaps of scrap tires building up in the country, and the potential pros and cons of burning those tires in cement kilns as fuel sources.

The speakers were brought to Charlevoix by the Water and Air Team of Charlevoix (W.A.T.C.H.) as part of their annual meeting.

Group member, Jerry Puhl, said the meeting was an educational session so his group and the public would be aware should Medusa Cement Co. of Charlevoix decide to burn tires.

As a group, W.A.T.C.H. has yet to take a stance on this issue.

Medusa had an open application to burn tires for most of the decade, but it expired in 1995. Company representatives said they never burned tires during that time. They have not stated whether the company plans to reapply for a permit.

Burning tires is, however, a growing trend within the cement industry. In 1987 only two plants, one in Fairborn, Ohio, and the other in Calaveras, Calif., burned tires as a fuel source. Today, 37 out of 110 cement plants burn tires. By the end of the year, nine more plants should be added to list.

"They are making inroads in the scrap tire problem," said Bob Weatherhead, consultant for the cement industry. "Tire chunks burn a better fuel than coal by anyone's standards."

As for ramifications for the Charlevoix area should Medusa burn tires, little is known. The panel agreed that whether or not toxic emissions would go or up or down depends on the individual plant and that stack-fire testing would need to be done at Medusa.

Those tests cost "tens of thou-

Defendents of crack, pot charges near trial

A two day jury trial has been set for Tuesday, Aug. 5, in the crack cocaine dealing case against Michael Russell and Pamela Stoneham Fuller.

Russell and Fuller have a sextet of drug charges ranging from dealing, conspiracy to deal and possession of both cocaine and marijuana.

The pair were arrested at their 214 Mason Street home in the early morning hours of March 17. Police arrived on their doorstep, warrant in hand, after two controlled buys were completed by representatives for the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (S.A.N.E.) team.

The team sent in a confidential informant, a distant relative to Fuller, into the couples' rented home on two occasions to buy drugs.

In the preliminary hearing, John Michael, attorney for Russell, attempted to get the dealing charges against his client reduced or dropped, stating that Russell had never had contact with the informant and was watching a movie on TV with a friend during both buys.

District Court judge Richard May, however, added two conspiracy charges to the docket of charges, in large part, because when Russell was arrested, the marked money was found in his pocket, and the informant had testified that he had seen the couple argue about the deal that night.

A plea-agreement deadline has been set as Friday, July 11, and all motions to be considered must be in by then. The defendants each face 2-20 years in prison if convicted of the charges.

Heating up a hot day

Charlevoix firefighters douse the flames engulfing the front end of William Hansen's car July 2. The car is a complete loss, according to city fire chief, Doug Carver.

Car ignites while being driven

A full-sized station wagon was destroyed by fire July 2 at State and West Lincoln streets.

The car, which is owned and was driven by William Hansen, ignited while going down the road after gasoline got into the engine compartment. Hansen told firefighters that he had previously had problems with the fuel line.

"With a fire like that, it has to be gasoline fed," Charlevoix Fire Chief Doug Carver said. "It was so hot, so fast."

Firefighters were on the scene about 40 minutes.

Traffic was rerouted by Charlevoix police.

Carver said the fire generated a lot of smoke, the same amount as is generated by a small house fire.

Two fire trucks and 14 firefighters responded to douse the flames.

Vehicles shouldn't be used as short-term babysitters

EDITORIAL

Whether summer, spring, winter or fall, it's never safe to leave children in unattended cars. And it's even more dangerous to leave children in running vehicles.

It may take a few more minutes to take a young child out of a restraint seat. And it may require more patience to hold a curious child's hand while waiting in line to ship a package at the post office. However, the inconvenience far outweighs the potential dangers to a young person.

Often, the Courier staff sees parents rush in and out of their vehicles with children left behind while the unknown task is accomplished. We encourage parents, grandparents and child care providers to take time to either get a sitter, ask a neighbor to accompany them so an adult will be in the car to supervise or take the children with them while doing errands.

Child abduction, thankfully, is not in the forefront of parents' minds in Charlevoix. However, there are other dangers involved in leaving children in an vehicle that requires training and licensing to operate. Gear shifts can be knocked out of place. Horns can be become neighborhood nuisances. And carbon monoxide can build up while an unsuspecting parent gets delayed.

According to the Charlevoix Police Department, it is not illegal to leave a child unattended in a vehicle, but it can lead to a child neglect investigation by the Department of Social Services. Whether or not police will report such an incident depends on the circumstances, including the time of day and length of time an adult is away from the car or truck.

"In five minutes, a lot can go wrong," said Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson.

We agree. The slight relief that is felt when not having to move the troops into the stores is not worth the tragedy that can occur in seconds.

Although it isn't "illegal" to leave children in a parked vehicle, it is against the law to leave a running vehicle unattended, whether or not there is a child inside. So the thought of controlling the climate by leaving the air conditioning or heat running only takes the mistake a step further.

In addition to children, don't leave pets wandering around inside a parked car or truck either. In Charlevoix, police encounter a lot of pets being left behind while their master takes care of business. This, too, isn't advisable. Leave the pet at home or take them for a ride when you don't have to run errands.

Vehicles are never dangerous without the misuse of people. Let's be safe whether we're driving 60 mph down the highway or whether we're running in to grab the mail.

Letters to the editor

Help tighten ethnic intimidation act, write elected officials

Editor:

The 1988 Ethnic Intimidation Act, which rightfully assesses heavier penalties against those convicted of hate bias motivated crimes, presently excludes four groups who are targets of more and more vicious hate-biased violence.

I refer to gays, lesbians, bisexuals and transgendered citizens.

House Bill (H.B. 4674) will add two significant words to the original act: "sexual orientation."

My wife and I urge your consideration and support of this bill (H.B. 4674).

Write or call your state representatives and governor as Raechel and I have done.

Respectfully,
John and Raechel Alberts

Beauty pageants for children don't have to be expensive

Editor:

You ran an item about the cancellation of the area beauty pageant and the director's hope that it can be revived.

My daughter was interested in being in a pageant, but the major cost, I think it was about $175 to enter, made us reconsider. That does not count the costs of costumes, makeup, etc.

Pageants can be good experiences for children, but they are money-making businesses. Telling children to go out and find "sponsors" to pay the costs for them to have a good time is not developing a sense of responsibility as far as I am concerned.

If children want to be in a pageant, they might do what we did last year — have one in the backyard.

The half-dozen contestants did everything that is done in regular contests, including the formal competition.

The cost — $2 each to buy small gifts. Families came (that's who usually has to buy tickets to those things anyway), and a lot of pictures and videos were taken.

The kids learned a lot, had a great time, and when the time comes to try out for Homecoming Queen, they will at least have the confidence to give it a shot.

More than 200 craft exhibits to fill park

Combine one of the most picturesque settings in the state with a gathering of more than 200 craftsmen and women from throughout the United States and the result is Charlevoix's 29th Annual Craft Show, a bonanza of opportunity for collectors. This year the show will held from 9 a.m. to dusk Saturday, July 12.

All available spaces in Charlevoix's waterfront parks, on Round Lake harbor, are filled by artisans displaying a great variety of crafts — wooden furniture, birdhouses, pottery, jewelry, quilted works, toys, original folk art, baskets, hand-woven rugs, dried florals and herbs, hand-painted clothes, Native American bead work, decoys, dolls, stained glass, and, of course, holiday items.

Exhibitors come from a range of backgrounds. Some are full-time craftsmen and women, while others find time to devote to a favored hobby. "It's a very interesting craft show," said long-time exhibitor Phyllis Young of Elk Rapids. Phyllis has participated in 26 of Charlevoix's 29 crafts shows. Her jewelry features "Just Love Michigan" designs on necklaces, earrings and pins.

Jeannette McIntosh-Nemeth of East Jordan makes original muslin "artist" dolls with hand-painted faces. Each doll is one of a kind that is signed and numbered by the artist. Charles Crandell of Petoskey creates functional art. His woodworking produces a variety of jewelry boxes featuring dovetailing, inlays and wooden hinges. His finished products are made primarily of Michigan woods with natural oil and wax finishes.

"The quality of this show is very high," said Linda Boss of Charlevoix. She hand paints her original designs on children's clothes, totes, mailboxes and beverage glasses. As with most exhibitors, Linda accepts custom orders, as she also creates pen and ink home illustrations.

Teens attend state seminar

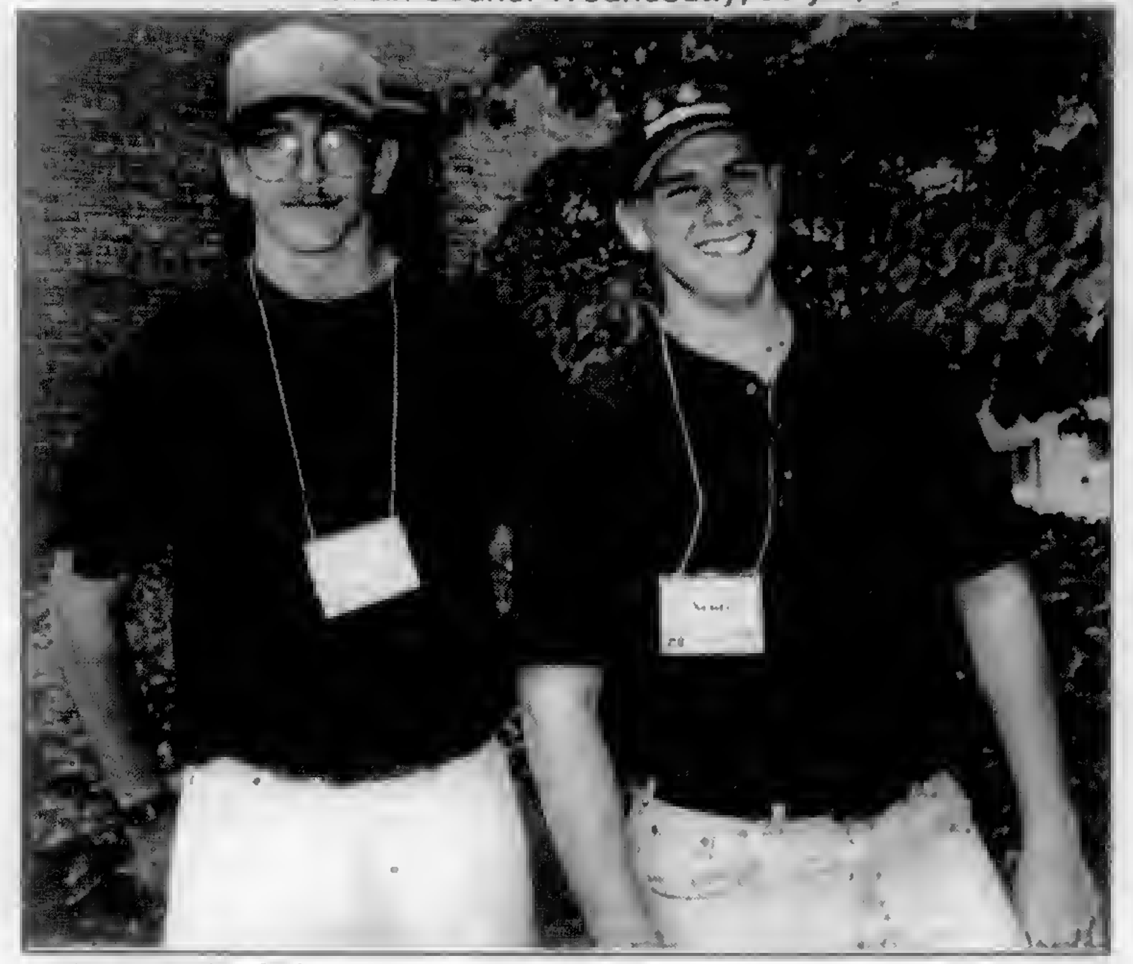
Charlevoix County high school students August Behling and Scott Sulak recently attended the young People's Citizenship Seminar, held June 16-20, at Calvin College in Grand Rapids. The 30-year-old annual seminar is sponsored by Michigan Farm Bureau. Students earned scholarships from their county Farm Bureau organizations and local businesses.

More than 200 Michigan high school juniors and seniors from nearly 50 counties were selected to participate in the program. They listened to speakers and took part in activities designed to encourage participation in the political process. Students even ran their own campaigns for a variety of mock political offices and had the opportunity to build their own television and radio advertisements.

Highlights of the five-day seminar included Vic Verchereau humorously explaining "My America" and award-winning speaker, Robert Rowland, discussing the "Moral Foundation of Freedom." Other major contributors to the program included Detroit Lions tight end David Sloan, motivational speaker Maxine Cain, holocaust survivor Erna Blitzer Gorman and Rep. Ken Sikkema.

Michigan Farm Bureau is the state's largest general farm organization, with more than 150,000 member families.



August Behling (left) and Scott Sulak each represented Charlevoix County during the 1997 Young People's Citizenship Seminar in Grand Rapids.

Camp to start

Techno-Kids Camp provides children the opportunity to take an active role in learning about Flight, Rocketry, Engineering, Transportation and Advanced Engineering. Children will learn new theories, concepts and practical applications of these topics in a variety of ways: through a simulator, Internet, interactive CD ROM software, hands-on activities, and spreadsheets.

Camp sessions run for one week, from Monday, July 28, through Friday, August 22, in Charlevoix..

Parents who would like their child to participate can call John Twichel at 535-7016 for more information.

Loose Change entertains Thursday during summer concert

The audience in East Park will likely be tapping toes when the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's summer concert series continues with the country sounds of Bill Charbonneau and "The Loose Change Band."

Loose Change will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 10, in the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

One of the most popular bands in the area for 15 years, Loose Change has appeared in concert at Interlochen Arts Academy, and many major resorts and functions. They have also performed as the opening act for groups like Mark Farner and Grand Funk Railroad and Ted Nugent.

The performers who compose Loose Change are almost entirely from one family. Bill Charbonneau plays bass, steel guitar, hanjo, and mandolin, while his wife Shelley plays keyboards, drums and bass. The Charbonneaus are from Bellaire.

Rounding out the band are Charbonneau's brothers, Tim from Ellsworth, playing bass and fiddle, Tom from Gaylord, on guitar and bass, and Jim Good from Petoskey.

In the next concert of the summer series, Master Drummer Doudou N'Diaye will perform, filling the park with the sounds of Africa. This concert will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 17.

Five Generations

Class of 1929 gathers for reunion

Several members of Charlevoix High School's Class of 1929 held a reunion luncheon recently at the Charlevoix Senior Center to celebrate 68 years since graduation.

Those attending were: Juanita Baker Erber, Charles and Esther Bleha, Hilda Brady Gibson, Richard and Doris Farmer, Myrtle O'Neil Fulton, Dorothy Smith Stoel, Pearl Smith Stewart, Hazel VanDusen Murray and Clarence Murray, and Edna Himebauch Wells.

A prior commitment prevented Max Novak from attending. Other class members, who live out of the area and couldn't attend, are John Critchlow, Maude Hardy Mason, Roberta Stafford Smith, Doris Trimble Lowing and Wilma Wells Furlong.

In September 1916, three members of the Class of 1929 — Myrtle Fulton, Charles Bleha and Max Novak — started kindergarten at the Washington School, on Charlevoix's north side. When the students were in the fourth-grade, they competed in and won a long-division contest with students from Central School, which was located where the present middle school sits, and students from Lincoln School, on the south side of town.

After the reunion, some of the class members visited the Harsha House Museum, where a prom dress worn by Myrtle Fulton and a graduation dress worn by Hilda Gibson are on display.

Albert G. "Tubby" Gill

Albert G. "Tubby" Gill died at his home in Siren, Wisc., Nov. 22, 1996.

Graveside services were held recently in Webster, Wisc.

Albert was born in Charlevoix on July 31, 1919, a son of Alfred and Henrietta (Swartz) Gill, Sr. His childhood and school years were spent in Charlevoix.

During World War II, Al spent a year in the U.S. Merchant Marine and almost three years in the Army with overseas service in England, Normandy during the D-Day invasion and Alsace/Lorrine, France. He was awarded the Purple Heart medal for wounds received and the Silver medal for meritorious service while in action in Alsace/Lorrine.

Al married Gladys Virginia "Gina" Erickson Jan. 22, 1942, while on leave from the Merchant Marine. She survives. The couple made their home in Siren, Wisc., where Al worked for the village of Siren and as a deputy sheriff of Burnett County until his retirement.

Al was preceded in death by his parents; two sisters, Dorothy Duff and Grace M. Gill; three brothers, Alfred, Jr., "Bud," Glenn and Benjamin.

Survivors, in addition to this wife, include their son, Mark, and his wife, Shirley Gill; granddaughter, Michelle, and grandson, Mikal, all of Siren, Wisc.; two foster children, Karen Johnson, and her daughter, DeNise, and granddaughter, Robin, of Webster, Wisc.; and George Mataxen and his wife, Patty, of Supulpa Okla. He is also survived by a sister, Joann Snyder, of Manitowish Waters, Wisc.; two brothers, Donn, of Sturgis, Mich., and Robert, of Charlevoix; five sisters-in-law and many nieces and nephews.

Wayne H. Haun

Wayne H. Haun, 85, of Lake City, Fla., and of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, July 2, 1997.

He was born Jan. 8, 1912, in Morristown, Tenn., the son of Zachariah and Elizabeth (Wiggington) Haun. He was a lifelong Detroit resident and retired from the Detroit Shopping News. After retirement, he and his wife, Dorothy, moved to Charlevoix, where he was a member of the Antrim Dells Country Club. He was also a member of the Quail Heights Country Club of Lake City, Fla.

Surviving are two daughters, Judie Wood, of Ann Arbor, and Betty & husband Jim Ryan, of Cincinnati, Ohio; a sister, Phyllis Logie, of Sterling Heights; five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Dorothy, in 1980.

He then married Jean Van'Wieren, who also preceded him in death, along with a brother, Zach.

Funeral services were held at 1 p.m., Saturday, July 5, 1997, at the Nie Funeral Home in Detroit. The Rev. Douglas Evett officiated. Burial was in the Forest Lawn Cemetery, Detroit.

Memorial tributes may be made to the University of Michigan Cancer Center, 1500 E. Medical Center Dr., Ann Arbor, MI 48109 or Arbor Hospice, 3910 Packard Rd., Ann Arbor, MI 48108.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Though I will still confess to a southern drawl that slips out now and then, our family actually traces its roots to Philadelphia, Penn. That's where all the Hamilton children were born. If you know anything about the City of Brotherly Love, you know that a lot of America's heritage began there.

My grandfather had an oyster house on Sixth Street, just blocks away from Independence Hall. I've been to Betsy Ross' house, where the first American flag was stitched together to inspire a war weary army of farmer-patriots. Ben Franklin, the first American journalist, librarian, postmaster and more, called Philadelphia his home. What school child hasn't heard the story of the Liberty Bell? I've touched the crack in it.

But in the modern era, if that city had a favorite daughter or son, I suspect true Philadelphians would think of Kate Smith. And for the younger folks out there who are reading this and going, "Who's Kate Smith?," she will always be famous for singing:

"God bless America, land that I love,
Stand beside her and guide her,
Through the night with the light from above!
From the mountains, to the prairies,
To the oceans white with foam
God bless America, my home sweet home!
God bless America, my home sweet home!"

There was something about Kate's voice. When she got into that song, you didn't just listen. You felt it. She sang it with such power and authority that you were moved deep down inside. She stirred up a sense of pride in all things American that mere words couldn't explain. You said the pledge to the flag with enthusiasm. You were grateful to those who were serving their country in uniform. You knew that you were a citizen of the greatest nation on earth.

Kate Smith went on to heaven a few years ago. But I hope her legacy can live on in subsequent generations. For with all our faults and wrinkles, we are blessed as a nation. Our children and their children need to know that. Though there are moments in modern history that may have left a bit to be desired, there have also been moments of greatness, such as men walking on the moon and advances in personal computers that so many take for granted. These advances probably could not have been done by too many other cultures.

I believe, with all my heart, that the liberties and freedoms that we enjoy are ours because this country was founded in a quest to freely worship God. From the Puritans in Massachusetts to the Quakers in Pennsylvania, the Methodists in Georgia and countless more, people came to these shores because of the liberty to exercise their faith.

As memories of fireworks lighting up the skies and parades in the streets take their place from this Fourth of July, let us remember that what we have and enjoy as Americans is indeed a blessing from God. Let's pray for our land and its leaders. Let's never lose sight of the principles on which this nation was built. Let's not only exercise our faith, but share it as well.

Being an American could even put a whole new slant on a familiar saying of Jesus: "You shall know the truth and the truth shall set you free."

Profits expected to increase from airport improvements

downs and landings increase. Barnes said, though, it is only a natural byproduct.

"Yes there will be more noise because there will be more jets, but more airplanes these days are jets," he said.

Barnes is not expecting the city to see a profit from the airport for at least 15 months. An airport budget draft shows an expected $200 loss, however, added costs for a runway extension and a new terminal were not factored in. Barnes calls the present terminal "horrible" and said it had water leaks and unstable ceilings.

A new terminal could begin to be raised by the end of this year.

The activity at the airport is a response to the expected jump in traffic, caused from development projects that continue to spring up throughout the area.

"We want to have Bay Harbor planes at our airport," councilmember Don Meggison said. "We hope to get some of that money with these changes."

The runway extension is on the back burner, pending grant approval from the Michigan Department of Transportation to cover the costs of widening the runway 250 feet and extending it from 4,300 to 4,500 feet.

Councilman Bernie DeVries called the extension a "safety measure." Barnes said that many jet pilots with a Charlevoix destination take off without as much fuel as they would like because of the weight restrictions on the smaller, local runway.

The most immediate order of business in the airport changes is finalizing a contract between the city and Island Airways' proprietor, Paul Welke, to run the daily business at the airport. Island Airways is a charter service operating between Beaver Island and Charlevoix.

"Mike Wiesner will be the boss, but it'll be Welke who will being doing things," Meggison said.

According to the proposed contract, Welke, in exchange for an exclusive lease to city fuel, will maintain and operate the facility. He will receive a stipend of $7,000 and will split airport revenue with the city at an equal clip.

Island Airways will also share operating costs with the facility, picking up any future tab on routine maintenance, utilities, labor, and equipment costs. For every new piece of equipment needed, Island Airways will pay towards the first $1,500 of the bill. The city will take care of any construction, demolition, runway paving, and other major renovations.

CB North become Citizens Bank

Former bank president slowly phases out

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

With every merger comes change.

In addition to bidding farewell to CB North as one of Charlevoix's banks, its president is stepping down.

Francis Flanders can still be found talking with customers at the former CB North, but now he's helping Citizens Bank move into town and its new president, James Kanary, take the helm.

As of July 1, Kanary became president. Monday, Citizens Banking Corporation officially announced the acquisition of CB Financial Corporation. The company merged with CB North in Charlevoix, CB Financial banks, City Bank & Trust Co. in Jackson and City Bank in St. Johns/Lansing.

A new green and white sign has already taken its place in town; and Flanders is prepared to stand behind it for at least two years. He said he has made a commitment to maintain an office at the bank and continued to develop business loans.

For him, the change in position is a relief.

"I'm 63. I don't need to work forever," he said. "Everyone reaches a point in their life when they want to retire."

Citizens Banking Corporation purchased CB Financial Corporation in a tax free stock-for-stock merger transaction accounted for a pooling of interests. The transaction was recently approved by regulatory authorities and shareholders of both Citizens and CB Financial.

Flanders

Flanders has been involved in banking for 40 years, the first 20 with City Bank & Trust in Jackson, the next 15 for NBD Bank in Alpena and the last five at CB North.

He arrived in Charlevoix in February of 1992, with another waive of banking change. CB Financial purchased Charlevoix County State Bank, one of the city's historic banking establishments. Flanders became president. The acquisition of First State Bank of Charlevoix was to follow.

In 1995, CB North bought three offices from Republic Bank, which are located in Traverse City, Bellaire and Central Lake. The most recent merger includes all 10 offices involved in CB Financial.

Robert J. Vitito, president and chief executive officer of Citizens Banking Corporation, said, "We welcome these new markets into our family of community banks. We are very excited about the opportunity to build and strengthen our presence in Jackson, Charlevoix and St. Johns/Lansing.

The new Citizens Bank markets will be part of Citizens Michigan banking corporation, which includes the following market areas: Bay City/Midland, East Lansing, Fenton, Flint, Grayling/Gaylord, Royal Oak, Saginaw, Standish, Sturgis and Ypsilanti. The three new markets are now part of Citizens Bank.

Citizens Bank-Charlevoix will operate as Community Bank, serving its current communities of Charlevoix, Traverse City, Beaver Island, Bellaire, Boyne City, Central Lake, East Jordan, Eastport and Ellsworth. Its new president, James Kanary, is also president of Citizens Bank-Grayling/Gaylord. Citizens has 120 offices, most of them in small towns in Michigan.

Flanders said he believes the merger will benefit Charlevoix customers. The larger size of the bank enables it to offer modern conveyances such as electronic banking, investment services, sweep ac-

Group would ask for tests should Medusa use tires

sands of dollars" said Puhl. The environmentally minded group hopes to raise money for their own tests should Medusa take the tire-burning route.

Alex Sagady, an environment consultant from East Lansing, did predict that tire burning at Medusa was not a good idea at this time.

He said he wasn't confident with their facilities and doubted that their burning kilns could effectively disassociate the toxic particles. The result of incomplete breakdown, he said, would be PCPs and other dioxins slipping into the air.

He asked the crowd if they had had problems with dust coming from the plant, for which he received a quick and unhesitant "yes" response.

"They do not have good enough controls to handle burning tires," Sagady said. "From what I see now, they need better control of all their other dust."

Even Weatherhead admitted that at this particular plant, sulfur emissions would increase because Medusa uses a low sulfur content coal.

Those in attendance were concerned that if Medusa burned tires, how would the company import them to the area, how many would they need, and where would they store them?

"We would recommend they only store a two-day supply at any one time and keep them covered," Puhl said.

Weatherhead said an easy solution for Medusa would be filling up with scrap tires as their barges ventured home from Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland ports.

"Those boats come back empty and it would not clutter the highways," Weatherhead said.

"Wouldn't it be wiser to clean up those piles in this area," asked Bob Gauntier, a Goodyear representative.

Gauntier talked little of the issues facing burning tires, but of an alternative source of scrap tire used. Mixing the tires with asphalt to form a rubber asphalt which, he said, would solve two problems, the scrap-tire problem and poor road conditions.

While rubber asphalt costs "twice as much as traditional asphalt" it lasts much longer, he said. It would be flexible enough to resist cracking for years.

The practice has mostly been pioneered in the southwest states, but there are spots in the metro Detroit area where rubber asphalt has been laid.

Gauntier told the crowd that in Toronto, they performed extensive highway repair in 1980 using this product and haven't had to do repair since.

The other panelists offered alternatives as well. Weatherhead said legislation needs to enacted to create markets for scrap-tire use. Common examples, he said, were irrigation lining, breakwalls, and plopping tires in water near reefs to create "dandy havens for fishes."

Sagady, like a true environmentalist, said "real recycling of chrome rubber is the one thing that should be done. You have more energy value that you lose when you simply burn them."

Local board to decide on community loans

counts and larger loans.

Similar with other Citizens branches, a community board will make determinations on loans, not a distant office.

"The trend in the industry is, there is fewer and fewer banks," Flanders said. "There's a good market for people who can stay in front of what the customers expect. But it's harder and harder to do that for smaller banks."

As the banking trends mean fewer banks in the industry as a whole, Flanders is becoming one of the senior executives to let change occur through his successors. He will work full time for now and lighten the load toward the end of summer to enjoy his retirement in Charlevoix.

"Some of us are just going to step aside and let the young people come in," he said. "We will be there to give our support."

Charlevoix wrestler competes at national competition

Christ

For a sixth-grader amid summer vacation, wrestler Joshua Christ has been busy.

After sweeping to double gold medals in last month's national regional competition, Christ took his show back on the road to Waterloo, Iowa, for the National Championship meet for 11- to 12-year-olds.

In the Greco-Roman competition, he won his first three matches, but had to withdraw from the finals because of a sore back. His overall place was third.

The next day, in the freestyle event, Joshua advanced to the finals by pinning his opponent in 57 seconds. He grappled but fell just short, bowing 4-3, in the championship match against a wrestler from Wisconsin.

The weekend capped a busy, yet prolific season for young Joshua, whose parents are Phil and Patti Christ, and Paul and Sally Stripay, all of Charlevoix.

En route to the national finals, he earned more than 50 victories in both disciplines, won three state titles, and in Syracuse went 4-0 in both styles to win national-regional gold medals.

Varsity players lead girls' basketball camp

The last two weeks in July the girls' basketball program will set the mornings aside to teach fundamental basketball skills to girls from ages 9 to 14.

There will be two camps: ages 9-11, from 9-11:30 a.m. Monday-Wednesday, July 21-23, and ages 12-14 , from 9-11:30 a.m. Monday-Thursday, July 28-31.

Sign-in and informal shooting will begin at 8 a.m. each morning. All activities will be held in the Charlevoix High School gym. Cost of the three day camp is $30, if preregistered by Friday, July 18, and $35 the first day of camp. Registration forms are available at any school office, or contact coach Tony Volovsek at 547-5173.

Volunteers needed for 3-on-3 tourney

St. Mary's Summer Slam 3-on-3 basketball tournament will be held on the streets of Charlevoix Sunday, July 13, needs volunteers to help with registration, setup, tear down and for monitoring court play.

If you are interested in helping, please call 547-0141. All volunteers receive a free T-shirt and lunch for helping.

Golf clinics running throughout July

Dunmaglas Golf Club and its LPGA golf pro, Joan Waha, will be hosting a variety of golf clinics during the month of July.

On Saturday, July 12, a women's golf day will he held. At 2 p.m. there will a clinic followed at 3:30 p.m. by 18 holes of golf. The afternoon costs $35, which includes the clinic, golf round and cart. To register call the Dunmaglas Pro Shop at 547-4653.

The following afternoon Sunday, July 13, a family event will be held. Mothers, fathers and children ages 6-16 are encouraged to arrive at the driving range at 2 p.m. for instruction, a chipping and putting contest, and golf for those with experience. The day costs $10 and no preregistration is required.

Three different adult golf clinics are also being offered. These three-day sessions will be held from 5:30-7 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday, July 8-10, from 10-11:30 a.m. Tuesday-Thursday, July 15-17, and from 10-11:30 a.m. Wednesday-Friday, July 25-27. Left: Questions of 'How Come ...' fill the streets as the Horton Bay parade addressed some of the nation's most intriguing situations Friday. This float, driven by Buford, answers why Horton Bay residents are so much smarter than other people. Above: How come sheep? The crowd was never told why sheep were the chosen ones for cloning. However, the parade entry made cloning look like a treat. Why be unique?

A STRONG FINANCIAL HISTORY OF COMMUNITY SERVICE JUST BECAME STRONGER.

Many bank mergers are actually one set of beliefs swallowing another. Often, everyone has to then adjust to the dominant partner, including bank customers.

Not so with the merger between City Bank & Trust Co, City Bank, CB North and their new partner Citizens Bank (A Michigan Bank established in 1871). You see, we all have the same history and a common belief in serving the communities where we do business. It's a strong tradition that will remain unchanged as the driving force behind the combined efforts of all of our people. Yes, there will be some changes. Both partners will become stronger and more secure. As part of Citizens Banking Corporation your bank will become part of the fourth largest bank-holding company in Michigan. Which means customers like you will have over 120 branches to serve you (not to mention over 120 ATMs).

A CHANGE OF SIGNS THAT'S NOT A SIGN OF CHANGE IN PHILOSOPHY.
Oh, and yes, the signs will change to Citizens Bank. But it isn't a sign of a change in those basic beliefs which we've all become known for. Just a strong indication of renewed dedication to the local communities we serve.

LEGAL NOTICE 210

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Default has occurred in the conditions of a mortgage (the "Mortgage") made by DAVID H. OLIVER and TAMATHA S. OLIVER, husband and wife, as Mortgagor, to FMB-NORTHWESTERN BANK, as Mortgagee, dated September 1, 1995 and recorded on September 11, 1995 in Liber 289 of Charlevoix County Records on Pages 317 through 322, inclusive. The Note secured by the Mortgage is bearing interest at the rate of 8.3750% per annum. The amount claimed to be due and unpaid on the date of this notice, for principal, interest, and late charges is Sixty-Five Thousand Eight Hundred Eleven and 39/100 Dollars ($65,811.39). No suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt, or any part of the debt, secured by the Mortgage. As a result of the default, the power of sale has become operative and the Mortgagee declares the entire unpaid amount of the Mortgage is immediately due and payable.

TAKE NOTICE that on Thursday, July 24, 1997, at 10:00 a.m., at the front door of the County Building in Charlevoix, Michigan, the place for holding the Circuit Court for Charlevoix County, the mortgaged premises will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, to satisfy amounts due and unpaid under the Mortgage, together with legal costs and charges of sale, including an attorney's fee as provided by law and in the Mortgage, and any and all other lawful charges and expenditures from the date of this notice until the date of sale. The mortgaged premises are described as follows:

Property located in the Township of Evangeline, Charlevoix County, Michigan, commencing at a 1/2 inch re-rod at the Northeast corner of Section 17, Township 33 North, Range 6 West; thence along the North line of said Section North 89°30'03" West 1493.51 feet; thence perpendicular to said North section line South 0°29'57" West 363.68 feet to the Northerlymost corner of the former Beulah Fuller and Genevieve McKarracher property described in Liber 266, Page 840, Charlevoix County Records; thence along the Northeasterly line of the aforementioned property South 23°25'51" East 216.87 feet, being the point of beginning of this description, thence continuing along the last-described course South 23°25'51" East 198.77 feet to the Southerly line of said Fuller and McKarracher property; thence along said Southerly line South 67°03'20" West (recorded as South 67°07' West) 17.45 feet to a 5/8 inch re-rod on the Southwesterly line of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, as existing; thence continuing along the last described course South 67°03'20" West (recorded as South 67°10' West) 250.00 feet to a 5/8 inch re-rod; thence North 23°13'03" West 156.12 feet to a 5/8 inch re-rod; thence North 57°57'52" East 252.99 feet to a 5/8 inch re-rod on said road line; thence continuing North 57°57'52" East 16.90 feet to the point of beginning of this description, being part of Government Lot 1, Section 17, Township 33 North, Range 6 West, Evangeline Township, Charlevoix County, and commonly known as 3856 Boyne City/Charlevoix Road, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

Pursuant to Section 3240(8) of the Revised Judicature Act of 1981, as

City/Charlevoix Road, Boyne City, Michigan 49712.

Pursuant to Section 3240(8) of the Revised Judicature Act of 1981, as amended [MCLA 600.3240(8); MSA 27A.3240(8)], the redemption period shall be six (6) months from the date of the foreclosure sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a; MSA 27A.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be thirty (30) days from the date of such sale.

New athletic director, basketball coach appointed for fall

members filled out yellow ballot sheets, the results of which were read aloud.

Allen Telgenhof and Larry Levengood voted for Halverson.

Halverson ran in last month's general election for a four-year term, but was nudged out by Way by 39 votes. He hinted to the board that he was the people's choice based on his election support and that Smith endorsed him upon dropping out. He received 701 votes in an election with five competitors.

Spicles, a former Charlevoix teacher and highly prolific cross country coach whose teams won seven state titles, said it was time for him to give back "some of the goodies given to me."

With the majority of the board being represented by new members, a 5-1 vote pared regular meetings to once a month. The meetings now will take place on the second Monday of each month at 7:30 in the high school study hall.

Wieland opposed the move, claiming that the board has much work to do and just one meeting may cause them "to lose touch with what's happening."

One meeting a month "will force the board to be more productive and professionally prepared," Scott Boss said.

While voting for the change, Telgenhof originally moved to remain on the same schedule, but the motion wilted with no support.

Scott Boss said the board will schedule special meetings when issues spring forward and during busy times. Monday, the board scheduled meetings for three of the next four Mondays: July 14, 28, and Aug. 4. Their next regular meeting is Monday, August 11. All the meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. in the high school study hall.

The matter during next Monday's meeting will be a jam session on the budget.

In other action, the board hired Keith Haske as the new basketball coach, replacing Jim Kanine who resigned. Haske also will serve as assistant principal and athletic director. Haske has been an American history teacher at St. Johns Public High School since 1982 and has served as varsity basketball coach for the last 13 seasons there. He also coached varsity tennis for three seasons and was an assistant football coach for 16 years.

Also, the board approved a $15,000 bid from Beta Design Group to begin engineering services toward replacing the high school ventilation system. This is the first step in repairs at both high and elementary schools. Money for these projects is coming from the millage passed in last month's election.

High school principal Gary Grundman said he and maintenance supervisor Mike Pearsall investigated a portion of the high school's roof and discovered 27 holes. Superintendent Roberta Jackson said enough money may come in during the millage's first year to pay for roof repair.

SCRAPBOOK

Downtown stores have provided jobs for teens for years

By Marilyn Boss
Courier columnist

Hometown Chronicles

Years ago, every summer when school was out, Charlevoix kids worked in the summer shops and businesses. Many of the boys would caddy at local golf courses, and the girls would babysit, wait tables or help in the many shops downtown.

In 1948, at 15-years-old, I became a waitress at the Turkey Wing, a popular restaurant located where American Spoon Foods is now. Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Peters were the owners, and were very particular about how clean everything was, and of course, the food was excellent. A black couple, Grant and Princess, came up for the summer, and they prepared the food. The Peters served a variety of turkey sandwiches, and turkey, fish and steak dinners.

The building was one of the old original frame buildings that was left in town from the beginnings of Charlevoix. When you walked in the front door, you walked down a steep grade, as the floor had settled onto the bare earth beneath it. The delivery people that came in the back door had to bend their neck to get under the eaves, and the floor tilted sharply to the south. The tables had six-inch blocks under the legs on the south side of the building so the top would be level, and the customers' soup would stay in the bowl.

The floors were painted every year, and were clean enough to eat off, but the building was so dilapidated that everything went down hill. The double-door refrigerator in the kitchen held up the roof on one end. The roof timbers had given way. Every time we had a hard rain, the mud and gravel from the back alley ran in the back door, and settled in the low spot on the south side of the floor. It had to be scooped out so they could get back in business.

The Peters had many beautiful antiques, and were known for the lovely lamps hanging from the ceiling. They were good people to work for. I learned a great deal from them on how to wait on customers and the importance of having everything clean and neat. They did fantastic business in and old $10 building, and people would wait an hour in line for the mouth-watering cuisine. In later years, they moved to the building along the channel, now owned by Don Berlage, and continued the business until their retirement. The original building was demolished and turned into a sales lot for the Ford garage, which was located behind it and around the corner on Clinton Street.

Two doors down the street to the south was Mont's Restaurant, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mont Withers. They experienced good summer business and had a nice dining room. In the back, they had a second dining room where they served the black chauffeurs.

The Parkside Restaurant was across the street on the corner of Bridge and Mason streets. They were well known for their mile-high lemon pie. They always displayed a big stalk of fresh bananas in the front window. All of these restaurants catered to the summer people.

Charlevoix kids could make good money in the summertime at these jobs and were able to buy their school clothes. In doing this, we all learned the value of working and being independent.

Habitat for Humanity searches for Charlevoix land

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Charlevoix and Emmet county's chapter of Habitat for Humanity hopes to break ground soon on a new home in Alanson, and if all goes according to plan, in Charlevoix by the end of summer.

"It would be nice to have it framed and roofed by the time the weather turns bad," said Matthew Smith, executive director for the group.

The group, however, has yet to find a site within their price range in Charlevoix to begin the project. Smith said the maximum the group likes to spend for a site is $5,000, not including any on-site preparations like a new septic field.

"We're actively seeking in or as close to the city as possible," Smith said, "but the expense is the single biggest issue for us."

The group does have land purchased in East Jordan and likely would build there if its search in Charlevoix comes up empty. Already they have built a home in Harbor Springs, Alanson, East Jordan and Boyne City since their inception in 1991.

> "... the expense is the single biggest issue for us."
> — Matthew Smith,
> Habitat exeutive director

Typically the group, along with their crew of volunteers, takes six weeks to complete a home. The buildings' cost about $40,000 to construct. The homes typically are 1000 square feet and have three bedrooms. The newer models, Smith said, will now include basements.

Smith did say the group's board may be willing to increase their price range, but that they are also looking for people who are willing to donate land.

"It would be nice if an individual would step up and say 'I don't plan to use this land, here build a house on it,'" Smith said.

Their project in Alanson, which will be the village's second Habitat for Humanity home is $12,000 short of funds. Still, Smith hopes by the second week of July they can again begin to build.

Charlevoix athlete makes miraculous recovery

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

For everyone, there is the ideal day — a simple day at the beach with a good book or complex consideration of wishes, goals and prayers.

For Liz Grunch, the ideal includes games: Playing a game in high-stakes softball or a one-on-one game of driveway hoops to establish sibling supremacy.

"It's what makes me happy," she said. "I can't imagine my life without it."

For that matter, Charlevoix sports fans could not imagine that either, not after a career capped with regional runs in the three sports for which Grunch donned maroon and white — basketball, volleyball and softball.

She earned 12 varsity letters as a four-year player on each squad, and 11 times, she was placed on all-conference teams. She pitched a no-hitter in district play as a senior against rival Boyne City, and ended as the girls' basketball all-time leading scorer, topping the 1,000 point mark. She was named to the Detroit Free Press all-state team for basketball in 1994.

"She's a natural, but she has got an awful lot of desire to be the best athlete," said Leroy Buchanan, Grunch's coach when she plays in Petoskey's fast pitch summer league.

Grunch bid adieu to Charlevoix, heading south to Benton Harbor to attend Lake Michigan Junior College where she planned to split time between books, basketball and softball.

Despite all the banners in the gymnasium touting the college's accomplishments in state annuals — including national tournament play in 13 of the 16 years in softball — for Grunch, this was admittedly a "stepping stone."

"Ever since seventh- and eighth-grade, I have wanted to play in college, hopefully in division one."

Part of her inspiration came from her older sister, Christine, who staked out to New Mexico State to play softball in the powerful Big West conference to a team that annually litters national rankings.

Weeks into her first term at the junior college, though, the dream took a tragic turn on an October Sunday morning on a dark Hillsdale county road.

On a drive home from a road trip, the car Grunch was in smashed into a four-ton horse trailer at an intersection.

Two of Grunch's friends died in the accident while Grunch — after emergency surgery, removed spleen, head injuries, a crushed knee, and a later discovered

Downtown crack dealers accept plea agreement

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Michael Russell and Pamela Stoneham Fuller, the couple accused of selling cocaine out of their Mason Street rental home, entered guilty pleas Friday to fewer charges than prosecutors had hoped.

Fuller plead guilty to two counts of delivery of cocaine of less than 50 grams and one count of cocaine possession. Two counts of conspiracy to deliver cocaine and a misdemeanor charge of marijuana possession were dropped in a plea agreement.

Russell admitted guilt to possession of both cocaine and marijuana, but the four serious accusations levied against him — two counts of delivery and two counts of conspiracy to deliver cocaine — were dropped.

"He was not guilty of those serious charges," said John Michael, attorney for Russell in an interview Tuesday. "He plead guilty to what he did."

The pair were arrested in the early morning hours of March 17 after two staged huys, set up between a confidential informant and officers from Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (S.A.N.E.), occurred.

The informant, a distant relative to Fuller, arrived twice within 90 minutes to the couple's home across from the Charlevoix Middle School to buy drugs.

On the stand during a preliminary hearing, the informant testified that both times Fuller led him into the bedroom where the deal occurred. According to the informant, Russell was "in and out" of the house during the time. During his second visit, he witnessed the pair arguing, although about what he did not know.

Autopsy report released in Ramsey murder case

JonBenet Ramsey's autopsy report was released late Monday after court battles to keep it from being publicized.

The report confirms that JonBenet, daughter of Jon and Patricia Ramsey, died by of asphyxia while being strangled. There was also extreme trauma to the head that included an abrasion that measured seven by four inches, according to the autopsy report.

JonBenet, 6, was found dead in her parents' home in Boulder, Colo., on Dec. 26, 1996. The Ramseys are summer residents in Charlevoix.

Wounds were found on the neck from the strangling and on the right wrist where the victim was bound with a cord, according to John E. Meyer, coroner from the office of the Boulder County Coroner.

Abrasions were found by from JonBenet's head and neck to her back and lower legs, including evidence of sexual molestation.

Within the autopsy released, full and partial paragraphs had been covered to protect certain evidence.

The investigation of the murder is ongoing. An arrest is yet to be made.

Granger receives state award for passing on music legacy

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Bill Stevens

To Bill Stevens, music builds relationships, provides entertainment and sparks memories. It's a family tradition that's worth preserving.

For his years of strumming and picking guitar in grange music, calling square dances and helping young musicians, Bill is receiving a statewide award from the Michigan State University Museum. The 63-year-old is one of three recipients of the Michigan Heritage Award for 1997. The award honors people who continue traditions in their communities and with their families, according to Yvonne Lockwood, award coordinator.

Bill said he always thinks awards belong to somebody else. But this time, it will be his name called during an August gathering at the university in East Lansing. The award is being presented on Stage One at the Festival of Michigan Folklife.

"I'm not much for the glory side," Bill said, noting that he expects to be uncharacteristically nervous. Although he's invested much of his life into playing music from the 1920s through the 50s era, this will be his first actual award.

"If they think I deserved it, I must have touched a lot of people to have earned it," he said.

Playing music and helping young people progress in their love and skill is natural for Bill. Afterall, music is "a hand-me-down thing." His father was a square dance caller and played the mouth organ. His mother played piano. When he was a teenager, he worked for his first guitar. Since then, his steps have heen made in time with a variety of musical styles.

"It's just a great enjoyment for me," he said, "a great way to meet people and fellowship with others. You've got to give over the years. That's why I've helped all these kids and had them perform."

What is now a passion that touches people throughout the state began as a family pasttime.

"I've had a great bond with my family through music, as well as many, many friends," he said.

Bill's own sons, Rodney, 34, and Dudley, 31, are musicians. And all of his grandchildren, except for the 1-year-old, have performed with him by either playing fiddles or singing. Rodney plays banjo, guitar and piano while Dud-

Events in brief

Water sport accident breaks man's leg

An out-of-state man broke his left leg July 9 in Lake Charlevoix, near Holy Island, when driving his father's personal water craft into a boat, according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Gregg Barnes, 21, of Brunswick, Md., tried to turn the water craft too close to another boat and hit the back end of the boat. He was thrown from the water craft and the impact of his landing broke his leg.

Barnes was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment.

Appeals board cancels meeting

The Charlevoix Board of Appeals will not meet at 7 p.m. today, July 16, as originally scheduled. The next regular meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 20, in the council chambers at city hall.

A complete copy of the agenda will be posted prior to the meeting.

Women's group in need of books

The American Association of University Women is in need of good used books for its annual book sale held in the Pennsylvania Park in Petoskey Friday, July 25, during Petoskey's sidewalk sales. Books can be dropped off at the First Congregational Church, 101 State Street, Charlevoix. Please, no Reader's Digests or text books.

For more information, call 348-8172.

Charlevoix boy injured in mower accident

Derek Willett, 15, of Charlevoix, was injured when a riding lawn mower rolled over him about 3:40 p.m. July 7, according to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department. He was mowing at Hoskins Manufacturing on M-66, near Forest Drive, when the mower quit, began rolling backward down a steep hill and rolled on top of him.

Willett's leg was broken. He was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital and then transferred to Northern Michigan Hospital for treatment.

Trails committee holds next meeting

The Charlevoix Trail Committee is holding its next meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 23, in Charlevoix city hall's upper-level meeting room, 210 State St.

The committee will be discussing the recreational trail that is being planned to run from Charlevoix to Petoskey.

For more information, call the Top of Michigan Trails Council at 348-8280.

Reward offered for help in mailbox vandalism

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating numerous complaints of damaged mailboxes Friday in both Hayes and Marion townships.

Officers have received reports of damage to mailboxes on Old U.S. 31 North, Charlevoix-Boyne City Road and Marion Center Road.

The sheriff is offering a $500 reward for information that results in the arrest of the people responsible.

Anyone with information is requested to contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office at 547-4461.

Teen center asks for book donations

The Teen Center will be holding the 3rd Annual Used Book Sale at the Public Library in Charlevoix during Art Fair Weekend. The booksale will be from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8 and 9, from 9.

Books can be donated by dropping them off at the Teen Center, from 2:30-5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday. Large donations can be scheduled for pick-up by calling 547-2298.

Biographies, children's books and fiction of any kind would be appreciated. The Teen Center has found that the following items do not sell: encyclopedias, textbooks, national geographic or reader's digest.

Fire destroys car Sunday

A car was destroyed early Sunday when fire broke out in the engine compartment. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department was called to the Knights of Columbus hall parking lot about 8:30 a.m. Sunday to douse the flames, according to assistant chief, Ralph Cross.

The car is owned by Fred Biesecker, a member of the Medusa Challenger crew. He had loaned the 1977 Ford station wagon out when the fire occurred. The driver of the car pulled off the roadway and into the parking lot when the fire began. The flames were extinguished in about 15 minutes, Cross said.

Although the investigation is ongoing, department officials believe the fire started because of a fuel leak in the engine compartment.

Township water tower going up

Charlevoix Township is getting its new water tower. Construction began last week. The 150,000-gallon tower is reaching into view behind Shanahan Park, on Charlevoix's north side.

The tower is expected to cost more than $430,000, an amount that doesn't include tapping and drilling wells to get the water. The project is being paid for out of the township's general fund.

Workers from Louisville, Ky., are in town putting up the shell of the tower. It should be running by fall.

Right: The tower's ball is now being welded and put in place on the area's newest water tower. It is Charlevoix Township's second tower, the first being on the south side of town, near Medusa Cement Plant. Below: Joe Crawford, of Caldwell Tank, out of Louisville, Ky., welds the tower's ball together Friday.

Island gets new dock through grant

Will accommodate new ferry

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

The new loading dock installed in Bridge Park isn't enough to complete a major project that is sailing the Beaver Island Boat Co. into the next century.

A new dock on the island is needed to receive the Emerald Isle, a ferry that almost doubles the capacity of the Beaver Islander and loads at the stern. In September, the new ferry will arrive. However, a new dock for the island — expected to cost $1 million — won't be ready until spring. Throughout the fall, various techniques will be tried to load the 139-foot ferry, said Lynn DeGrow, Beaver Island Boat Co. president.

The new dock will be equipped with a 50-ton ramp. Most of the project is being funded by grants from the Michigan Department of Transportation and the Michigan Jobs Commission. MDOT is contributing $450,000 while the jobs commission is kicking in $400,000.

"Beaver Island is one of Michigan's prize natural resources," said Sen. Walter North, R-St. Ignace. "I am pleased that the state is adding its support to this initiative for safer and quicker travel to and from the island.

"The Beaver Island Boat Co. is making a large investment to open up the beauty of Beaver Island to a greater number of people," North said. "Using state funds to assist them in this effort is definitely money well spent."

A grant is also being used to pay for the construction of the new ferry, which is costing about $3.6 million. The new dock for the island was

School ends year with financial surplus

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

Both good and bad news about the Charlevoix Public Schools budget was announced during a board of education budget session Monday.

Judy Boss, district treasurer, presented an final tally of business costs for the 1996-97 school year with the district being in the black. Revenues for the year out-paced expenditures by $145,751, a surprise finish since the district was projecting a deficit of more than $180,000.

However, Boss said that figure is misleading because about $70,000 has already been targeted to buy a new bus.

Two explanations were given for the reversal of fortune. Boss said budgets typically are structured to overspend, and high school principal Gary Grundman said a change of attitude toward spending had overcome the staff as they took a more conscientious approach to what was necessary.

Dock projects are examples of tax dollars coming home

EDITORIAL

Beaver Island was once considered a sleepy island where a group of committed residents who endure long, quiet winters. However, with the construction of the new Emerald Isle and docks in Charlevoix and the island port, the quietest corner of Charlevoix County is awakening.

We realize that the changes which the Beaver Island Boat Co. is undergoing will change the island itself. It is becoming more of a vacation destination. It could very well lose its claim as being one of the best-kept secrets for a northern Michigan getaway.

The $5 million-plus price tag that has been put on the various projects to improve transportation to the island is an example of tax dollars coming home. State grants have helped the city of Charlevoix with its Bridge Park renovations, which includes Charlevoix's dock for the new ferry, and with covering the construction of the $3.6 million ferry that nearly doubles the capacity of the Beaver Islander. A grant is now paying for the second dock, which will be built on the island.

So often, we see the dent in our weekly paychecks and the cutting of national benefits and we wonder what it's all about; a distant war or an experimental weapon. This time, local taxpayers can know that they helped fund the construction of a local project that is going to bring business to town.

Increased business for Beaver Island means increased business for Charlevoix. Everyone who travels to the island must first come to town and spend time here until their plane or ferry leaves. More people will come funneling through the district than ever before.

Like all change, the improvements will mean catering to more out-of-town guests. But both Charlevoix and the island know that local businesses cannot survive on resident shopping alone.

Although we appreciate the serenity found on Beaver Island and hope that it doesn't become another Mackinac Island, we recognize that the families who live there deserve to see their businesses grow, their families prosper and their school improved.

Letters to the editor

Community should determine priorities

Editor:

We need to decide what kind of community we want. If we want to compete with Mackinaw City for the trinket and T-shirt crowd, this current trend of tearing down homes and making parking lots is a move in the right direction. But if we care about charm and class and the values for which Charlevoix has been treasured, we have to work to hold on to them. That means that we have to preserve our lovely old neighborhoods, grace our parking areas with trees and seating, and plan for the future. If our town retains a quiet dignity and a unique pleasant quality, people will be more than willing to walk one block to enjoy the wonderful things we have to offer.

Lion's club thanks circus contributors

Editor:

The Charlevoix Lion's Club wishes to express appreciation to the various supporters of the recently sponsored Kelly-Miller Circus. The circus held on July 5 and 6 and was well received.

We thank the City of Charlevoix for permission to use the field on Carpenter Street. We thank the many business and retail stores who purchased advance tickets for children.

We thank the following stores for selling tickets in Charlevoix: Glen's Market, 7-Eleven, Don's IGA, Bridge Street Book Shop, Oleson's and Charlevoix Commons Apothecary, and Glen's Markets of East Jordan, Boyne City and Petoskey. Thanks to Waste Management of Northern Michigan for help with the dumpster.

We thank McKeown Ford, Inc., of Charlevoix for sponsorship on the back of tickets. We thank Sears of Charlevoix for sponsorship of the posters.

Finally, we thank the many patrons of Lion Club activities. The proceeds from the 1997 circus flow back to the community of Charlevoix to help with our many projects.

Sincerely,
Rick Brandi, Circus Chairmen

EDITH GILBERT

I never expected to have a professional video producer in my family, but that is exactly what has happened.

At 10 p.m. Tuesday, July 29, Central Michigan's PBS television station, Channel 6, will air my sister, Margot Smith's, lively and colorful video, filmed while she attended the 4th World Conference on Women in Beijing.

Instead of visiting me in Charlevoix, she flew east from Berkeley, Calif., to root for the Platform for Action, which was signed by 189 nations in China. It was the largest gathering of women in history. They came from Zimbabwe, Germany, France, Papua New Guinea, Iran, the Philippines, Israel, the Solomon Islands, Norway and the United States, to name a few. Held only every 10 years, 30,000 women and a few men attended the Non-Governmental Organizational Forum, which was held in conjunction with the official conference under the auspices of the United Nations.

You'll find it touching to see and hear women leaders from all over the world share many common difficulties. Often wearing their colorful native dress, they describe the arduous lives of their third-world countrywomen. These women are denied the ordinary privileges we take so for granted — the opportunity to learn reading and writing, handling and investing money, owning property, voting, or even having a day in court. Such rights are unknown today in many corners of the globe. There are countries where women are still considered to be a man's property. A man can obtain a divorce by merely saying, "I divorce you" three times. There is also the on-going, worldwide problem of trafficking women for prostitution. Thousands of women from the Philippines, Thailand and South Korea are being sold into sex slavery right now.

Unfortunately, women's rights issues know no boundaries. Closer to home, a woman from Brooklyn describes her community, where the high school drop-out rate is 80 percent, and adolescent teen-age pregnancy is abominably high. These young girls have been frequently taken advantage of by men over 25 years of age, men who surely should know better.

Yet locally, our area families are fortunate to be able to turn to such agencies as the Women's Resource Center for help in domestic violence, teen-age pregnancies and other significant women's issues.

While listening to these knowledgeable women from developing countries, we become hopeful as they report on current successful projects, such as teaching salable hand crafts, bread making and computer skills. As one optimistic woman says, "If you educate a woman, you educate a nation."

You may also be interested to know that my niece, Janet Smith Linney, accompanied her mother on the Beijing trip and assisted as part of the video crew in conducting the interviews under difficult conditions. She will be visiting Charlevoix with her family again in August, and I look forward to hearing of her impressions when making this 28-minute film, for which my sister received a trophy from the Eastman Film Festival recently. This professional video, accompanied by lively dancing, joyful singing and determined marching, captures the energy and focus of an important and historic event. I hope you, too, will enjoy it.

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard M. Cannan, of Charlevoix, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 29, with a dinner party at the Grey Gables Inn in Charlevoix. Hosted by sons, David, of San Antonio, Texas, and Jim of Bolingbrook, Ill., the party included family members from Michigan, Florida, and Ontario, Canada, as well as five grandchildren.

The Cannans are well known in the Charlevoix community for their volunteer efforts. They moved here following Mr. Cannan's retirement from the Downers Grove, Ill., headquarters of ServiceMaster industries in 1987. Bern was named Charlevoix Citizen of the Year in 1996 and will serve as grand marshal in this year's Venetian parade. Jo Cannan, a retired kindergarten teacher in both Michigan and Illinois, volunteers her time as manager of the gift shop in Charlevoix Area Hospital.

African music comes to Odmark pavilion

Master Drummer and musician Doudou N'Diaye will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 17, in the fifth concert of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's seventh annual summer concert series. The concert will be held in the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

Currently, N'Diaye is an artist-in-residence, performing and teaching west African music and dance in the Traverse City area. He has played alongside entertainers including rock'n'roll's Rolling Stones, Reggae's Sister Judy Mowat, and Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers.

N'Diaye comes from a family of honored musicians, dancers, philosophers, historians and educators in Africa, who pass their rich tradition and heritage on to the next generation. He has used his abilities to educate, inspire and entertain his audiences.

The drummer promises audiences an extra thrill along with his music — a taste of African fire-eating.

The next concert in the series will be a group of dancers known as the Mid Michigan Highlanders, who specialize in the music and dance of the British Isles. That concert begins at 8 p.m. Thursday, July 24.

The Charlevoix City Band also performs in the Odmark Pavilion at 8 p.m. Tuesdays.

Wedding

Summers-Fels

Cheri Summers and Bill Fels were joined in marriage May 17, 1997, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. About 125 guests witnessed the evening wedding.

Cheri is the daughter of Steve and Barbara Weesner, of Petoskey. Bill is the son of Jack and Barbara Fels, of Charlevoix.

The church was decorated with snap dragons, white mountain lilies, tulips and alstromeria.

The pastor Dale Ostema performed the double-ring rites.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore an A-line, off-the-shoulder, white gown with the bodice embellished with re-embroidered alencion lace, pearls and sequins. The short-sleeved gown has a cathedral-length train, featuring satin rosettes and petals, and re-embroidered lace. She carried cascade tulips, white mountain lilies, alstromeria, roses with tropical leaves and ivy and Queen Anne's lace.

Robin Maurer, the church organist, provided music.

The maid of honor was Brandi Bohnett, sister of the bride. Bridemaids were Tammy Holm-McMaster, Sandy Novotny and Margie Golovich. They wore apricot, tea-length gowns with white portrait collars and basque waists. They carried bouquets of alstromeria, tulips and Queen Anne's lace.

The flower girls were Stephanie Summers, daughter of the bride, and Chantel Novotny and Meggahn Golovich. They wore mint floral dresses.

Ring bearer was Jason Fels, son of the groom.

Best man was Kevin Deitz. Groomsmen were Mike Fels, brother of the groom, and Jeff Novotny and Dave Golovich. Ushers were Mike Fels and Jeff Novotny.

A reception was coordinated by Wendie Waha at the Charlevoix Country Club. Music was provided by DJ's North.

A wedding trip was taken to Niagara Falls, the Statue of Liberty, Shenandoah National Park, and to the Bahamas and Florida on a week-long cruise.

A rehearsal dinner was held at Alexanders in Charlevoix.

The couple are making their home in Charlevoix. Cheri works as a registered nurse at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City. Bill works for Shumaker Construction.

Charlevoix graduate adds to Harbor cast

Charlevoix graduate, Jess Wood, is being featured as Sir Studley in the production of "Once Upon a Mattress," a musical comedy being performed in Harbor Springs for the benefit of Association of Harbor Arts.

Wood

The show includes more than 25 actors, singers and dancers. Opening night of the two-week run is July 16, with a 7:30 p.m. curtain at the Harbor Springs High School auditorium.

Wood is the son of Vance and Toni Wood. He is pursuing a degree in theater at Western Michigan University. He has been involved with the College for Kids program and is on staff at the Charlevoix swimming pool.

Once Upon a Mattress features music by Mary Rodgers, lyrics by Marshall Barer, and book by Jay Thompson, Diane Fuller and Marshall Barer. Musical director for this production is Gary Stutzman; vocal director is Julie Pierpont; choreographer is Becca Buchalter; producer is Sandy Koehler.

Evening performances are 7:30 p.m. tonight, and July 17, 19, 23, 24, and 26. Matinees are 2 p.m. Saturday, July 20 and 27. All seating is reserved.

Tickets for evening performances are $10 adults, and $6 students; for matinces, tickets are $8 adult, $4 students. The box office opens one hour prior to curtain.

Obituaries

Robert C. Heise

Robert C. Heise, 80, of Charlevoix, died July 11, 1997, at his home.

Funeral was 1 p.m. Monday, July 14, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dale P. Ostema of the United Methodist Church officiated. Burial will be at Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Heise was born Feb. 19, 1917, in Charlevoix, the son of Paul and Marie (Hushy) Heise. On March 31, 1945, he married Madlyn Crites in Detroit, Mich.

He was a veteran of WW II, serving with the 126th Red Arrow Division and Merrill's Marauders. He worked 32 years with the U.S. Post Office at the Metropolitan Airport, retiring to Charlevoix in 1976.

Mr. Heise was a life member of Charlevoix Lodge #282, F. & AM.

He is survived by his wife, Madlyn, of Charlevoix, two daughters, Paula A. and her husband, Gail, Tinsley of East Jordan, and Marlo and her husband, Jim, Stoneham of Charlevoix; one son, Robert T. Heise of Charlevoix; seven grandchildren; four great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Parkinson's Disease Foundation, the Charlevoix Area Hospital or Greensky Hill United Methodist Church. Envelopes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Jeanne and the Parables, a country gospel band, will be performing in the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, July 20. The concert is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. The band is comprised of (front, from left) Sandy Rhea, Jeanne Delph and Judy Slocum. (Back, from left) Dale Rhea, Sharon Diesenroth and Tom Eggers.

OF BLESSINGS

By Rev. Bruce Hamilton
Community Church of God

Greetings from Anderson, Ind., and pool side at Motel Six. We've been on a small family junket that has included just about the full spectrum of activities that a clan can take in over a short period of time. It began with a visit to my mother and father-in-law down in Tennessee. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. I am in awe of them and the Lord's blessing on any couple that shares their lives together for so long. The things they have seen, the challenges they have met and the adventures they have survived are something to hear.

The next day, I got to do something that I have always been curious about. I got to learn a little bit about my wife's high school days. Her graduating class held its 30-year reunion the same weekend as our anniversary gathering. I was a bit amazed that I was one of the few guys there that still had dark hair. Most of her classmates had gray, white and even no hair at all. Maybe that's a back-door blessing of northern Michigan winters that I'd never heard about before.

Linda discovered she wasn't the only minister's wife in the crew. She found a classmate who now lives in California that married a Presbyterian pastor. That was kind of neat because in a sea of relative strangers, we found some folks who shared some common tales. There was also the "spouses of" corner. A spot where those husbands and wives of the Class of '67 congregated at moments we didn't have the slightest idea what was going on.

But what brings me to pool side in Anderson is our daughter. She made the decision to remain in Indiana this summer and work. She's sharing an apartment with a girl and working at a restaurant here. It's her first "real" experience with being totally on her own. I hadn't seen her since spring break, and we made it a point of spending time together as a part of this trip. Even as I write, she and her brother are being kids in the pool. One moment splashing, dunking, and attacking each other as only siblings can do, and the next moment laughing and hugging because they really have missed each other.

Now, why share such personal moments with you? Because each and every one of us have similar memories, similar family moments that we go through with our own clans. God has those moments with His children, too. He remembers the first time you reached out to Him in prayer. He marvels at the first time you allowed Him to have a real and meaningful place in your life. It gave Him joy to help you find that special loved one to share your days with. He was proud of you when cherished goals were accomplished and long-sought dreams came true. He is anxious to make more and better memories with you.

Boy, how the kids have grown and changed. The more I think about it, most of us have grown and changed, too. The feelings every parent shares as they watch their kids embrace lives of their own are closer than you might imagine to what God shares as he looks at you. I am blessed with two great kids and a marvelous wife. You and I are blessed with a heavenly Father who loves us more than words can ever do justice to, and just in case you haven't sensed it lately, He is very, very proud of you.

County board could back fines for smoking

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

How much is that cigarette worth?

Perhaps as much as $100 if the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approves a new ordinance prohibiting smoking in and around the buildings.

The proposed legislation would ban smoking within all county buildings and vehicles, and extend the ban 50 feet beyond all building entrances. An enclosed smoking area could be created.

Mary Ann Cox, of Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, spoke to the board July 9 to promote the ordinance. The agency's board of health drafted the wording and presented it to the four counties within their jurisdiction: Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego and Antrim.

"We want to provide an environment for everyone," she said.

Cox explained that there is a liability issue for people inhaling second-hand smoke while on the job, and that courts are awarding damage compensation in such cases.

> "We want to provide an environment for everyone."
> — Mary Ann Cox,
> Northwest Michigan
> Community Health Agency

Seventy percent of the counties in the state have passed such legislation.

"We're not looking to break the ice, just put the frosting on the cake," Cox said.

The county sheriff's department has had a no-smoking rule in effect for three years, but the proposed law would not include residents at Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The board appeared interested in the idea if modifications were made. Commissioner Carl Price and county clerk Jane Brannon voiced concern over extending the prohibition beyond the main building, notably some county parks where park supervisors live on county grounds.

"In that case we'd be restricting people in their own homes," board chairman Phil Johnson said.

Cox said disallowing smoking in one part of the building but not in others was challenging, as smoke will eventually filter through the building. She compared it to dumping chlorine in just one end of the pool, eventually it floats to all ends.

Commissioner Shirley Roloff suggested bringing the ordinance up in a committee as a whole meeting to pinpoint what kind of restrictions to impose. The board agreed to hold a public hearing on the issue at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 13, in the board chambers adjacent to the county clerk's office.

The board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 23.

New dock required for stern-loading of Emerald Isle

supposed to come from the original grant, which would have meant that the dock would have been ready for the Emerald Isle. However, because of higher bidding than expected for construction, there isn't enough money left to fund the new dock, DeGrow said.

"You have to have it," DeGrow said.

Without the grant, DeGrow isn't sure how the company would fund the dock's construction. However, that is a worry now left behind. The company has received a building permit and is now awaiting various state permits for the dock's construction. Also, the project is about to be released for bids.

The entire project should be complete by spring, about a year after the new stern-loading dock was completed in Charlevoix. It includes parking and lights on the dock. The dock will be similar to the one found at Bridge Park. However, it will enable the ferry to be loaded at the side and stern at the same time. In Charlevoix, the ferry will load one way or the other.

A STRONG FINANCIAL HISTORY OF COMMUNITY SERVICE JUST BECAME STRONGER.

Many bank mergers are actually one set of beliefs swallowing another. Often, everyone has to then adjust to the dominant partner, including bank customers.

Not so with the merger between City Bank & Trust Co, City Bank, CB North and their new partner Citizens Bank (A Michigan Bank established in 1871). You see, we all have the same history and a common belief in serving the communities where we do business. It's a strong tradition that will remain unchanged as the driving force behind the combined efforts of all of our people. Yes, there will be some changes. Both partners will become stronger and more secure. As part of Citizens Banking Corporation your bank will become part of the fourth largest bank-holding company in Michigan. Which means customers like you will have over 120 branches to serve you (not to mention over 120 ATMs).

A CHANGE OF SIGNS THAT'S NOT A SIGN OF CHANGE IN PHILOSOPHY.

Oh, and yes, the signs will change to Citizens Bank. But it isn't a sign of a change in those basic beliefs which we've all become known for. Just a strong indication of renewed dedication to the local communities we serve.

Determined patient works out while still in halo

broken vertebrae — survived.

The crash is foggy from all viewpoints as police and medical examiners conflict over whether or not Grunch was driving the automobile. Grunch, for her part, only recalls back to a rest stop at a filling station miles before the crossing.

"I do wonder why I'm still here," she said. "I still haven't really had any answers."

Grunch had a second surgery a week later when doctors discovered the cracks in her neck. For the next three months, she wore a "halo." This is a series of cage-like bars attached at the top by four screws going into the skull. The bottom is snapped into a heavy chest vest. The device is forceful in its confinement, debilitating in its weight and painful in that holes are drilled into the head.

While on, it is a macabre costume, and, as a result, Grunch got her share of second looks and unbelievable stares. She feared it meant those people must hate her.

That was the farthest thing from most people's minds as Grunch was showered with gifts, cards, flowers and visitors from all over the area as she recovered at home. Most of the local high school basketball teams sent personalized letters, a Boyne City rival composed a poem, and friends trailed into her house nonstop to perk up her spirits.

"All phases of the town were so supportive," her mother, Nancy Grunch, said. "Right away people were here saying, 'This is what I can do for you.'"

She said the visitors helped lift the mood of what had become a sad household.

What also perked up those times was Liz's own desire to recover, not just get through the days until the halo would be removed. She wanted to return to the basketball court and softball diamond.

Using a rigorous schedule of weights and step aerobics, she slowly regained stamina and strength. At the start of her retraining she could barely lift 10 pounds. Yet, she remained undaunted, returning to school and the weight room while the halo was still in place.

By the end of the semester, she had earned all As, and was miraculously ready to play for Buchanan's squad in the summer league.

"She was fighting hard," Buchanan said. "It's all in the heart to want to come back like that."

Less than a year after the accident that marred her life, she began to live a summer to dream for. The softball team swept through league play without a blemish, then swept five games in a regional tournament to qualify for nationals in Gadsen, Ala. There, the squad capped an undefeated season by winning five games, claiming the fast pitch national championship.

Grunch was spectacular in the field at her shortstop position, with Buchanan calling her "a wall." She also was able to return and play on a team with her sister, Christine.

"For me it was a fun summer," Christine Grunch said. "I was so proud to be related with her."

Grunch then returned to college. During the basketball season, she was first off the bench on a squad that advanced to nationals, and was a starter on the softball team which finished third in the region. She was thrust into a major pitching role due to ineligibility and injuries of other teammates. As the season wore on, she became staff ace, pitching all the innings during post-season play.

Over the weekend, she and her fast-pitch team will begin to defend their title in regional play at Petoskey's waterfront fields, and later this month, she will venture to Florida to be an instructor at the prestigious Nick Volatari sports camp. Originally a tennis camp where the world's number one player Pete Sampras learned his trade, the camp brings in willing athletes from all corners. The experience will be the first in what Grunch hopes will blossom into a successful career in the teaching field.

"I'd like to be someone for kids to look up to," she said. "I'd also really like to coach a couple of sports."

For the moment, the goal remains ascending to play in the division one level. To help, she has left the junior college basketball squad. She admits to losing a step in that sport and that her instincts are not as sharp as they were before the accident. Softball, with some one-on-one tutelage, a return to shortstop, and improvement at the plate, is where her coach sees the scholarship she seeks.

Grunch said she realizes that the road will be tough.

"Everyone is playing for a reason, they have their own talent," she said. "You play against the best people from each school, everyone was a star once."

Some, like Grunch, are stars still.

Women's Resource Center awards college scholarships

Applications are being taken for scholarships from the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey. The center's tuition assistance program is targeted to help women and men with the costs of attending occupational training at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. These funds are primarily focused on helping single parents, displaced homemakers, single pregnant women and homemakers.

Also, people who are seeking nontraditional careers for their gender may be candidates for the sex equity portion of the tuition grants. Women pursuing criminal justice, engineering or drafting and men considering nursing or secretarial training are examples of nontraditional opportunities at North Central.

Tuition, fees, books and child care are some of the expenses covered by the financial assistance.

For more information, contact Ginny McCord at 348-6699 or the center's general office at 347-0067.

ORDINANCE #642

CHAPTER 26 - CHARLEVOIX MUNICIPAL AIRPORT CITY OF CHARLEVOIX AIRPORT ORDINANCE

ARTICLE I

GENERAL

Section 2.181 Definitions. As used in this Chapter:

A. "Aeronautical Commercial Activity" means any operation of an aircraft for compensation or hire, or any services performed incidental to the operation of any aircraft for which a fee is charged or compensation received while basing aircraft, advertising or perfoming such services at the Charlevoix City airport. This includes, but is not limited to, the servicing, fueling, maintaining and repairing of aircraft, the rental or charter of aircraft under an F.A.R. Part 135 certificate (scheduled or unscheduled) the operation of flight schools, the operation of aircraft for the application of chemicals or other substances, aerial photogaphy or surveys.

B. "Airport Manager" includes the Airport Manager or the designee of the Airport Manager.

C. "City" means the City of Charlevoix.

D. "City Manager" includes the City Manager or the designee of the City Manager.

E. "Contract" includes any contract, lease, covenants or other written agreement.

F. "Person " means any individual, firm, partnership, corporation, company or association; and including any trustee or receiver.

G. "Transient aircraft" means an aircraft not using the City of Charlevoix Airport as a base of operations.

Section 2.182 Existing Contracts. It is not intended for this chapter to interfere with existing contracts. However, where this Chapter imposes a greater duty on a person than does an existing contract and where this Chapter does not directly and irreconcilably conflict with that contract, then the greater duty imposed by this Chapter shall apply. All future contracts shall be made consistent with this Chapter.

Section 2.183 Contracts Non–exclusive. The issuance of any contract shall not grant an exclusive right contrary to federal statutes or regulations.

Section 2.184 Agreement With U.S. Government. During time of war or national emergency, the City shall have the right to enter into an agreement with the U.S. Government for military use of part or all of the Airport and/or its facilities. Any contracts to persons other than the U.S. Government shall be subject to and subordinate to any such agreement with the U.S. Government.

Section 2.185 Non–discrimination. No person shall, in the use of the Airport or any of the facilities located thereon, discriminate or permit discrimination against any other person or group of persons on the grounds of race, color, creed, national origin, sex or age or in any other manner prohibited by federal statutes or federal regulation. In the event of such non–compliance with the above provision, the City may take such action as the federal government may direct to enforce such compliance.

Section 2.186 Federal and State Regulations. All rules and regulations enacted by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission and/or the Federal Aviation Administration relative to airmen, aircraft, air traffic and airports now in effect or any amendments adopted in the future are hereby adopted by reference and made a part of these regulations as fully as if the same and each of all of them were completely set forth herein.

Section 2.187 Airport Manager's Authority. The Airport Manager shall be responsible for the enforcement of all laws, ordinances, resolutions, rules and regulations governing airmen, aircraft, air traffic and the general public using the Airport. The Airport Manager shall have the authority to suspend flying operations when, in the Airport Manager's judgment, the condition of the Airport or weather is such as to make flying operations unsafe. The Airport Manager shall issue Notices to Airmen (NOTAMS) as are appropriate for conditions at the Airport. The Airport Manager may delegate responsibilities which are assigned to the Airport Manager under this Ordinance to such persons as have been designated by the City Manager to assist the Airport Manager.

Section 2.188 Revocation of Contract or Privileges. A violation of this chapter shall permit the City to revoke any permit, privilege or contract which the City has with the violator. For purposes of this termination section only, a violator shall include an employer whose employee or agent has violated this Chapter in the course of the employee's employment.

Section 2.189 Hearings. Where a violation of this Chapter may cause revocation of contracts or privileges exercised by a person at the Airport, such person shall receive written notification of such alleged violation giving the time and place and such other details as shall adequately apprise such person of the alleged violation and the proposed action of the Airport Manager. In the event the person receiving such notification desires to contest the alleged violation or the proposed action, the person may submit a written request for a meeting with the City Manager within ten (10) days of such notification to the City Clerk. A meeting between the person and the City Manager or a designee of the City Manager shall be scheduled within thirty (30) days of the receipt of such request by the City Clerk. The decision of the City Manager shall be final.

Section 2.190 Fees/Permits. The City Council may set by resolution fees for usage of the Airport and Airport property by persons involved in aeronautical commercial operations which are based at the Airport. After paying the required fees, an aeronautical commercial operation shall receive a permit from the City Manager's office which specifies the type of aeronautical commercial operations which may be conducted at the Airport. If the resolution authorizes annual payments, then the initial payment is due when the permit is issued. If the resolution authorizes monthly payments, then the first monthly payment is due when the permit is issued. The permit shall continue to be valid as long as all monthly fees or annual fees are paid and as long as this Ordinance is not violated. The City Manager shall prorate the initial annual fee or the initial monthly fee and may set dates when such payments are to be paid in the future.

Section 2.191 Insurance. Each person seeking a contract for use of the Airport or Airport property shall, prior to the execution of such contract, furnish the City with copies of certificates of insurance providing insurance coverage against loss occasioned by bodily injury or property damage in such amounts as the City Council shall determine. Such persons shall also provide indemnification to the City against any loss occasioned by bodily injury or property damage caused as a result of the person's use of the Airport.

Section 2.192 Inspections. City personnel, including but not limited to the City Manager, Airport Manager or City police, shall have the authority to make such inspections of a person's use of the Airport as well as buildings and facilities at the Airport as they deem necessary to determine compliance with the provisions of this Chapter.

ARTICLE II

VEHICLES

Section 2.193 Operation.

A. No person shall operate a motor vehicle within the boundaries of the Airport property except in such locations as shall be designated by the Airport Manager. The Airport Manager may authorize the operation of a motor vehicle within the Airport as long as there will be no interference with aircraft movement or creation of a hazardous condition.

B. The use of snowmobile, recreational or off-road vehicles is not allowed within the Airport boundaries.

C. No person shall park a motor vehicle on Airport property except in areas designated by the Airport Manager for parking.

D. No person shall park a vehicle in any space marked for parking in such a manner as to occupy part of another marked space, nor shall any person park, stand or wait any vehicle in any reserved or restricted areas so marked.

E. All employees of organizations and agencies having tenancy in the Airport's buildings or upon the Airport's property shall park vehicles in areas as designated by the Airport Manager.

F. No person shall park any motor vehicle in excess of the time limit prescribed for the particular parking area, nor shall any person park any motor vehicle in an area requiring payment for parking thereon without paying the required parking fee.

ARTICLE III

BUILDINGS AND PROPERTY

Section 2.194 Buildings and Property.

A. The use of all buildings and property on the Airport shall be approved and be subject to conditions of a lease agreement between the lessee and the City. The lease shall be approved by the City Manager and approved as to form by the City Attorney. The City Manager shall negotiate the terms of any proposed lease.

B. The use of private hangars on the Airport shall be limited to storage of aircraft and/or aircraft parts except as otherwise approved by the City Manager. The City may require the tenant to provide additional taxiways and/or ramp space in front of or adjacent to a private hangar.

C. Authorization to construct a building on the Airport may be issued after:

   (1) Approval of intended use and detailed building plans by the City Manager.

   (2) Execution of a written lease agreement between the owner and the City.

   (3) Payment of appropriate fees.

   (4) Issuance of a building permit when so required by the county.

D. The construction of buildings shall:

   (1) Comply with all applicable ordinances of the City if such ordinances are intended to apply to the Airport property.

   (2) Be located according to the Airport development plan and approved by the City Manager.

   (3) Comply with rules for the construction of buildings at the Airport which have been prepared by the City Manager.

   (4) Be inspected and approved by the County Building Inspector and Airport Manager with respect to applicable building codes and to ensure that the building complies with Airport rules and plans for the building which were approved by the City.

E. Alterations or additions to existing structures whether internal or external will be considered the same as new construction.

F. All improvements to the property, such as utilities, approaches, paving, drain tiling and fill dirt will be provided at the lessee's expense.

ARTICLE IV

COMMERCIAL USES

Section 2.195 Commercial Uses.

A. No person shall engage in the sale or rental of any commodities, supplies, services or any commercial activity whatsoever on the Airport without a current contract with the City.

B. No person shall solicit fares or funds for any purpose on the Airport without permission of the City Manager. No carrier for hire shall load passengers at any place on the Airport without first having obtained a license from the City.

C. Any aeronautical commercial activity shall obtain a license and pay the required fee.

ARTICLE V

FLYING CLUBS

Section 2.196 Flying Clubs.

A. Flying clubs operating from the Airport shall be organized and operated in concurrence with the Michigan Aeronautics Commission Rules and Regulations pertaining to flying clubs. Officers shall register with the Airport Manager, furnish membership lists upon request and be responsible for the club's activities.

B. All persons belonging to the flying club and acting as either flight or ground school instructors must be licensed as same and currently registered with the Michigan Department of Aeronautics.

ARTICLE VI

AIRCRAFT

Section 2.197 Aircraft.

A. All aircraft based at the Airport shall be registered with the Airport Manager.

B. All aircraft based at the Airport shall comply with Act 257 of the Public Acts of 1955, as amended.

C. Transient aircraft using the terminal parking area may park only in designated areas. The terminal parking area directly in front of the terminal building is closed to overnight parking except by prior arrangement with the Airport Manager.

D. Aircraft parked overnight must be chocked and/or tied down in the designated tie-down areas. Overnight parking and monthly tie-down fees shall be paid to the Airport Manager or his designated representative.

E. Disassembled aircraft must be stored inside a hangar.

ley plays fiddle.

"I do have a deep belief in tradition," Bill said. In addition to being a musician, he has followed in his father's footsteps in being a contractor. And since his retirement a year ago, his sons are carrying the career into the next generation.

Bill's family respects tradition. Stevens' ancesters first came to the Charlevoix area from Ireland and England in 1856. He grew up in town, graduated from Charlevoix High School and has lived on his farm on Klooster Road for 30 years.

In February, Bill found out that his desire to carry on family traditions had made him a recipient of the heritage award. He was nominated by Dan Gillespie, of Beaver Island. A number of letters backed up Gillespie's support for Bill.

In addition to his working with young musicians, calling square dances and being a self-employed contractor, Bill is known for being a member of the Tag-A-Longs, a group that started about 25 years ago and plays for grange dances, at nursing homes and many other kinds of events. He is also involved in a statewide fiddlers association through which he plays at grange halls throughout Michigan.

On the day when Bill is presented his award, his sons will join him in demonstrating their musical tradition. Which songs will be played from the collection that spans decades is yet to be decided.

"I suppose we'll know a day before or five minutes before," Bill said. He described the chance to play at the ceremony as "a little frosting on the cake."

It's another chance for Bill Stevens to share a little of the love that has enriched his life.

Maggie Beemon, Helen Beemon and Allie Manker gather in support around this hemlock tree in a lot sandwiched between Clinton and Mason streets, next to the Charlevoix Middle School. Houses have been torn down and the lot has been bulldozed, save for a small contingent of trees that the girls fear are the next to go. Monday morning they colored posters to hang on the trees in hopes of saving them. A parking lot for the Charlevoix County building is planned for the site.

Tag-day to benefit Grandvue

The annual county-wide Tag-Day for Grandvue Medical Facility in East Jordan will be held Friday, July 18. Donations for the event can be sent to Mary M. Geiken, 510 Meadow Lane, Charlevoix.

The proceeds from Tag-Day will be used to purchase two therapeutic rocking chairs for the residents.

During the month of July, seven members of the Grandvue staff will attend the National Alzheimer's Convention in Chicago. The auxiliary will share the cost of this workshop. It will support this year's Charlevoix-Emmet Alzheimer's walk with $1,000 and sponsor a walker.

The auxiliary will also give $500 toward the annual family Christmas card project, in memory of Dr. Robert Martin.

Local nurse retires after 42 years

Kathryn Boss, R.N., vice president of professional services at Charlevoix Area Hospital, is retiring Thursday, July 31.

Boss has been on the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital for 42 years. Most recently she was the senior administrator in charge of the laboratory, radiology, physical therapy, anesthesia, nursing, pharmacy, respiratory therapy and social services. In the past few years, risk management and quality review were also added to her job description.

Boss

She is a native of the area, attended Calvin College, and graduated from Blodgett Memorial Medical Center, in Grand Rapids. She began her nursing career at Charlevoix Area Hospital as a staff nurse in September, 1955. She and her husband, Nathan, have three adult children, Gayle, Denise, and Craig Boss, M.D. They have seven grandchildren.

F. Aircraft parked in the hangar areas shall be placed so as not to interfere with normal traffic. Overnight parking outside of hangars in the private hangar area is prohibited except upon prior agreement with the Airport Manager.

ARTICLE VII

FIRE REGULATIONS

Section 2.198 Fire Regulations.

A. All persons shall comply with NO SMOKING, FIRE LANE and other regulatory signs.

B. No airplane shall be fueled or drained of fuel while the engine is running or while in a hangar or other enclosed space.

C. The cleaning of engines or other parts of an airplane within an enclosure shall be with non-flammable liquids. If volatile, flammable liquids are employed, cleaning operations shall be carried on in the open air.

D. Aircraft maintenance in privately owned hangars shall be limited to inspections and replacement of parts and repairs incident thereto, provided such repairs do not involve appliances using open flames or highly heated parts, which shall not be allowed unless otherwise authorized by the Airport Manager.

E. Floors shall be kept free and clean from oil at all times. The use of volatile or flammable substances for the cleaning of floors is prohibited.

F. Owners and tenants shall be responsible for prompt removal of oily waste, rags and other rubbish, such as empty oil, paint and varnish cans, bottles, etc., which shall not be allowed to accumulate.

G. No rubbish, paper or debris of any kind shall be permitted to be stored in or about the hangars or other structures.

H. The storage of gasoline, kerosene or other flammable liquids including those used in connection with the process of doping shall be in compliance with the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters for the construction and installation of containers for flammable liquids.

I. Any person responsible for the spillage or dripping of fuels or flammable liquids which may be unsightly or detrimental to the pavement or to the environment shall insure the immediate removal of the material. The responsibility for removal shall be assumed by the operator of the equipment causing the spillage or by the tenant or concessionaire responsible for the spillage. Any spillage or dripping of fuels, flammable liquids, acids or the like shall be reported to the Airport Manager Office immediately.

J. No fuels, oils, dopes, paints, solvents or acids shall be disposed of or dumped in drains, on the ramp areas, catch basins or ditches, or elsewhere on the Airport.

ARTICLE VIII

CONDUCT OF THE PUBLIC

Section 2.199 Conduct of the Public.

A. The Airport Manager shall, at all times, have authority to take such lawful action as may be necessary for the proper handling, conduct and management of the public in attendance at the Airport.

B. The public shall observe and obey all posted signs, fences and barricades prohibiting entry upon restricted areas, or governing their activities and demeanor while at the Airport.

C. Any person who shall commit any disorderly or obscene act at the Airport shall be immediately ejected from said Airport and admittance again thereto may be barred by the Airport Manager.

D. No person shall enter within the Airport boundaries without good cause. Good cause shall mean being a passenger of a plane located on the airport, a pilot of a plane located on the Airport, an owner, operator or employee of a business at the Airport, the customer of a business at the Airport, a person having a contractual relationship with the City involving Airport property or a person otherwise authorized by laws or regulations of the City, state or federal government.

E. Hunting in any form or the discharge of firearms on Airport property is prohibited without written permission from the Airport Manager.

F. No person shall dispose of garbage, papers, refuse or other forms of trash on the premises of the Airport except in receptacles provided for such purposes, nor use a comfort station other than in a clean and sanitary manner.

G. No person shall operate or release any model aircraft, rocket, kite, balloon or parachute or other similar contrivance at or upon the Airport without the prior approval of the Airport Manager.

H. No person shall enter the terminal building or field area of the Airport with a dog or other animal unless the dog is on a leash and under a person's control, or is another type of animal and is confined in a cage or similar structure.

I. No person may smoke on any Airport apron or ramp, in any hangar or in any aircraft on any Airport property, on any observation deck, or in any other place on Airport property where smoking is specifically prohibited by the Airport Manager by means of posted signs indicating such prohibition.

J. No person shall travel upon the premises of the Airport other than on roads, walks or other facilities provided for such specific purpose, and by such means as authorized by the Airport Manager.

ARTICLE IX

PENALTY

Section 2.200 Penalty. Any person violating Sections 2.199.C and 2.199.D shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be subject of a fine of not more than One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars or imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days or both. Any person violating any other provision of this Ordinance shall be responsible for a civil infraction as defined in MCL 257.6a. A civil infraction action, based upon a violation of Sections 2.193.C through 2.193.F shall be handled pursuant to the provisions of MCL 257.6b;. MCL 257.741 through MCL 257.750: MCL 257.907 through MCL 257.909. The City may from time to time establish a schedule of fines to be paid by violators of Sections 2.193.A through 2.193.F. It may further provide for an efficient method for the payment of such fines.

ARTICLE X

SEVERABILITY

Section 2.201 Severability. If any part of this Chapter shall be held unenforceable for any reason, then the unenforceability of such section shall in no way affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this Chapter.

ARTICLE XI

REPEAL

Section 2.202 Repeal. The pre-existing Charlevoix Municipal Airport Ordinance, being Sections 2.181 through 2.238 of the City Code, is hereby repealed in its entirety.

Landscaping business expands services south

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

John Browe performs his artistry on the earth Friday during a job near Nowland Lake.

John Browe has expanded his two-year lawn care business, Classic Landscape Design, to an office in Central Lake to better serve clients in the Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

Browe opened his business, serving the Petoskey area, in August of 1995, after working for 10 years in various landscaping businesses in the area and Lansing.

"I've taken all the best attributes of all the places I worked at and incorporated them in all my designs," he said.

The main thrust of Browe's work is lawn care and maintenance, such as mowing, mulching flower beds, and both chemical and organic fertilizing. His work also encompasses designing and constructing custom decks, fencing and patios. When the snow falls, plowing is available.

"Your home is probably the largest investment you will make," he said. "Development of your outdoor living spaces should be as important."

Browe said quality landscaping work does more than just improve the view. It can add 7 to 14 percent to the property value, is a large factor when people select a retirement community, and quickly return initial investment dollars by drawing more tourists to public sites. A well-maintained landscape contributes to many immeasurable aesthetic qualities such as security, relaxation and pleasure.

July tends to be a slow month for Browe and other landscaping businesses. Browe said people want to play and have fun on the lawns they've worked hard on all spring.

"After labor day, it speeds up again," Browe said.

While many enjoy doing their own lawn care, for some the work is too much to do or takes away hard-earned weekend time.

"It's a hassle for them," Browe said. "They get two free days and have to spend them pushing a mower or weeding a flower bed. This frees up some time for them."

Browe, who attended school at Lansing Community College and Michigan State University, offers free estimates, a 10 percent senior citizen discount and can be contacted at 544-9804 or 348-8205. He runs the business with his fiancee, Beth Zalba.

Business in brief

A free, six-hour course for people who want to learn, or learn more, about the stock market will hold its first session from 6:30-8 p.m. Wednesday, July 22, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

"Six Hours to Investment Savvy" meets on four consecutive Wednesdays. The course is being taught by Gayle VanPatten, office manager for Merrill Lynch in Petoskey.

The course is designed to provide a better understanding of the market, including stocks, bonds, CDs, money market funds and T-bills. Participants will also learn about risk vs. return tradeoff, developing a diversified portfolio, global investing, effects of taxes and impact on inflation.

Class size is limited. Call 348-0762 to register.

Sailors spend week speeding, drifting through races

Wednesday sail results

Gee Whiz — 36 sail yachts registered for the 1997 Charlevoix Yacht Club summer series. Everybody's getting into the act.

The first race of the series saw 35 yachts at the starting line in near-perfect conditions. Hit & Run, a Dan Juan 24 sailing jib & main, got the most fun for the money as she started in Fleet D at 5:55 p.m. and crossed the finish line three hours later. The good news was that the elapsed time corrected out at 2:06:47, good enough to leave a couple boats in the other fleets rocking in her wake. It was not a great night for a couple of real old timers in the Wednesday Series. Uncle Lou in Bald Eagle (Cat 30; 2:08:53) surprised me by sailing with a 'chute in Fleet B but still enjoyed spending over two hours out there. Yes, Lou, the auditors say that is corrected elapsed time. Not to be outdone, Mint Julep (a P-10M; 2:13:28) just coasted around the course. Jack, how could you possibly accumulate two hours? Was it by design?

The speed merchants in the spinnaker fleets were Newsense (J-24 at 1:40:36) and Bandit (S 525; 1:42:55), who were able to stay ahead of the ever diminishing breeze and the rest of Fleet B. Very close behind were the winners of Fleets E & C, respectively, Hussy (J-22; 1:44:42) and Lost Vermonter (P 26; 1:45:21). The latter was an unbelievably good time for a lead sled and more than six minutes faster than the infamous Blazen III (P-26; 1:51:53) second in Fleet C. H. S. Moisture Missile (J-22; 1:47:03) was second in E (J-22's).

Even speedier were Apothecary (P-26; 1:34:19) and Red Comet (R-26; 1:39:37), one and two in Fleet D, but this jib and main fleet is sailing a different course than is sailed by the other classes. Where were you Sarah Belle (P-26), our only non-starter?

The big boats of Fleet A had an off night due to them starting later than the others while watching the breeze slowly fade away. Gotcha (J-29 MH; 1:52:42) took honors by a minute and 10 seconds over Kamikaze (SC 2; 1:53:52).

Lesson 1. Jib & Main: simply means that the boats racing in this class have declined to, or cannot, use spinnakers during the race series. Spinnaker: a large, somewhat parachute-like, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde type sail — often quite colorful but not nearly as much so as the language that normally accompanies its use (loved by spectators and skippers, detested by the crew). Sail yacht: a hole in the water onto which you throw gobs of money (thence the term "gobs" that applies equally to all military and racing sailors). (Authors note: the gobs get to be GOBS when you have twin 200s on the transom.)

Race Results in order of finishing:

Division A: Gotcha, Kamikaze, Hoo-Aah and Mint Julep.

Division B: Newsense, Bandit, Mi Joy, Splash Dance, Babe, Cabaret, M 3, Our Thyme II, J Hawk and Bald Eagle.

Division C: Lost Vermonter, Blasen III, Stalworth, Sandpiper, Cygnus, Tireless, Original Sin and Hit & Run

Division D, Jib & Main: Apothecary, Red Comet, Flash, Booma, Cheemaun and DNS: Sarah Belle Division E, J-22: Hussy, H. S. Moisture, Gecko, Reckless, Swine Flew, Floyd, Cathach and Paleface Lite.

George LaBlance Cup Results

The following is so hot off the computer that no warranty of accuracy is included.

A. Nony Mouse

Dateline, Lake Michigan, off South Point, Charlevoix Michigan, 10 p.m. July 12.

Twenty sail yachts gather in the world's largest parking lot Saturday, hopeful of starting the annual Charlevoix Yacht Club and Boyne City Yacht Club race to St. James on Beaver Island, to return Sunday. The next five similarly datelined news releases are discarded as they all said the same thing. The sixth release advised that Our Thyme II actually went back over the starting line while becalmed. Our reporter, Kim Simpson, must have been affected by the long wait as this news release is dated "Saturday, July 11". Intuition tells me that the race got off to a very slow start.

But then the breeze filled in from the southwest. The spinnaker boats ended up with a sleigh ride downwind to the island, only being troubled by the committee boat that meandered through the fleet and will, we hope, bring back a major album of great pictures. First finish was in just 4:35 (elapsed, not corrected). All yachts were in by 5 p.m. and enjoyed a great night on the island. Hats off to the Boyne City Yacht Club for the hors d'oeuvres.

A little rocking at the dock created a mixture of eager anticipation and downright fear by the time dawn brought its warm rays to St. James. But all seemed well as the winds became breezes. Nineteen boats enjoyed a great start, but then the breezes became just zephyrs. The committee boat ran back to take finishes of Medusa and dropped anchor at 2:10 p.m. And then the zephyrs became occasional light puffs. Flash came into sight at 4 p.m. and then the light puffs became a calm. Flash crossed the finish line 4:44.10 running with only their iron spinnaker. And then the calm became dead calm ...

Pending the results of trying to coordinate 19 different watches, made more difficult because some of the more experienced among us recorded elapsed time while those who have served as committee knew we needed EDT, we predict the following:

Jib & Main: Our Thyme II over Apothecary tied on points, as a result of each having one each first and second, settled by best total elapsed time. Hot Mustard and Flash followed.

Division II: Original Sin (third and first) over Blazen III (second twice), followed by Cygnus, Red Comet, Jesse, Sea Hoss and Cabaret.

Division III: Splash Dance (first and fourth) over Swine Flew (third and second), followed by Kamikaze, Slick, Grand Slam, Mi Joy, Mint Julep, Slapshot and Hoo-Aah.

Bless you to Kim Simpson and Mike Miller for feeding the starving mouse, and to Doug and Kim Simpson for providing the race committee boat and all starts. And to Karl Juries for making it happen — as always.

IT'S WORTH THE DRIVE!

3-on-3 tourney blazes through Sunday's heat

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

The fire department came to the rescue Sunday afternoon during the St. Mary's Summer Slam 3-on-3 basketball tournament.

No, a blaze did not flame-up, nor were firefighters there to douse the hot shooting on display throughout the day. They arrived to cool off the competitors on a muggy afternoon that saw temperatures creep into the 90s.

"It was scorcher out there," tournament co-organizer Dan Buday said. "We said we had the hottest tournament in town and it was."

Fifty-two teams in age groups from nine to 35 met in downtown Charlevoix hooping it up for bragging rights as top 3-on-3 team.

Ten courts were set up on the St Mary's parking lot and St. Mary's Drive, which was closed for the day in deference to the cagers. An exception was for the firefighters who arrived in the middle of the afternoon to hose down the heat-worn competitors.

"They were just dripping with sweat," Buday said. "They were playing their hearts out."

In addition to the heat, Buday said the story of the afternoon was good sportsmanship. In an event such as this, sometimes the conduct of fair play goes astray, but Buday said this year's tournament was a kinder one.

For example, teams from downstate carry a dirty physical reputation, but this year one of them took home the sportsmanship award. They called a lot of fouls on themselves.

"It was nice to see all the good sports out there, it makes for more fun out on the court," Buday said.

Turnout for this year's tournament was below that of 1996 as local softball tournaments took some players away. Still Buday said that over the five year history, the tournaments has doubled in size and more teams than expected did sign up for this year's summer slam.

Buday said all the volunteer help made it possible for the event to run as smooth as it did.

Winners from this year's tournament are:

Men's top division: Fire, with Don Jess, Jeremy DeYoung and David Dobulis.

Men's recreation division: 3 hours early, with T. J. Fetterly, Rick Wieman, John Reynolds and Rob Jabara.

Young men division: X, with John Hawkins, John Green, Jeff Czabek, and Bobby Adock.

High school men: B.C.'s Dinky D's, with Skylar Handy, Spencer Handy, Josh Holecheck and Adam Wood.

Boy's division: DiMartino, with Cody Webster, Brett Probert, John DiMartino and Jordan Nystrom.

Women's top division: Scorgasm, with Jenny Drenth, Trina Vanderark, Treana Fiel and Sophia Bootz.

Young women's division: Radio Shack, with Karianne Miller, Heather Cary, Leslie Hoffman and Melissa McDonough.

Girl's division: Kwicki, with Alison Eggebrecht, Alicia Klooster and Stacey Lalonde.

Youth Division: Jr. Bulls, with Mario Antonioni, Gregg McPheely, Christopher Morton and Nathaniel Morton.

Four teams — 3 hours early, Soldiers of the Cross, Hurricanes and Vibes — took home good sportsmanship awards.

TimVolovsek, Charlevoix's new girls' varsity basketball coach, comes down with a rebound for his team, Tim V., which placed third place in the Men's Top Division at Sunday's Summer Slam 3-on-3 tourney next to St. Mary's School. The annual tournament is held as a fund-raiser for the school.

The 3rd Annual Charlevoix Lion's Club Four Player Team Scramble Golf Tournament is being held Thursday, July 17. Check-in for the event is 12:30 p.m. at the Belvedere Golf Club, 5731 Marion Center Road. A shot-gun start begins at 2 p.m.

Any golfer who lands his or her tee shot in the 17th hole will win $10.000. An additional $5,000 prize awaits a golfer with a hot putter who can stick a 50-foot putt in an optional side event. There are also prizes for hole-in-ones at three other holes: No. 4, a set of Tour Edge Irons; No. 8, a Seiko Watch; and No. 14, a Grenelefe Golf Package.

Prizes will be awarded at the post-tournament dinner at the Charlevoix Yacht Club on Ferry Avenue, across from Foster Boat Works. Featured on the menu is the Lion's own specialty barbecued chicken.

There is a $75 player fee, which includes green fees, cart, dinner and on-course event prizes.

Golfers who wish to test their skills can call co-chairs, Jeff Rizzo, at 547-5117, and Barney Way at 547-9665, or public relations director, Bern Cannan, at 547-5512.

Garden club offers scholarship

Pat Miller, a science teacher at Charlevoix Middle School, has been awarded the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's 1997 scholarship to Higgin's Lake Environmental school.

The annual scholarship will pay about two-thirds of the cost to attend the school. Miller will receive graduate credit for her studies there. She is not required by her teacher's contract to attend the school.

In 1996 Anne Goiney, a Charlevoix High school Science teachers, was the recipient of the scholarship.

In Loving Memory

Topper Carey
July 13, 1945 – February 24, 1994

Extra special thoughts are with you on your birthday, Topper. This time of year reminds us of you on your boat and on the beach. The boat is now providing happy memories for a new family. They know how much you loved it and they are treating it the same. A part of you lives on whenever we see it float by. Every day you are remembered for your sense of humor and love of life. You sure knew how to have fun! There will always be "Topper stories" and they will continue to be told for years to come. Your love, strength and courage still provide such inspiration.

I will always love you – Nina (Carey) Merten.

Community foundation wins annual report award

Telling the complex story of a community foundation on a tight budget is a tough challenge. Doing it creatively and effectively takes some talent and real determination. But, for the second time in two years, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's annual report has been named a gold award winner in a program sponsored by the National Council on Foundations.

The report, Sharing Our Bounty, joins 1995s Yes We Can! in being awarded the prestigious Wilmer Shields Rich Award for excellence in communication. The national award, named for the woman who served as the Council on Foundation's first executive director, promotes more effective communications and increased public accountability among foundations throughout the nation.

"We were absolutely blown away," said Mike Stowe, president of the community foundation. "It's a real honor for a small foundation like ours to capture national attention and be recognized for the work we do."

According to Stowe, a panel of 90 judges, including communications experts, professional writers, journalists, publications designers, and public relations professionals from across the country participated in the selection process. Judges rated annual reports on clarity, design, overall concept and effectiveness. The Charlevoix County report was judged tops among all annual reports for foundations with assets of $5 million and under.

"Awards are always nice," said Bob Tambellini, foundation executive director. "But the real significance of this award is that it confirms - at least on the part of the experts - that we're doing a good job of helping people understand the many good ways in which this foundation affects our lives."

Since it was established in 1992 by a group of local civic leaders, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has grown considerably and accomplished much. Starting from scratch, the foundation's assets now stand at more than $4 million, and include more than 50 special funds set up by individuals, families, nonprofit organizations and businesses. Most importantly, the foundation has channeled more than $400,000 back into the county in the form of grants to benefit worthy programs - from education and the arts, to human services, economic development, recreation and the environment.

In awarding the honor to the foundation, Council on Foundations President, Dorothy S. Ridings, praised the local organization's commitment to philanthropy. "This Foundation has increased public understanding of its mission and, in turn, encouraged more people to join in its charitable efforts," she said.

Both annual reports were collaborative efforts involving Tambellini, his wife, Gretchen, who is a freelance writer and former advertising executive, and several of the couple's designer and photographer friends who performed their services at considerable discount. Production costs were underwritten by private donors.

"All of us believe in the importance of this Foundation's charitable works," Tambellini said. "We definitely benefited by having some generous, talented friends!"

Those who would like to know more about the Charlevoix County Community Foundation may call the foundation office, (616) 536-2440, or write P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727 to request a current annual report.

School district maintains millions in fund balance

As a result, the district's general fund balance is nearly $2.15 million.

Overall, though, projections into the next century aren't as rosy with the district projecting losses in each of the next five fiscal years. For four of those years, the district could be losing money in the six-figure range, sapping the general fund to below $1 million by the end of June 2002.

During the 1997-98 year, the projected loss is $310,888. Boss explained that $150,000 of that is the result of the early retirement incentive, a plan to save money in the long run that is front-end loaded with costs.

The board challenged the faculty Monday to meet with each other and present their own ideas for saving money next year to the board during the Monday, July 28, meeting.

"Can we find the fat?" Ike Boss asked. "Everyone needs to figure out how to save, even if it's just $100 bucks here and there. You guys would know better than us."

The idea garnered support as Grundman said afterwards that it was "a step in the right direction" to let faculty in each building decide where cuts in spending could be made.

"So the goal is to save $170,000?" board member Barney Way questioned.

"The goal is to do the best they can," Ike Boss said.

The board next meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 28, in the high school study hall.

Historical society continues summer celebrations

Geoffrey D. Reynolds
Courier columnist

July marks another important month in the history of the Charlevoix Historical Society. Twenty-five years ago, the society re-established itself in the Charlevoix area, years after the original group disbanded.

With the dedicated spirit that was running through many towns throughout the United States during the 1970s, a group known as the Charlevoix Area Historical Society started meeting in the community room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix. Soon officers were elected and monthly meetings promoting the history of the area were being held.

In 1976, a committee of seven was formed and the business of locating a suitable building for the area's historical artifacts and records was undertaken. To help bolster this project, the committee initiated the publication of a pictorial book, Bob Miles' Charlevoix: A Century in Pictures. Eventually 2,000 monographs were printed, which generated thousands of dollars for the society. The book has since become a collector's item.

From the Archives

With money raised, the society continued searching for a building in which to place its historical items, which were then still stored in attics, basements and garages around the city. In 1978, at the bequest of Anne Harsha, granddaughter of the houses's original owner, Horace S. Harsha, the society received its current building at 103 State St.

After receiving this gift, the society quickly began the necessary renovations to make three of its four apartments into income producing rental units, while saving the lower, north end of the home for museum display, meeting space, and the Bob Miles Photograph Room. Eventually an addition was added to the original building and a permanent display area was created, along with a library and larger meeting area.

In 1989, the original parlor was restored and restoration work began on the vestibule. That same year marked the first professional staffing of the museum, with the appointment its first executive director. This change came because of the ever-increasing interest in Charlevoix research and a need to catalog and display existing artifacts. This director and his successor would also continue to collect and preserve newly donated items.

In July of 1991, the society celebrated the centennial of the Harsha House with a gala and a State Historic Site designation from Lansing. The following year, the society continued its successful publishing record by printing Historic Charlevoix: A Guide to Walking and Driving Tours of the Charlevoix Area's Most Historic Sites. This book was awarded the Best Historical Publication of the Year by the Historical Society of Michigan in 1993 and continues selling into its second printing.

In 1997, the society opened its second building to the public, the Charlevoix Railroad Depot Museum, largely devoted to Charlevoix's rich maritime, transportation and resort history. Donated by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pew, it's design, like the Harsha House Museum, is to continue the legacy of preserving Charlevoix's history for generations to come.

Jim Witherspoon called to identify the scrapbook picture that ran in the paper June 18 edition. The bridge was in the Belvedere Club, down by the beach area where his father fished as a child. He believes the bridge was taken down between 1922-1926. A similar picture of the bridge also appears in the Belvedere Club Book, published in 1968.

Hospital finishes best financial year

New president hopes to see hospital thrive

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

Accompanying Charlevoix Area's Hospital's most successful year is a change in senior personnel who have spent years stabilizing the community hospital.

During the annual meeting July 16, board members, staff, administration and guests reviewed the hospital's progress, looked back at where it had come from and gazed into the future.

"I think the hospital's in the best condition it's been in for the past 26 years," said Richard Krueger, who retired July 1 from being hospital president after 26 years.

William Jackson is the hospital's new president. However, he has worked there for 17 years as vice president of financial services and chief financial officer. Other administrative positions will be changing because of retirements.

When taking his place at the podium — for the first time as president — Jackson told a story of how Krueger must not have been a numbers man when he came to Charlevoix. He joked that Krueger hadn't read the hospital's financial statement well or he would never have come. Community donations were covering the hospital's losses at that time.

"This is the best year we've had financially," Jackson said, of the fiscal year that ended May 31, 1997.

The hospital had a total operating income of just over $12 million, with about $16.5 million being billed to patients and about $4.7 million being lost amid Medicaid, Medicare and other insurance adjustments. Its greatest operating expense was salaries, wages and benefits, which consumed more than $7.5 million.

At the year end, the hospital had $734,223 left to make available for plant and equipment needs. According to board treasurer, Al Ranger, the hospital overcame its expenses by about $126,000.

"As you see from our financial report, this growth has benefited the hospital financially, so we have been able to increase our employee staff where needed, purchase additional supplies, and, with excellent community supports for our fund-raising efforts, to purchase new and replacement equipment valued in excess of $570,000," Krueger said in his annual report.

Statistics show growth at the

A queen awaits ...

Miss Charlevoix 1997 to be crowned

One of eight candidates will represent the community as Miss Charlevoix 1997.

The winning candidate will receive a scholarship of up to $1,500 to the school of her choice, with the first runner-up receiving a scholarship up to $500 to the school of her choice. The money will be awarded after the winners' obligations for appearances during their reigning year have been fulfilled.

The candidates are currently representing Charlevoix throughout various appearances. Secret judges are observing them during events. Attendance to activities is considered in choosing the next queen.

Venetian about to begin

The Venetian Festival begins Thursday, July 24, with the opening of the carnival and performances in East Park by the Men's Glee Club, various local talent and the Mid-Michigan Highlanders.

Friday, July 25, will be highlighted by martial arts demonstrations in East Park, tours aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia and the historical sailing schooner, the Madeline, and the Drum and Bugle Corps Championship in Kipke Field on East Garfield Ave., next to the high school.

Saturday, July 26, is packed with events, beginning with the Drenth Memorial Foot Race, Venetian paraded, the boat parade and fireworks.

The weekend raps up on Sunday, July 27, with a pancake breakfast at the American Legion Hall on East Garfield.

Complete programs, with a schedule of events, are available at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

The waters of Charlevoix County will be better patrolled, courtesy of Four Winns. The boat company has donated two 20-foot, 200-horsepower boats to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said their flotilla of boats now numbers three and the donation will enable one boat to patrol around Walloon Lake and one in the Boyne City area of Lake Charlevoix. The third will patrol in the South Arm, near East Jordan

"We're big into promoting boat awareness and boat safety," Four Winns representative, Bill Kruger, said. "If this helps save one person, it'll all be worth it."

Josh Block, who helps patrol the water for the sheriff's department, said they've had 13 accidents on the waters already this summer, with those causing injuries involving personal water crafts like jet skis and wet bikes.

Fire destroys old farm house

Firefighters are continuing to investigate the cause of a fire early Sunday that destroyed an old farm house at the corner of Barnard and Ferry roads.

The Charlevoix Fire Department was called out at 1:06 a.m. Sunday. By the time they arrived, the house had burned to the ground — all but the chimney, said fire chief Doug Carver. He said the house was the only one in the neighborhood and that it must have burned for awhile before being noticed by a passing motorist.

Carver said the house that was owned by Joseph "Sheridan" Root, who died July 17 at his daughter's home in Howard City at the age of 85. The Marion-Township house is believed to have been abandoned for 25 to 30 years, Carver said.

Because there was nobody living in the house and no chance of the fire being ignited by lightning, Carver said the fire had to have been set unless someone was camping out inside the house.

A certified investigator is continuing to look at the cause of the fire.

Correction

The Investment Savvy course being offered at the Charlevoix Country Club will be offered for four consecutive Tuesdays, beginning Tuesday, July 22. The day of the one-and-a-half-hour sessions was incorrectly reported to our office. For more information, call 348-0762.

Events in brief

Accident stalls highway traffic for three hours

A semi that tipped over at the corner of M-66 and U.S. 31 at about 10:26 a.m. Saturday blocked traffic for about three hours, according to Charlevoix Police Chief, Dennis Halverson.

The tractor-trailer was turning left onto U.S. 31 South, on its way to Medusa Cement Co. to unload, tipped over. Halverson said the driver, Philip Howes, 41, of Howes and Howes trucking, out of Manton, was ticketed for speeding.

The semi was pulling two enclosed, liquid canisters. The middle trailer tipped on its side and the end trailer stayed upright, Halverson said.

"It appears as if the truck was overloaded and the trucker made the turn too fast," Halverson said.

Heavy-duty wreckers had to be brought to town from Petoskey to bring the trailer upright and move it off the road. During that time, some traffic was rerouted down Ferry Ave. Other vehicles slipped through an open lane at the intersection.

No was injured in the accident, Halverson said. Charlevoix police were assisted by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and the Motor Carriers Division out of Traverse City. An investigation is being continued by the Motor Carriers Division.

Phone-a-thon for Junior Achievement set

A Junior Achievement phone-a-thon will be held Tuesday, July 29, to raise money for the program. During the event, people can donate time or money to the program, which places professionals into Charlevoix classrooms once a week for 10 weeks. While the students are exposed to various careers, the professional also teaches them about personal presentation, seeking a job, interviewing, budgeting, etc.

Anyone who would like to contribute may call Jim Connaughton at FMB Northwestern Bank at 547-0881.

School board meeting rescheduled

The work session originally scheduled for the Charlevoix school board has been changed. Rather than meet on Monday, Aug. 4, a retreat/work session will be held at the Sleep Inn conference room at 4 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 7.

Master Gardener class to last 11 Mondays

The Emmet County MSU Extension Office is holding a Master Gardener class beginning Monday, Sept. 8, and running for 11 consecutive Mondays. The classes will run from 6:30-9:30 p.m. in the Gamble Auditorium at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

For registration forms or more information, contact the extension office at 348-1770. Registration deadline is Friday, Aug. 29.

Board focuses on replacing district's oldest school

Gym preservation desired

By Jamie MacMillan
Courier reporter

As it sits empty amid summer vacation, the first baby steps towards a facility project to replace the middle school have been made.

Spurred by freshmen fervor, boosted by the voters' willingness to pass the repairs sinking fund and enhanced after tours of the school, the four new board members appear ready to let go of the historic house.

"We'll keep this building as long as we can, but I feel strongly about not renovating the middle school," Ike Boss said. "We're not going to pour money down a rat hole."

To remodel the school would force the district to adhere to more modern building codes, such as handicap accessibility. Also, renovations would be a major process involving construction during the school year, a project that could gobble up rare playground space. What to do with students during that time sounded to the board like a bridge not worth crossing.

"It's apparent, after walking through, that renovating opens up a whole new can of worms that I, quite candidly, hadn't thought of," board member Scott Boss said.

Necessary repairs have been tagged as leaky roofs, asbestos removal, ceiling and wall cracks, work on thin walls that students to hear the goings-on in the next classroom, and ceilings that shake when students walk. Voters passed a sinking fund to do major repairs at the district's other two buildings, but none of that money will go toward projects at the middle school.

"From a case-study standpoint, it's the easiest to sell even for those who were a solid "no," Scott Boss said of a new middle school.

City adding two alley archways

By Janenne Irene Harrington
Courier editor

In Charlevoix, alleys aren't dark places to avoid. They are main accesses to parking and downtown businesses.

As part of the Downtown Development Authority's efforts to improve the central shopping area, alley archways are going to invite walkers through downtown shortcuts. And with the help of DCL, Inc., a company located in the industrial park north of town, the $8,000 price tag of the archways is costing the city next to nothing.

DCL is donating all the labor and materials needed to construct the 228-foot and 210-foot tall metal arches, which will include a sign of the alley's name.

Both the North Alley, which runs perpendicular to Bridge Street through the city parking lot, and Van Pelt Alley, which runs parallel to Bridge on the

OPINIONS

Consider media responsibility during disagreements

EDITORIAL

Even though a majority of citizens learn about other people — from near and far — responsibility of the media is not understood.

At the Courier, we are serious about a newspaper's responsibility to report. Charlevoix's events, governmental developments and the people who live in the community. There is a vast amount of information available that we look for and decipher each week to determine what must get before our readers.

Decisions are sometimes made minute-by-minute. Whether a story is relevant to the readers, interesting, timely and the sources available are all factors that help determine if a story will be seen in print.

The job of a weekly paper differs from that of a regional television station or regional newspaper, which can come to town and spot-cover events depending on controversy and importance. A weekly paper tries to be a person's eyes and ears at the many local happenings that a person cannot attend.

Traditionally, however, many people have longed for their weekly paper to be a "cheerleader" for the community. It is irresponsible for a newspaper to only cover the festivals and people's accomplishments. That would be like pulling a car body off the assembly line without its engine and breaks. Even though it would look nice, it would not function properly or serve its buyer well.

There is nothing wrong with positively promoting a community. These are jobs best accomplished by the chamber of commerce, convention and visitors' bureau and downtown businesses. A hometown newspaper is only credible if it strikes a balance between the community's business, and its people and events.

We realize that it isn't pleasant to come home after a long day at work and read about a poor governmental decision or a crack dealer spreading poison throughout town. But we also believe strongly in people's right to know. Hopefully, through the coverage of arrests, accidents and elections, people will use that information to make wise choices.

Most news reporters are just as sickened by the world's ugliness as anybody else. We are not all heartless people who enjoy airing dirty laundry.

For example, the Courier has stated in the past that we don't support the onslaught of the media in Charlevoix to pester the Ramseys by perching outside their home to take photos as the family comes and goes. However, we are following the investigation of the case because, although it has been blown out of proportion by some people, it is news worthy.

We published a short article in the July 16 edition about the release of JonBenet Ramsey's autopsy report. This was the first time the public was given a credible look at the 6-year-old's injuires. We are not harrassing. We are reporting. The results of this test were official, unlike many articles in other newspapers that used unidentified sources to make claims.

At the Courier, our job is to inform the public in a responsible manner. Each week, we strive to do so. At times, some of our readers may not understand our decisions or agree with why we've made them. It's OK to disagree as long we learn from each other's points of view.

Feel free to call the Courier with questions. We are doing our best to produce a real newspaper for the community.

Letters to the editor

Thanks to all who helped with 3-on-3

Editor:

The 5th annual Summer Slam 3-on-3 basketball tournament would like to thank all of the volunteers and players for showing up in the blistering heat on Sunday, July 13, to make our tournament the best tournament in northern Michigan. The games were the cleanest and most competitive in the area. Thanks to the hundreds of families for enduring the heat of the sun to watch their favorite teams. You truly made the tournament a fun family event with your attendance.

In addition to the many people who donated their time and talents in preparing for the event, we wish to thank all of the following businesses for their donations which helped make this event possible:

Pepsi/All Sport Beverages, Buday's Sound Advice, Mike's Bridge Street Ace Hardware, Radio Shack, Freeway Internet Providers, WJML, WKHQ, Jay Balasz D.D.S., CB North, Charlevoix State Bank, John Merrill D.D.S., Ameritech, Charlevoix Screenmasters, Charlevoix Dairy Queen, Cross Fisheries, Charlevoix Courier, Petoskey News-Review, Glen's of Charlevoix and St. Mary's Parish.

And a special thanks to the Charlevoix Fire Department for sending a much needed cool down spray from their fire truck. Many players and parents truly appreciated the refreshing spray.

Sincerely,

St. Mary's Summer Slam 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament

Doug, Michelle and Daniel Buday, event organizers

Historical society's train fair a success

Editor:

On July 4 and 5 the Charlevoix Historical Society held a model train display at the Depot Museum. The event was very successful, thanks to the generosity of several people.

Mr. William B. Davis, attorney at law, of Grand Ledge, Mich., suggested the show and provided his wonderful collection of miniature trains and other railroad memorabilia.

Don and Rebecca Haney, owners of "Don's IGA" on Petoskey Avenue in Charlevoix, prepared and donated the tasty and plentiful food for the picnic supper which topped off the exposition on Saturday. John Haggard, of Haggard's Plumbing and Heating, Charlevoix, supplied the materials for the grand table which held the tracks. Numerous volunteers from the historical society spent long hours preparing for the two days; their willingness, expertise, and community spirit are the basis for the excellence of the event.

Book Shelf

By Diane Foster
Courier columnist

Six paintings by Paul Cezanne decorate the bold yellow book jacket of Peter Mayle's new novel, Chasing Cezanne ($23, Alfred A. Knopf). I haven't read a Peter Mayle novel since Toujours Provence and, I must say, I truly enjoyed the 295-page chase.

Hanky-panky on the international art scene is the source of hilarity in Chasing Cezanne. Set in the south of France with stopovers in the Bahamas, England and New York City, Mayle runs us through art galleries, homes of prominent collectors, and wickedly delectable restaurants.

Trendy Camilla Jameson Porter, editor of Decorating Quarterly, has sent hero Andre Kelly to Cap Ferrat to shoot glamorous photos of the houses and treasures of the rich and famous. Andre happens to spot a Cezanne being loaded into a plumber's truck near the home of an absent collector. His camera is at the ready and soon he's on the trail of shady people peddling bright colors.

The characters range from exceedingly curious to beautiful to super-savvy to outstandingly greedy sophisticates. True to Mayles' style, you will learn a little about art and a lot about French culture. I don't think I've ever said this about a novel but, one word of caution is, don't read this on an empty stomach. You're going to have frequent meetings with the characters in restaurants. While it's fun, occasionally I found my thoughts drifting from the page to the menu at Terry's Place.

Dance academy comes to park

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau's seventh annual summer concert series continues Thursday, July 24, with a performance by the Mid-Michigan Highland Dance Academy.

The Academy is located in Alma, Mich., and is dedicated to the promotion of the Scottish arts through authentic and entertaining programs featuring Scottish Highland Dancing. These dances range from the traditional formal dances of Scotland, such as the highland Fling and Sword Dance, to National Dances such as the Irish Jig and Hornpipe.

The performance will begin at 8 p.m. in East Park at the Clarence A. Odmark Pavilion, and will last 45 minutes to an hour.

The Academy, under the direction of Christie Freestone, represents the Midwest region at the national championships, and has produced dancers who have competed not only in the United States, but also in Canada and Scotland. Past and present members include six national runner-ups, and a former U.S. Champion.

Freestone has taught Highland Dance for 25 years in the Alma area, and has traveled extensively, judging highland dancing competitions throughout the U.S. and Canada. Performed in full costume, the dances promise a vivid and genuine production that will entertain audiences of all ages.

Charlevoix Opera Guild prepares to open comic opera

The fax machine, answering machine, cellular phone, pager, personal digital attendant — does the proliferation of all those high-tech devices, intended to make communication easier, sometimes get in the way of simple personal conversations? Would it surprise you to know that an opera written in the late 1940s, when just the telephone was on the scene, deals with the same problem?

Sleder

Gian Carlo Menotti's comic opera, "The Telephone," will be featured on the Charlevoix Summer Night at the Opera. It will be presented by the Charlevoix Opera Guild in the First Congregational Church at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 8.

"The Telephone" (subtitled L'amour & Trois or The Love Triangle) is an opera buffa (comic opera), with an English text; it has been a perennial favorite since its first production in 1947, by the New York Ballet Society at the Hecksher Theater in New York City. Alexander Graham Bell's invention, meant to ease communication, becomes a definite obstacle in this light-hearted glimpse of two people caught in a tangle of technology. The result is as maddening as the problem lovers using e-mail recently faced when trying to get Internet access.
